Roosevelt's Warning.
Happy Young Couple.
Fighting the Devil.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.)
Copyright, 1926, by the Star Co.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT in his speech on Tuesday formulated a useful warning against intemperate measures to combat acknowledged evils.

A few rich men spent large sums at the primaries. It is suggested that the system of primary election be abolished. That would put complete power of nomination once more in the hands of crooked bosses. As well suggest return to monarchy or autocracy because government by the people does not always work smoothly.

TO cure the evil of intemperance, says Mr. Roosevelt, "we jammed through by caucus, by propaganda, by every method known politically," a prohibition law that has produced bootlegging, crime, drinking of whisky by high school boys and girls far more harmful than the condition we sought to remedy.

It is the old fable of the tame bear determined to kill a fly on the head of its sleeping master. The bear selected a large rock and did kill the fly. He also crushed his master's skull.

THE Belgian crown prince will marry Princess Astrid, niece of King Gustavus of Sweden. It is a royal love match and "the princess can cook." The Belgian crown prince, 24 years old, is "democratic and likes a glass of the popular Belgian beer, taken at a cafe table."

Most idyllic, but how long will royalty and royal jobs last? If the czar could come out of the hole in which his body was thrust he would see hundreds of thousands visiting the Lenin shrine, where the body of the Russian "saint," embalmed and natural as in life, lies with face exposed.

ONLY yesterday agents of that czar put Lenin's brother to death. The hour glass of history was turned upside down and Lenin put the czar and his whole family to death.

There are many businesses safer than the royalty business.

MRS. AIMEE SEMPLE McPHERSON, a lady preacher of Los Angeles, went off on a little trip and came back to announce her kidnaping and captivity in the desert. The district attorney says she was not kidnaped, "just went," so she will be tried, for deceiving justice—as though a high strung lady must tell the world about all of her little trips.

IS the lady evangelist downhearted? No. She and her friends organize a "fight the devil fund" of $100,000 to prove that her story is truthful.

THAT catching title, "Fight the devil fund," must interest old satan, if he really does exist, with his spiked tail, horns and cow hoofs. In these bootlegging days, it would take a big fund to fight the devil on a really big scale.

Bowdler's Attorneys Attack West Virginia Law In Brief

East Liverpool Man, Facing Prison Sentence, Answers Prosecution Fight Against Writ of Error Proceedings.

Constitutionality of the act passed by the West Virginia legislation in 1925 which regulates time limitations for the filing of petitions for writs of error, was attacked in the Ohio county courts at Wheeling yesterday by attorneys for A. E. Bowdler, former East Liverpool lawyer and Gordon Ulyatt, officials of the defunct Real Estate Guaranty Mortgage company, who are facing a five-year penitentiary sentence for violation of the state securities act.

The briefs were in reply to a motion filed by the state, asking that writ of error proceedings be dismissed. WORLD COURT PATH IS ROUGH

Geneva Action May Block Entrance of America.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—America's actual entrance into the world court has been projected into the dim and misty future, if it has not been forestalled entirely, by the action of the powers at Geneva in evading the fifth of the senate's reservations.

This represents the concensus of opinion in Washington, pro-court and anti-court alike. The irreconcilables are elated over the refusal of the powers to accept the fifth reservation, which states that the world court may not render an advisory opinion in any case in which the United States "has or claims to have" an interest, without the consent of this government being specifically given. The pro-court forces are correspondingly glum. And yet withal rather helpless to remedy it.

$100,000 PROPERTY TOLL EXACTED IN SOUTHERN SECTION OF COUNTY

Joseph Beadle, 2, Whose Skull Was Fractured by Falling Chimney When Storm Destroyed Home of His Father, Thomas Beadle, Stop 47 on Y. & O. Railroad Dies in City Hospital.

MANY STRUCTURES NORTH OF CITY ARE CAUGHT IN PATHWAY OF GALE

Summitville, Hammondsville and Millport and Other Zones Also Suffer, While Railroad, Street Car and Telephone Service is Crippled by Landslides and Uprooted Trees and Poles.

One dead, at least four injured, property damage estimated at $100,000 and crippled street car, train and telephone service was the toll exacted by the tornado and rain storm which swept through the southern section of Columbiana county yesterday afternoon and last night.

Joseph F. Beadle, 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Beadle of the Stop 47 district, along the Youngstown and Ohio River railroad, seven miles north of here, died in the City hospital at 6:15 o'clock last evening from the effects of a crushed skull received when he was hurled beneath a section of a chimney after their three-room frame cottage had been leveled by the twister.

The injured include Mrs. Gladys Beadle, 28, mother of the child, who is in the hospital, suffering from two fractured ribs and bruises and lacerations to the body; James Burnip, 58, coal miner of Stop 47, who received scalp and face lacerations and an injury to his right leg; Peter Stapanovich, 16, high school student, of the same neighborhood, who sustained [illegible] lacerations in his left ankle, and Nellie Reynolds, 20, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reynolds, living about a mile west of the Stop 47, whose back was injured when she was struck by a copper kettle, caught by the 75-mile-an-hour wind after their home had been blown over.

At least six houses, five of them in the Stop 47 district, and the other in the village of Summitville, were completely wrecked and a half dozen others were damaged by the storm which first struck in the western part of the county and then whirled eastward. Dozens of barns, garages, chicken coops and smaller buildings were overturned, unroofed and otherwise damaged. Orchards and gardens also suffered.

TWISTER ALSO STRIKES SOUTHEASTERN ERIE COUNTY, DESTROYING HOMES

More than 50 dwellings were razed by the tornado and hundreds more unroofed or otherwise damaged.

Estimates of the damage and reports of casualties are being delayed as communication within the stricken zone was cut off.

HURRICANE-STRICKEN FLORIDA HAVOC BEYOND DESCRIPTION, SAYS BIRKETT

Relatives Receive Letters From Honeymooners Who Were Unhurt When 100-mile-an-hour Gale Struck Miami.

Wreckage left in the path of the West Indian hurricane which swept the east coast of Florida last Friday night and Saturday "cannot be described," according to Willard Birkett, son of Dr. and Mrs. C. H. Birkett, of West Sixth street, who, with his bride, nee Louise Betz, of Thompson avenue, were spending their honeymoon at Miami Beach when the storm occurred.

Dr. and Mrs. Birkett yesterday received a letter from their son, stating that he and his wife had escaped without a scratch. Fears for the safety of Mr. and Mrs. Birkett were felt by relatives early last Monday when word was received here that the Wofford Hotel, where the Birketts were guests, had been destroyed.

The letter, delivered here yesterday, was written from the Hotel Frances, located at 19-21 East Third street, Miami, where Mr. and Mrs. Birkett had obtained rooms after leaving the wrecked Wofford Hotel on Sunday.

A letter was also received by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Betz, Thompson avenue, parents of Mrs. Birkett.

Birkett's letter to his parents, in part, was as follows:

"We got over here Sunday afternoon from the beach in a police car with special permits. We have handbags but don't know when we will get our trunks. Our things are not damaged very much while most everyone lost all their belongings or it was damaged beyond use. Just as soon as we can get our trunks and are able to get on the train, I am sure we are leaving. It will probably be in about two weeks.

Hotel is Wrecked.

"The Wofford hotel is practically a wreck and on Friday night and all day Saturday was really the first time I believe I was very scared for I thought we were done for, either killed inside the hotel with falling walls or washed out and drowned. The ocean was 15 feet deep around the hotel and when you looked out the windows you saw the waves going clear across the island to the bay.

"One man was killed Friday night in the lobby by a large block of concrete coming down through the building and crushing him. Several more standing near were missed. One wing

Joseph Beadle, 2, Whose Skull Was Fractured by Falling Chimney When Storm Destroyed Home of His Father, Thomas Beadle, Stop 47 on Y. & O. Railroad Dies in City Hospital.

MANY STRUCTURES NORTH OF CITY ARE CAUGHT IN PATHWAY OF GALE

Summitville, Hammondsville and Millport and Other Zones Also Suffer, While Railroad, Street Car and Telephone Service is Crippled by Landslides and Uprooted Trees and Poles.

One dead, at least four injured, property damage estimated at $100,000 and crippled street car, train and telephone service was the toll exacted by the tornado and rain storm which swept through the southern section of Columbiana county yesterday afternoon and last night.

Joseph F. Beadle, 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Beadle of the Stop 47 district, along the Youngstown and Ohio River railroad, seven miles north of here, died in the City hospital at 6:15 o'clock last evening from the effects of a crushed skull received when he was hurled beneath a section of a chimney after their three-room frame cottage had been leveled by the twister.

The injured include Mrs. Gladys Beadle, 28, mother of the child, who is in the hospital, suffering from two fractured ribs and bruises and lacerations to the body; James Burnip, 58, coal miner of Stop 47, who received scalp and face lacerations and an injury to his right leg; Peter Stapanovich, 16, high school student, of the same neighborhood, who sustained [illegible] ments in his left ankle, and Nellie Reynolds, [illegible], daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reynolds, living about a mile west of the Stop 47, whose back was injured when she was struck by a copper kettle, caught by the 75-mile-an-hour wind after their home had been blown over.

At least six houses, five of them in the Stop 47 district, and the other in the village of Summitville, were completely wrecked and a half dozen others were damaged by the storm which first struck in the western part of the county and then whirled eastward. Dozens of barns, garages, chicken coops and smaller buildings were overturned, unroofed and otherwise damaged. Orchards and gardens also suffered.

TWISTER ALSO STRIKES SOUTHEASTERN ERIE COUNTY, DESTROYING HOMES

Storm Breaks Just as County Schools Near Huron Were Adjourning—At Least Dozen Injured.

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 24. — The southeastern section of Erie county today is a panorama of devastation—the result of a tornado which caused damage estimated at several hundred thousand dollars and injured at least a dozen persons.

The most seriously injured are:

Thomas Speegle, Huron, crushed by falling chimney.

Mrs. Samuel Bartley and two children, Huron, badly cut by flying debris.

Mrs. Alfred Huntley, Bloomingdale, crushed beneath falling building.

The tornado struck the southeast corner of Erie county, sweeping northeastward, thence out into Lake Erie.

In its course the wind dipped first about two miles north of Bellevue. Then it sped on, creating havoc at Perkins, Bloomingville, Storrs Corners, Oklahoma, Huron, North Ridge and Clyde.

More than 50 dwellings were razed by the tornado and hundreds more unroofed or otherwise damaged.

Estimates of the damage and reports of casualties are being delayed as communication within the stricken zone was cut off.

HURRICANE-STRICKEN FLORIDA HAVOC BEYOND DESCRIPTION, SAYS BIRKETT

Relatives Receive Letters From Honeymooners Who Were Unhurt When 100-mile-an-hour Gale Struck Miami.

Wreckage left in the path of the West Indian hurricane which swept the east coast of Florida last Friday night and Saturday "cannot be described," according to Willard Birkett, son of Dr. and Mrs. C. H. Birkett, of West Sixth street, who, with his bride, nee Louise Betz, of Thompson avenue, were spending their honeymoon at Miami Beach when the storm occurred.

Dr. and Mrs. Birkett yesterday received a letter from their son, stating that he and his wife had escaped without a scratch. Fears for the safety of Mr. and Mrs. Birkett were felt by relatives early last Monday when word was received here that the Wofford Hotel, where the Birketts were guests, had been destroyed.

The letter, delivered here yesterday, was written from the Hotel Frances, located at 19-21 East Third street, Miami, where Mr. and Mrs. Birkett had obtained rooms after leaving the wrecked Wofford Hotel on Sunday.

A letter was also received by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Betz, Thompson avenue, parents of Mrs. Birkett.

Birkett's letter to his parents, in part, was as follows:

"We got over here Sunday afternoon from the beach in a police car with special permits. We have handbags but don't know when we will get our trunks. Our things are not damaged very much while most everyone lost all their belongings or it was damaged beyond use. Just as soon as we can get our trunks and are able to get on the train, I am sure we are leaving. It will probably be in about two weeks.

Hotel is Wrecked.

"The Wofford hotel is practically a wreck and on Friday night and all day Saturday was really the first time I believe I was very scared for I thought we were done for, either killed inside the hotel with falling walls or washed out and drowned. The ocean was 15 feet deep around the hotel and when you looked out the windows you saw the waves going clear across the island to the bay.

"One man was killed Friday night in the lobby by a large block of concrete coming down through the building and crushing him. Several more standing near were missed. One wing

CLEVELAND HAS SUBWAY PLAN TO COST 40 MILLION

12-MILE TUNNEL

One-fourth of Population Rides Cars Daily.

CLEVELAND, O.—A $40,000,000 subway system for a penny from every man, woman and child who rides a street car.

That is the plan of Raymond P. Cragin, organizer of the Cleveland Subway company, and formerly representative in Cleveland of the Pennsylvania railroad.

Figures prominent in the nations' financial affairs are behind the "Penny Subway Line," it was learned. Through the backing of the Rockefellers, Sr., and Jr., who have extensive holdings in Cleveland, a New York bank has agreed to lend the necessary money, estimated at $40,000,000, to Cragin and his associates with which to build the subway. The Van Swearingen's Cleveland's prominent railroad promoters have also signified their intention of backing the project.

Plans Soon Ready.

Cragin's plans, which he will present to the Cleveland city council when the necessary papers for a franchise are prepared call for the construction of a 12 mile subway at somewhat less than $4,000,000 a mile.

The subway is to be built with money borrowed from the New York bank and in order to pay off the debt street car and bus fares are to be increased one cent per ride, the increase to be turned into the city coffers, under Cragin's proposal.

Estimates reveal that one and one-fourth of the population of a city is moved via street cars each day, Cragin said.

Cleveland's population is hovering about the 1,000,000 mark and at that average the penny a ride for each person would add $12,500 a day to the city's treasury; or $4,562,000 a year. In twelve years the city would be able to take over the system at the cost of construction plus accrued interest, according to Cragin.

City officials can then lease the subway system to any railway company desirable and the city treasury will be the recipient of a large yearly rental, the promoter declares.

This will be the first time that a subway project to be paid by the people's pennies will be tried in any city the promoter said. The present carfare in Cleveland is 6 cents, with a penny extra for transfers.

Mac Millan Brings Home New Ideas of North Lights

Famous Arctic Explorer, Accompanied by Eskimo Interpreter, Returns From Sojourn in Labrador.

NEW YORK.—Commander Donald B. MacMillen, famous Arctic explorer, accompanied by Abie Broomfield, Eskimo interpreter, has just returned from a three months' sojourn in Labrador, where he collected a car load of specimans of birds, animals and fish life which he forwarded to the Field Meseum in Chicago.

Commander MacMillan exploded several standard theories concerning radio during these past few months. The common idea that the aurora borealis was a barrier to perfect reception and transmission, MacMillan put aside by saying: "On nights of the most brilliant aurora, Paul McGee, our radio operator, did his best work. This alone would disprove the theory that the mere presence of the Northern Lights does not mean poor reception or transmission. Only when the aurora hung close to the earth, did reception become eratic."

MacMillan, while still speaking of the Northern Lights, told that natives of the far North have often seen hills or other objects through the aurora. This, he claims, disproves the theory that the Northern Lights are never nearer than sixty miles from the Earth's surface.

The Commander announced his intention of leaving next June, with the auxiliary schooner Bowdwin, and another boat, to establish a station for scientific research in Kowk, Labrador. This station, sponsored by the Field Museum, will be used for five years as a base from which the museum's scientists can work in their respective lines. For the duration of the five years, at all times there will be attached to the post, five scientists, each specializing in a separate field of research. In that way, they hope to be able to completely study the flora and fauna of Labrador.

As a field for research, MacMillan said, "I don't believe there is any other country in the world, so little known as Labrador. There are several species of fish in its waters, that man has known of for 175 years that have never been named, classified or scientifically examined. Also, during the six months day, there are 770 different varieties of flowers, many of which have never been recognized before."

MacMillan told of finding remains of old Norse settlements all along the Labrador coast. He believes that through these remnants of that sturdy race, he will be able to prove that the Vikings arrived in this New World long before the time of Columbus. They located these ruins, he said, by making use of the Eskimo legends and folk lore. MacMillan expects to excavate these spots when he returns with his station.

Abie Broomfield, 47, MacMillan's Eskimo dog driver and interpreter, until this trip to United States, has never been south of the Bering Sea before. He showed great interest in the subways and automobiles, but asked particularly to be taken to the aquarium, where he heard they had a Labrador seal.

Abie, who is a native of Jack Lanes Bay, Labrador, has been with Commander MacMillan for five years. He has taken several trips in the arctic with the explorer, and it is expected that he will be the official "interpreter and local color man" for the new station. He will remain in United States till next June, and return to the north with the Bowdwin. d

Austrian Churches Plan Sale of Art Treasures to Exist

VIENNA. — Most of the Churches and Monasteries of Austria are being supported nowadays by the sale of their treasures. Particularly in the country districts the people are unable to support their parishes as before the war and large sums are needed to repair the buildings, which in most cases have not been touched for a decade.

The Bishopric of Mattsee is now offering its greatest treasure, the original volume of the "Annales Ferdinandei" for sale. The book contains an account of the private and political life of the Hapsburg Ferdinand II from 1615 to 1637 and is the most authentic history of the events leading up to the Thirty Years War.

B. A. Rolfe's Palais d'or Orchestra

A sensation on Broadway, a sensation on the New Edison. Broadway steppers are stepping out to the litling jazz of this Broadway music wizard. Where Broadway lights are brightest, where the crowd that KNOWS, assembles, there—at the scintillating Palais d'Or—the music hungry gather to hear the famous trumpet virtuoso, B. A. Rolfe, and his dance specialists.

No one has ever played the trumpet as Rolfe plays it—complete selections in a register an entire octave above "high C". These super-upper register solos by Rolfe make his arrangements distinctive and superbly beautiful.

Mac Millan Brings Home New Ideas of North Lights

Famous Arctic Explorer, Accompanied by Eskimo Interpreter, Returns From Sojourn in Labrador.

NEW YORK.—Commander Donald B. MacMillen, famous Arctic explorer, accompanied by Abie Broomfield, Eskimo interpreter, has just returned from a three months' sojourn in Labrador, where he collected a car load of specimans of birds, animals and fish life which he forwarded to the Field Meseum in Chicago.

Commander MacMillan exploded several standard theories concerning radio during these past few months. The common idea that the aurora borealis was a barrier to perfect reception and transmission, MacMillan put aside by saying: "On nights of the most brilliant aurora, Paul McGee, our radio operator, did his best work. This alone would disprove the theory that the mere presence of the Northern Lights does not mean poor reception or transmission. Only when the aurora hung close to the earth, did reception become eratic."

MacMillan, while still speaking of the Northern Lights, told that natives of the far North have often seen hills or other objects through the aurora. This, he claims, disproves the theory that the Northern Lights are never nearer than sixty miles from the Earth's surface.

The Commander announced his intention of leaving next June, with the auxiliary schooner Bowdwin, and another boat, to establish a station for scientific research in Kowk, Labrador. This station, sponsored by the Field Museum, will be used for five years as a base from which the museum's scientists can work in their respective lines. For the duration of the five years, at all times there will be attached to the post, five scientists, each specializing in a separate field of research. In that way, they hope to be able to completely study the flora and fauna of Labrador.

As a field for research, MacMillan said, "I don't believe there is any other country in the world, so little known as Labrador. There are several species of fish in its waters, that man has known of for 175 years that have never been named, classified or scientifically examined. Also, during the six months day, there are 770 different varieties of flowers, many of which have never been recognized before."

MacMillan told of finding remains of old Norse settlements all along the Labrador coast. He believes that through these remnants of that sturdy race, he will be able to prove that the Vikings arrived in this New World long before the time of Columbus. They located these ruins, he said, by making use of the Eskimo legends and folk lore. MacMillan expects to excavate these spots when he returns with his station.

Abie Broomfield, 47, MacMillan's Eskimo dog driver and interpreter, until this trip to United States, has never been south of the Bering Sea before. He showed great interest in the subways and automobiles, but asked particularly to be taken to the aquarium, where he heard they had a Labrador seal.

Abie, who is a native of Jack Lanes Bay, Labrador, has been with Commander MacMillan for five years. He has taken several trips in the arctic with the explorer, and it is expected that he will be the official "interpreter and local color man" for the new station. He will remain in United States till next June, and return to the north with the Bowdwin. d

VIENNA. — Most of the Churches and Monasteries of Austria are being supported nowadays by the sale of their treasures. Particularly in the country districts the people are unable to support their parishes as before the war and large sums are needed to repair the buildings, which in most cases have not been touched for a decade.

The Bishopric of Mattsee is now offering its greatest treasure, the orginal volume of the "Annales Ferdinandei" for sale. The book contains an account of the private and political life of the Hapsburg Ferdinand II from 1615 to 1637 and is the most authentic history of the events leading up to the Thirty Years War.

EAST LIVERPOOL—AMERICA'S POTTERY CENTER

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 1926.

New Heavyweight Champion

The scholarly Gene Tunney, who has equipped himself to battle outside as well as in the boxing ring, is the new heavyweight champion of the world.

Beaten at his own game—slugging—Jack Dempsey, holder of the title since that memorable day at Toledo in 1919, when he defeated Jess Willard, was dethroned in a 10-round bout in the Sesqui-Centennial stadium in Philadelphia last night.

As 130,000 spectaors, the largest attendance at any sporting event in the history of America, looked on, the clever New York lad outboxed the champion and had him on the verge of a knock-out in the first round and near the danger mark in two other rounds. And when the tenth ended there was no doubt of the decision in the minds of the judges, referee and thousands of sport followers.

It was a clean-cut victory for a rank outsider in the betting—Tunney was on the short end of 2 1-2 to 3 to 1 wagers when he entered the ring. And the vanquished fighter was a pitiable sight as a result of the pummeling he received at the hands of the ex-marine.

And the ex-champion, whose showing proved a disappointment, had no alibi to offer for his defeat. "I don't know what was the matter with me," said Dempsey. "I couldn't get going. I fought a terrible fight."

Dempsey, covered with blood, tears coursing down his cheeks, left the ring a badly beaten man.

The victorious Tunney, who won eight of the ten rounds and kept on even terms with the champion in the others, was all smiles and hardly showed a mark of the encounter.

It was the old,old story. Inactivity during the last two or three years, during which he had spent most of his time in motion pictures, was a handicap to the former title holder. He was not the Dempsey that entered the Toledo ring seven years ago, and he went down before a "man of destiny" who should prove a fighting champion.

The Wasted Fuel

The distressing thing about the petroleum situation is not that we use up so much of the petroleum, but that we get so little of what there is in the ground.

In the average oil field, drillers say, they only obtain about one-fourth of the oil that Nature placed in the underground pools. The oil is contained in certain strata of sand, with impervious rock above and below. The driller pierces the rock cover and the oil flows up. At first it is blown up under great pressure. Little by little it slows down. Thence comes pumping, and finally that will not avail. Yet when the pumps stop, there are still three gallons left in the sand to one obtained.

More may be got out by new methods, whereby artificial pressure is exerted on the oil-bearing sand to renew the flow. But two-thirds will still be wasted.

Incidentally there is a vast waste of gas. The gas blown into the air in many fields equals in value the oil obtained. And that gas is not only in itself the finest fuel ever used by man, but contains vast quantities of gasoline which could be extracted from it and added to the distilled supply. Henry L. Doherty says in one new field in Texas as much as 1,200,000,000 feet of gas, equal to 48,000 tons of coal, is lost every day.

Worse yet, the loss of the gas diminishes the oil supply. For it is the gas pressure in the sand that forces the oil up to the surface, and the more gas is allowed to escape in the early phase of any field, the less gas pressure is left and the sooner the oil flow stops. Here is a chance for double conservation which has not yet been fully realized.

Silk Price Control

The Japanese government, it is said, plans to subsidize the silk producers to enable them to withhold their product from the market when necessary, and so keep the price from falling too low.

It is some such assistance as Brazil has given her coffee growers, and it suggests the governmental support given the British Indian rubber producers in controlling market and prices. Japan is the greatest producer of raw silk, and the price has fallen more than 25 per cent in the last three years.

It is not likely, however, that Japan will go very far in this direction. For there is a trade weapon in this and other countries which is lacking so far in the case of rubber and coffee. Rayon, the artificial silk, can be used for almost any purpose the natural silk can be used for, and its quality is steadily improving. The United States can produce or buy all the rayon it wants, and has ample weaving facilities to supply its own market.

So great, in fact, is the development of this new industry that it may eventually put the silk worm out of business and drive Chinese and Japanese silk growers into some other industry.

The successful city man's biography usually tells that he was born on a farm. Maybe the successful farmers of the future are being born now in the city.

It's dreadful, says Lady Astor, for a mother, "when she has made her child's life a perfect thing, to send it out into an imperfect world." But somehow coddled children usually prefer imperfection.

The Answer Was "No It Didn't"— By Fontaine Fox

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Thoughts while strolling: Wish they'd locate those gas mains and quit digging. The shrieks and moans from the dentists' building on 40th street. Only two people I ever saw look like poets—Edna Millay and Richard Le Gallienne.

New York ladies are the best shod in the world. Big Bill Edwards. Bet his mother set a good table. The yellow elevated trains are sotty again. The blind pencil seller in front of the Henry Miller Theatre. Manicure parlors run by Flos and Dots.

Messenger boys escorting venerable ladies. Rollin Kirby, a cartoonist and poet. Dingy hotels named for famous men. The black-befrocked attendants in funeral parlors. The editor of a gossipy weekly who wears a monocle. Little Billy, the midget actor.

Those strapping uniformed movie doormen. Nudity certainly means little along the Rialto. "Hire 'em and leaf 'em!" Whatever became of the skirt dance? Salvation lassies imploring Broadwayites to think of their mothers. The first raccoon coat.

A ticket agency solicits orders for Xmas trees. Those tiny butterfly shops aglitter with baubles. More of those glossy haired and hatless Orientals. Like a bagful of foxes. A tipsy young girl in a patrol wagon—chewing gum.

Actors with police dogs. A suit case falls out of a taxi. And seems to be leaking. The perfect fool—Ed Wynn. Not Browning. Old sports with limps. Flappers with skips. Why do most optical store clerks wear glasses?

Cafe announces three orchestras. Most of them play one tune and sing the rest. The hunting room of the Astor—where movie magnates lunch.

The man who made a fortune printing theatre programs.

At one of those swank cane stores I learned the "male malacca" was worth $10 more than the "female." Malacca is imported chiefly from the Straits Settlements. It is valuable because of its tough skin and strength. Some s prettily clouded, some mottled and light and dark brown. The most valuable canes are those of one piece having bark the entire length. They range from $40 to $60.

Evidently ukelele twanging is not a passing fad. Dealers report more sold during the past few months than ever before. They are now on sale in chain drug stores. There are a dozen studios in the Broadway environs guaranteeing perfection in from six to a dozen lessons.

Next in popularity just now is the harmonica. It is effective in bringing out plaintive wails of those "blue" ditties. The mandolin seems passe.

The smallest musical instrument store in the world is for sale. It is in that intersection block on 47th street where Seventh avenue crosses Broadway. It is about the size of the interior of a taxicab with a little more height yet it contains almost every instrument from the piccolo to the bull fiddle. The proprietor evidently has a keen longing for the great open spaces. There is not room for more than two customers at the same time. He has been able to make a good living.

And on upper Broadway the largest dog shop in the world is scheduled to open areund the holidays. It will occupy an entire floor of a block long building. Every comfort for the dog is to be installed—grassy plots to play, an artificial lake, exercising contraptions and a show ring for display as large as the ordinary circus ring.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

India Considers the Gold Standard.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—In view of the agitation concerning government relief for the American silver mining industry, which has been going on during and since the war, the prospect of India turning to a gold standard is of special interest to the United States. India and China are the two great countries of the world which set up silver as the monetary standard backing their currency issues.

It will be remembered that, during the war, the United States, at the instance of Great Britain, exported millions of dollars worth of silver to India to meet the increased demand consequent on war activity.

Silver is a commodity which varies in price even as coal, grain or similar articles do. Before the war the United States was buying the silver required to make one silver dollar for about fifty cents. Rising in price with other commodities, silver went up to a peak price of $1.26 and this country was faced with the necessity of paying for the silver in a dollar more than the legal tender value of the coin.

Senator Pittman of Nevada, with the aid of Treasury experts, drew a bill designed to stablize the price of silver. It provided that in no case should the United States Mint be required to pay more than one dollar for the ounce of silver required for the coin.

There has been much protest among the silver miners of the West who have declared that the cost of mining silver has risen with the cost of producing other commodities and that they are entitled to a higher price. Nevertheless, the price of silver has dropped down again to a point not far from its pre-war value.

These vicissitudes and fluctuations show how treacherous silver is as a standard of currency value for any country largely engaged in world trade. Any amount of speculation in foreign exchange is invited and more than ordinary astuteness is required in the importer or exporter if he is to keep his business from suddenly being ruined by a shift in the silver quotation.

All these considerations have induced the British government and the Indian authorities to carefully consider a gold standard and it seems likely that such a reform will take place. It appears that certain contracts between the Imperial Bank of India and the Bank of England must be permitted to expire before the change can be made but, as these expirations do take place in a relatively short time, the British and Indian experts already are at work on their plans for the conversion.

Special commissions have made exhaustive investigations into the complicated currency and credit system of India and a number of suggestions have been made but it appears that the one most likely to be adopted provides for the erection of a central bank, which would be a bank authorized to issue notes. The system proposed is not unlike the Federal Reserve System operative in the United States, save that one central bank is proposed, rather than a central system composed of twelve units such as we have in this country.

Has Three Kinds of Money.

At present India has three kinds of money. Two of them are based on the silver standard. The rupee is a silver coin havin a normal value of 1 shilling, 4 pence. This is the principal medium. Then there is a paper currency in the form of rupee nofes, based on the actual coins. These two forms of currency are mutually convertible: that is, one is worth just as much as the other.

The thir form of currency is the British gold sovereign. This coin was established by statute as a legal tender on the theory that India should have at least one gold medium of exchange. The statute provides that the government shall at any time redeem gold sovereigns at the rate of 10 rupees per sovereign.

Because of the long usage of silver and consequent familiarity with it and, further, for intricate exchange reasons, the gold sovereign has never actually passed into general circulation and has been a failure as an addition to the currency facilities of Indian trade. Practicallly all of the commercial business of India is done with silver, either in the form of coin-

BACK TO GOD'S COUNTRY.

Soon after the Civil war ended a former trooper of Morgan's cavalry moved from his home in the Bluegrass region to California. He was a gentleman of genial habits and a natural orator. It was almost inevitable, therefore, that sooner or later he should enter politics. He announced as a candidate for the legislature on the Democratic ticket. He made a spirited campaign, but when the primary returns were in, of three candidates the ex-Confederate had finished third.

He called a meeting of his friends and made a speech. It was short but complete.

"Gentlemen," he said, "I'm going to quit this cussed country. I'm going back to Kentucky—the only fit place for a Southern white gentleman to live—where the niggers make your crop for you and the sheriff sells it."

EAST LIVERPOOL—AMERICA'S POTTERY CENTER

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 1926.

New Heavyweight Champion

The scholarly Gene Tunney, who has equipped himself to battle outside as well as in the boxing ring, is the new heavyweight champion of the world.

Beaten at his own game—slugging—Jack Dempsey, holder of the title since that memorable day at Toledo in 1919, when he defeated Jess Willard, was dethroned in a 10-round bout in the Sesqui-Centennial stadium in Philadelphia last night.

As 130,000 spectaors, the largest attendance at any sporting event in the history of America, looked on, the clever New York lad outboxed the champion and had him on the verge of a knock-out in the first round and near the danger mark in two other rounds. And when the tenth ended there was no doubt of the decision in the minds of the judges, referee and thousands of sport followers.

It was a clean-cut victory for a rank outsider in the betting—Tunney was on the short end of 2 1-2 to 3 to 1 wagers when he entered the ring. And the vanquished fighter was a pitiable sight as a result of the pummeling he received at the hands of the ex-marine.

And the ex-champion, whose showing proved a disappointment, had no alibi to offer for his defeat. "I don't know what was the matter with me," said Dempsey. "I couldn't get going. I fought a terrible fight."

Dempsey, covered with blood, tears coursing down his cheeks, left the ring a badly beaten man.

The victorious Tunney, who won eight of the ten rounds and kept on even terms with the champion in the others, was all smiles and hardly showed a mark of the encounter.

It was the old,old story. Inactivity during the last two or three years, during which he had spent most of his time in motion pictures, was a handicap to the former title holder. He was not the Dempsey that entered the Toledo ring seven years ago, and he went down before a "man of destiny" who should prove a fighting champion.

The Wasted Fuel

The distressing thing about the petroleum situation is not that we use up so much of the petroleum, but that we get so little of what there is in the ground.

In the average oil field, drillers say, they only obtain about one-fourth of the oil that Nature placed in the underground pools. The oil is contained in certain strata of sand, with impervious rock above and below. The driller pierces the rock cover and the oil flows up. At first it is blown up under great pressure. Little by little it slows down. Thence comes pumping, and finally that will not avail. Yet when the pumps stop, there are still three gallons left in the sand to one obtained.

More may be got out by new methods, whereby artificial pressure is exerted on the oil-bearing sand to renew the flow. But two-thirds will still be wasted.

Incidentally there is a vast waste of gas. The gas blown into the air in many fields equals in value the oil obtained. And that gas is not only in itself the finest fuel ever used by man, but contains vast quantities of gasoline which could be extracted from it and added to the distilled supply. Henry L. Doherty says in one new field in Texas as much as 1,200,000,000 feet of gas, equal to 48,000 tons of coal, is lost every day.

Worse yet, the loss of the gas diminishes the oil supply. For it is the gas pressure in the sand that forces the oil up to the surface, and the more gas is allowed to escape in the early phase of any field, the less gas pressure is left and the sooner the oil flow stops. Here is a chance for double conservation which has not yet been fully realized.

Silk Price Control

The Japanese government, it is said, plans to subsidize the silk producers to enable them to withhold their product from the market when necessary, and so keep the price from falling too low.

It is some such assistance as Brazil has given her coffee growers, and it suggests the governmental support given the British Indian rubber producers in controlling market and prices. Japan is the greatest producer of raw silk, and the price has fallen more than 25 per cent in the last three years.

It is not likely, however, that Japan will go very far in this direction. For there is a trade weapon in this and other countries which is lacking so far in the case of rubber and coffee. Rayon, the artificial silk, can be used for almost any purpose the natural silk can be used for, and its quality is steadily improving. The United States can produce or buy all the rayon it wants, and has ample weaving facilities to supply its own market.

So great, in fact, is the development of this new industry that it may eventually put the silk worm out of business and drive Chinese and Japanese silk growers into some other industry.

The Answer Was "No It Didn't"— By Fontaine Fox

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Thoughts while strolling: Wish they'd locate those gas mains and quit digging. The shrieks and moans from the dentists' building on 40th street. Only two people I ever saw look like poets—Edna Millay and Richard Le Gallienne.

New York ladies are the best shod in the world. Big Bill Edwards. Bet his mother set a good table. The yellow elevated trains are sotty again. The blind pencil seller in front of the Henry Miller Theatre. Manicure parlors run by Flos and Dots.

Messenger boys escorting venerable ladies. Rollin Kirby, a cartoonist and poet. Dingy hotels named for famous men. The black-befrocked attendants in funeral parlors. The editor of a gossipy weekly who wears a monocle. Little Billy, the midget actor.

Those strapping uniformed movie doormen. Nudity certainly means little along the Rialto. "Hire 'em and leaf 'em!" Whatever became of the skirt dance? Salvation lassies imploring Broadwayites to think of their mothers. The first raccoon coat.

A ticket agency solicits orders for Xmas trees. Thos tiny butterfly shops aglitter with baubles. More of those glossy haired and hatless Orientals. Like a bagful of foxes. A tipsy young girl in a patrol wagon—chewing gum.

Actors with police dogs. A suit case falls out of a taxi. And seems to be leaking. The perfect fool—Ed Wynn. Not Browning. Old sports with limps. Flappers with skips. Why do most optical store clerks wear glasses?

Cafe announces three orchestras. Most of them play one tune and sing the rest. The hunting room of the Astor—where movie magnates lunch.

The man who made a fortune printing theatre programs.

At one of those swank cane stores I learned the "male malacca" was worth $10 more than the "female." Malacca is imported chiefly from the Straits Settlements. It is valuable because of its tough skin and strength. Some s prettily clouded, some mottled and light and dark brown. The most valuable canes are those of one piece having bark the entire length. They range from $40 to $60.

Evidently ukelele twanging is not a passing fad. Dealers report more sold during the past few months than ever before. They are now on sale in chain drug stores. There are a dozen studios in the Broadway environs guaranteeing perfection in from six to a dozen lessons.

Next in popularity just now is the harmonica. It is effective in bringing out plaintive wails of those "blue" ditties. The mandolin seems passe.

The smallest musical instrument store in the world is for sale. It is in that intersection block on 47th street where Seventh avenue crosses Broadway. It is about the size of the interior of a taxicab with a little more height yet it contains almost every instrument from the piccolo to the bull fiddle. The proprietor evidently has a keen longing for the great open spaces. There is not room for more than two customers at the same time. He has been able to make a good living.

And on upper Broadway the largest dog shop in the world is scheduled to open around the holidays. It will occupy an entire floor of a block long building. Every comfort for the dog is to be installed—grassy plots to play, an artificial lake, exercising contraptions and a show ring for display as large as the ordinary circus ring.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

India Considers the Gold Standard.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—In view of the agitation concerning government relief for the American silver mining industry, which has been going on during and since the war, the prospect of India turning to a gold standard is of special interest to the United States. India and China are the two great countries of the world which set up silver as the monetary standard backing their currency issues.

It will be remembered that, during the war, the United States, at the instance of Great Britain, exported millions of dollars worth of silver to India to meet the increased demand consequent on war activity.

Silver is a commodity which varies in price even as coal, grain or similar articles do. Before the war the United States was buying the silver required to make one silver dollar for about fifty cents. Rising in price with other commodities, silver went up to a peak price of $1.26 and this country was faced with the necessity of paying for the silver in a dollar more than the legal tender value of the coin.

Senator Pittman of Nevada, with the aid of Treasury experts, drew a bill designed to stablize the price of silver. It provided that in no case should the United States Mint be required to pay more than one dollar for the ounce of silver required for the coin.

There has been much protest among the silver miners of the West who have declared that the cost of mining silver has risen with the cost of producing other commodities and that they are entitled to a higher price. Nevertheless, the price of silver has dropped down again to a point not far from its pre-war value.

These vicissitudes and fluctuations show how treacherous silver is as a standard of currency value for any country largely engaged in world trade. Any amount of speculation in foreign exchange is invited and more than ordinary astuteness is required in the importer or exporter if he is to keep his business from suddenly being ruined by a shift in the silver quotation.

All these considerations have induced the British government and the Indian authorities to carefully consider a gold standard and it seems likely that such a reform will take place. It appears that certain contracts between the Imperial Bank of India and the Bank of England must be permitted to expire before the change can be made but, as these expirations do take place in a relatively short time, the British and Indian experts already are at work on their plans for the conversion.

Special commissions have made exhaustive investigations into the complicated currency and credit system of India and a number of suggestions have been made but it appears that the one most likely to be adopted provides for the erection of a central bank, which would be a bank authorized to issue notes. The system proposed is not unlike the Federal Reserve System operative in the United States, save that one central bank is proposed rather than a central system composed of twelve units such as we have in this country.

GERMANS EAGER TO GET CROWN AT AMSTERDAM

Hope to Win Laurels in 1928 Olympic Games.

MUST BEAT U. S.

Papers See America "Pricking Up Ears" at Teutons.

BERLIN.—"Will the Germans be able to tear the crown off the heads of the American Olympic team at the 1928 Amsterdam Games, will they mean serious competition for the Americans at all and break the American world hegemony in sports?"

This is the question on the lips of thousands of German sportsmen and it is being ventilated by numerous sporting editors in view of the undoubtedly great success German sportsmen had in the National British Championships and the three-country games at Basel where the Germans beat the elite of the Swiss and French athletes to a frazzle.

Almost every day the papers carry some story about "Uncle Sam pricking his ears" or, "Americans fearing for their athlete hegemony," which shows that they are all looking to the United States for praise or criticism. Most editors warn against premature rejoicing pointing out that the "Americans will double their efforts to make it hard for the Germans."

Two Years Away.

Also stress is laid on the fact that "two years are a long time," that the Amsterdam Games are out of measurable time in the sporting sense. "Plenty of water will go down the rivers before that time," some critics say, "and it is to be shown yet whether the Germans will keep up their good record and be well prepared for the battle."

This, indeed, is one of the weakest points in German sporting life; endurance and keeping fit for a prolonged time. It is one of the drawbacks in German amateur sport that the German "cracks" are not being sufficiently suported by their clubs and by private people. The result is that they are compelled to make a living in the very sense of the word, for the German amateurship regulations are very stringent in that respect. Consequently most of the German stars lack a proper systematic training, with the exception of a few student athletes who are financially independent as they are living on "father's pocket." The "sporting fever" has not yet seized the Germans to an extent that "bosses" and superiors will shut their eyes on their sporting employees' extra holiday on the occasion of big sporting events in Germany or abroad.

Systematic Training.

Anyhow, under the leadership of the Reich coach, the German American Waitzer the German team already started systematic training for the Amsterdam games and the results, so far, have been beyound expectation.

Many critics doubt the German ability to compete successfully with the Americans because Germany has not yet fully developed the type of the "all around" athlete, in which the Americans are excelling and who scored many, many points for their team in all Olympic games. True to his individualistic nature, the German rather developed half a dozen "specialists" who, doubtlessly may be counted among the best athletes of Europe, if not the world.

Among thkese are Dr. Pelzer, of Stettin, the man who won the English mile championship in a world record time and several short distance sprinters including the young students Koernig (Breslau) and Corts (Stuttgart). Also, Hubert Houben, who failed to achieve any notable success while in the states, "is coming back" and ran a life and death race in the German relay team at the three-country games at Basel, Switzerland.

That the Germans are trying hard is shown by the fact that a German jumper of 1,368 meter heighth scored 1,87 meter in high jump that is he jumped about twenty centimeters more than his own heighth, which is certainly not the rule with high jumpers.

Idle curiosity is, probably, the busiest thing on earth.—Cincinnati, O., Times-Star.

Georgia Judge Would Give Auto Thieves Chain Gang Sentences

ATLANTA—Longer terms on Georgia chain gangs were urged by superior judge John T. Humphries in denouncing the practice of giving suspended sentences to youths convicted of stealing automobiles. Judge Humphries made the recommendation in charging the county grand jury.

Pointing out that 1,308 cars were stolen in Atlanta in the space of one year, Judge Humphries declared automobile thievery will never be curbed unless stiffer sentences are imposed.

Judge Humphries also hit the practice of discriminating in favor of youths who came from good families.

BRITAIN FEARS NEW AGITATION IN RED CIRCLES

Release of Five Communist Leaders Brings Anxiety.

OTHERS IN JAIL

Committees Reported Formed to Foster Trouble.

LONDON.—Communist agitation on a wide and increasing scale is feared by the government this month when five of Great Britain's leading Communists are released from the prison where there have been confined since last November for sedition.

An official warning has been issued to the country by the Home Office that a new Communist propaganda campaign is in the making, and that is the plan of the agitators to provoke a further series of strikes and other labor disturbances to prevent the return of industrial peace.

Among the Communists soon to be at liberty again is Albert S. Inkpin, secretary of the Communist party of Great Britain, who has been in numerous clashes with the police and other civil authorities.

Others in Jail.

The others are Harry Pollitt, secretary of the Minority Movement and a member of the Red International; William C. Rust, secretary of the Young Communist League; Walter Hannington, secretary of the Communist Unemployed Worker's Committee Movement; and William Gallacher, a member of the Comunist Executive.

Pending their release, the party's propaganda in Great Britain is said to be under the direction of George Hardy, a former general secretary of the Industrial Workers of the World in the United States. Hardy is the secretary of the National Minority Movement, which has been described by Sir William Joynson-Hicks, the Home Secretary as a branch of the British Communist party.

Hardy recently organized a national conference of the Minority Movement for the purpose of discussing the alleged inability of the present Trade Union leaders to look after the needs of the working classes. The conferences decided to make an effort toward altering present policies of the Trade Union Congress, and has set out to take the lead "in emphasizing the need for unity, nationally and internationally."

Lord Rothermere's View.

The view of Lord Rothermere's Daily Mail on Hardy's activities is that he is engineering a "renewed and more intensive attempt to destroy British industry."

"Several hundred factory committees," the Daily Mail said, "have been formed to foster trouble, and the preliminary agitation is to be carried on largely by means of an increased number of inflammatory workshop papers. The chief object of the mischief-makers is to provoke a repetition of the disturbance thay caused in the mercantile marine a year ago, when a vast tonnage of British shipping was held up, and they are to concentrate also on forcing strikes in the engineering, iron and steel, and textile industries."

It is also declared that the Moscow Communist International has shown some irritation with the failure of the British Communists to promote a real revolution, and have therefore decided upon a new offensive through the agency of the National Minority Movement.

Organization Overhauled.

"With this object," says an authoritative statement, "the organization of the body throughout the country has been overhauled and a large number of professional agitators have been brought into service.

"Provision has been made for the five Communist leaders who were sentenced to a year's imprisonment for seditious conspiracy to take charge of the campaign when they are released from Wandsworth prison."

The government is fully aware of the program for the new propaganda assault, the imprisoned Communists and their associates will be shadowed by Scotland yard detectives from the moment they leave their cells, and it is altogether likely that they will again be brought up against the law if their new utterances or writings are found to be of a sort regarded dangerous to civil peace.

U. S. SOLDIERS WILL BE MADE BEST EDUCATED

"Join Army and go to School," Exclaims Vet.

ORDERS ISSUED

Next War May See Science Triumph Over Strength.

WASHINGTON.—Uncle Sam's military experts have a new goal—to make the American soldier the best educated in the world.

From the highest officer to the lowliest private school days have taken on a real meaning under the new scheme. The West Pointer who used to represent the last word in military preparation now grabs his sheepskin and starts for another Army School.

"Join The Army and Go To School" exclaims the veteran, hard-boiled doughboy in derisive tones. But the highest officers in the Army take the matter more seriously.

The World War brought into play scientific forces on a scale never dreamed of by military experts, and many predict the next war will see the complete triumph of science over brute strength.

The Army War College, housed in an imposing building overlooking the Potomac river, with a "campus" as trim as any to be found throughout the country, has opened its fall term with the same sort of exercises to be found in any other institution of learning.

Grizzled general officers are mong the seventy-six to reach the college for a final determination of their eligibility to the general staff. They listen to lectures and they are called on to "recite."

Scores of other Army schools thruout the country and in the Philippines call the lesser officers, the non-coms and the privates. The War Department is now detailing to many state universities a limited number of officers whose tuition is paid in order that they may develop their knowledge of some particular subject and become an expert in time of war.

Every private is being urged to take advantage of wide opportunities presented for increasing his general learning, and all sorts of trade instruction is offered. Some schools are required, but many are voluntarily.

An Army captain who commanded a cavalry troop tells of a bright, young chap who had been employed by a telephone company as a laborer and after he entered the Army refused to listen to suggestions for volunteer schooling. After patient argument he was induced to take up the study of electricity. Now, says the captain, he is boss of the telephone company outfi in which he used to be a laborer.

The largest Army schools are to be found at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, and Camp Benning, Georgia, devoted chiefly to military subjects. But general instruction is scheduled there as well as in schools conducted at many army posts.

U. S. SOLDIERS WILL BE MADE BEST EDUCATED

"Join Army and go to School," Exclaims Vet.

ORDERS ISSUED

Next War May See Science Triumph Over Strength.

WASHINGTON.—Uncle Sam's military experts have a new goal—to make the American soldier the best educated in the world.

From the highest officer to the lowliest private school days have taken on a real meaning under the new scheme. The West Pointer who used to represent the last word in military preparation now grabs his sheepskin and starts for another Army School.

"Join The Army and Go To School" exclaims the veteran, hard-boiled doughboy in derisive tones. But the highest officers in the Army take the matter more seriously.

The World War brought into play scientific forces on a scale never dreamed of by military experts, and many predict the next war will see the complete triumph of science over brute strength.

The Army War College, housed in an imposing building overlooking the Potomac river, with a "campus" as trim as any to be found throughout the country, has opened its fall term with the same sort of exercises to be found in any other institution of learning.

Grizzled general officers are mong the seventy-six to reach the college for a final determination of their eligibility to the general staff. They listen to lectures and they are called on to "recite."

Scores of other Army schools thruout the country and in the Philippines call the lesser officers, the non-coms and the privates. The War Department is now detailing to many state universities a limited number of officers whose tuition is paid in order that they may develop their knowledge of some particular subject and become an expert in time of war.

Every private is being urged to take advantage of wide opportunities presented for increasing his general learning, and all sorts of trade instruction is offered. Some schools are required, but many are voluntarily.

An Army captain who commanded a cavalry troop tells of a bright, young chap who had been employed by a telephone company as a laborer and after he entered the Army refused to listen to suggestions for volunteer schooling. After patient argument he was induced to take up the study of electricity. Now, says the captain, he is boss of the telephone company outfi in which he used to be a laborer.

The largest Army schools are to be found at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, and Camp Benning, Georgia, devoted chiefly to military subjects. But general instruction is scheduled there as well as in schools conducted at many army posts.

STORM WREAKS HAVOC HERE

Cellars, Streets Flooded as Rain Sweeps City.

Scenes of devastation of a nature even more pronounced than on the occasion of previous storms marked the western section of the city today as a result of another terrific rainstorm early this morning.

Streets were inundated, cellars were filled with water and mud and streams of water poured through yards of residences along various streets and byways for the Fourteenth street to Eighteenth street district.

As the rain abated early this morning, Commerce street from Eighteenth to as far as Fourteenth, gave the appearance of a creek, water running curb high and in places, over the sidewalks and into yards.

Several residents of the district characterized the results of the storm as the worst in a long period of years and even worse than the other storms of recent weeks.

Two feet of water was reported in front yards along sections of Maple avenue.

The McQueen's Run Hollow sewer, broken near Maple avenue in the first of the series of rain storms, disgorged torrents of water, accompanied by rock and gravel, as the sewer, filled to capacity, could carry no more.

Streams of water coursed through yards in Eighteenth street. This morning property owners were out in force with hoes, rakes, picks and shovels in an effort to clear their yards and sidewalks.

Clark avenue, from Eighteenth street to the McLain company brick yard, was covered with rock, gravel and earth. A portion of the street, at the Twenty-second street-Clark avenue intersection was washed away as water pounded through the sewer underneath the street.

The city service department again was on the job this morning its efforts of the past several weeks having been practically wasted as a result of this morning's rain.

As a result of its representation, the Wellsville club won sixth place in the attendance rating, and received a prize, a leather traveling bag, as the result. Approximately 10 attendance prizes were awarded under auspices of the Columbus club.

GRID SQUADS SET FOR CLASH

Former High Stars Will Battle Klinck's Eleven.

With both elevens in condition, the lid will be pried off the local scholastic football season tomorrow afternoon at Hammond park when Coach Earl Klinck's school lads clash with the Alumni.

Other members of the squad will include Everett Andrews, Paul Kessell and Dick Duty.

JACK DEMPSEY SHORN OF TITLE IN UNDRAMATIC SETTING

Wanted To Die With Good Sock On Button But He Didn't Get It

Second Rate Fighter, Says Walsh, is New Heavyweight Champion of World; Jess Willard's Plight Recalled as "Man Killer" is Tamed by Gene, the Fighting Marine.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 24.—"When I lose my title, I'll be flat on my back and thoroughly socked on the chin."

That has been Jack Dempsey's story for years, but last night he was not flat on his back, nor was he too thoroughly socked on the chin, but he lost the heavyweight championship of the world, and he lost it in a manner that was not dramatic, nor even impressive. He simply had a fight with another man, and the other man won.

The other man won. It wasn't close, it wasn't even a good fight. The man that everybody has been talking about for years went down to defeat without flying the colorers a good, game fighting American. He had his chance. He hit the challenger on the jowl often, but he didn't have the punch and a second rate fighter went out to win the heavyweight title, the greatest gift competitive sport has to offer.

Gene Tunney is not a fighter. Personally, I could think of three men who could beat him today and for all I know, his winning of the heavyweight title may mean a round robin series of fights in which it would be entirely possible for a contender like Johnny Risko to win the title. That's how bad Gene Tunney is.

Tunney has his chance to make a showing in beating Dempsey, but he would not take advantage of it. He fought a retreating fight, scoring only because the former champion couldn't hit him, and the challenger, soon to be crowned, was able to land with counter-punches.

But it was a tragic thing to see Dempsey lose as he did lose. Whatever idea he may have had in mind became a futile, empty gesture. When he went back to his corner, from the first round, in which he took a thorough shellacking, Gene Normile attempted to tell the champion what to do. It was one of the few laughs of the occasion. Jack simply pushed Gene's wagging jaw away with his gloved hand, and that was that.

The champion, soon to be shorn of his title, was Jess Willard all over punch on the jaw and thought he was the only guy who knew what it was again, a man who was due to take a all about.

When Willard was socked on the chin at Toledo he went down and he tried to laugh. Dempsey was socked on the chin last night. He did not go down, but he tried to laugh. He couldn't. That's why it was tragic. A man who had popped off all his life about dying with his boots on died a competitive death, and in the dying failed to give the customers so much as a thrill.

school boy caught playing hookey—as indeed, he had, for more than two years.

Tunney was as nervous as a bride, sparring, backing, boxing until it dawned on him that he was roped in with a phantom, a shadow without substance.

Even then he never assumed the aggressive, except in the last two rounds, when he had the championship in his hand and should have taken no chances.

An astoundingly stupid fighter is this Tunney. He won every round from what had been a truly miraculous champion, and yet he came forth convicted of almost every misdemeanor known to smart ring generalship. He could have knocked Dempsey out in the first round if he had forced his way; he should have dispatched him in any of the following rounds. But, when he had the world to gain he was careful, and when he was already champion before the decision that made him so, he was undecided, now forcing it, again taking to his heels.

Dempsey was a pathetic spectacle. He started with his face green, set in a silly grin. He tried to put on the snarl of the murderer, but his features wouldn't respond because his heart wasn't there. After he got a few cracks on his jaw, he folded up as he did in the first eleven rounds of his match with the late Bill Brennan.

Spitting gobs of blood, his left eye closed tight, his right cut and bleeding from a ragged wound, he bobbed and crouched and missed and swung and puffed and tried to look ferocious.

Like a grotesque, synthetic thing, his tailor-made nose stood forth in the middle of the face like some fantastic butterfly that had fluttered into a slaughter house.

TUNNEY SHORT AS CHAMPION

Greatest Title Falls Into Low Estate Says Writer.

By Jack Lait.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 24.—The heavyweight champion has paid that toll which the proverbs say must go to youth. Jack Dempsey, who, at his worst can always tell his children's children that he once was a champion, lost in the sesqui-centennial stadium last night to one Gene Tunney, who though he is the champion will never be a champion.

The heavyweight title, proudly owned by Sullivan, Corbett, Fitzsimmons, Jeffries, has indeed fallen into a low estate in the stewardship of the intellectual Tunney. At least three men fought in the preliminaries who could lick him the best day of his life, which is today.

The lamb slew the butcher, yes. But it was an active, vigorous lamb and a weary, sagging old butcher who showed upon a face that once was famous for its perfect delineation of the fighting man, a careworn and tortured expression.

The "experts" who said that Dempsey was in the pink of fighting condition should wash their mouths with soap. This veteran reporter, who has taken in every important boxing match of his period, and that ranges back a few years, has never seen a sorrier defender of a title since that pitiful afternoon in Reno when Jim Jeffries staggered forth to do battle with Johnson.

It took no sharpshooters to call the turn. It required no referee or meticulously chosen judges. Before Jack Dempsey, the killer of old, had dragged his listless and lifeless carcass half way across the soggy ring at the clang of the opening gong, it was a foregone cinch. The man was unfit to fight. No contender in history ever got the break that Tunney did—weighing 185 pounds, a defense boxer, a so-so hitter and a 3-to-1 outsider, catches the champion of champions in such a situation and coming out the monarch of pugilism.

The whole business was off key. Fancy a heavyweight king who drew 132,000 people and $2,000,00 never being introduced and the alleged aspirant not even rising to take a bow when his name was called.

It was raining. Tex Rickard had taken his pitcher to the well once too often. He had put on seemingly endless preliminaries, meaningless combats between unimportant nobodys, until far after nine-thirty. And by the time Dempsey and Tunney got into the ring, it was pouring so that no one cared much about anything. Then they started taping—yards and yards of gauze they wound about the hands of the supposedly two best gladiators in the whole world.

And when it finally started, it was wetter than ever. Dempsey, that notorious devastating mauler, shuffled out of his corner with the look of a

"BEAT ME AT MY OWN GAME"

"No, I Haven't Any Alibi," Says Defeated Champ.

By James L. Kilgallen.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 24.—"Tunney beat me—he beat me fairly and squarely." Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion of the world, this morning looked back over the tragic, to him, events of the night before.

"He met me at my own game, slugging, and he whipped me at it."

A pause. Obviously the dethroned champ didn't want to talk. Then:

"I haven't any alibi. I just don't know what was the matter with me. I couldn't get going. I fought a terrible fight—a terrible fight."

No one who watched the once great Dempsey battle Tunney in a lashing rainstorm in that 20-foot elevated ring beneath blazing Kleigh lights with 130,000 people watching the drama with death-like stillness in the great U-shaped sesqui-cenntennial stadium, will deny that Dempsey fought a bad fight.

For no one who witnessed it close up will ever forget the spectacle of the bloody Dempsey walking to his corner when the bell rang at the end of the tenth round.

The light of defeat was in Dempsey's eyes. He knew he was beaten and he seemed about to run out of the ring without awaiting the official decision.

Instead, however, he checked himself, and slowly walked to his corner. His bloody head bowed, and extending his hands across the ropes and looking out upon the vast, rain soaked throng, he cried like a schoolboy.

Yes, cried. Tears coursed down his cheeks and he tried to brush them away with his blood-stained gloves.

His face had been literally cut to ribbons. His left eye was completely closed and blood was oozing from it. The left side of his face had been battered out of proportion, giving him a weird, ghastly appearance.

There was a deep horizontal gash about two inches in width directly below his right eye. Blood was trickling down from his wound. His bronzed face had been pummeled so much that it resembled the pinkness of a baby's.

The famous scowl was gone. Instead, despair was etched deeply into his grim features and he seemed to be in the deepest mental pain. His thoughts, one surmised, cut him worse even than Tunney's blows.

Over in the other corner, the victorious Tunney, all smiles, and hardly showing a mark, was busy shaking hands. Photographers, anticipating the announcement declaring Tunney the victor, leaped into the ring calling upon him to pose for a picture. Dempsey was ignored by the camera-

Fight Results

AT PHILADELPHIA—Gene Tunney won decision and world's heavyweight championship from Jack Dempsey, ten rounds.

Tommy Loughran, of Philadelphia, won decision over Jimmy Delaney, St. Paul, six rounds.

Harry Persons, of Sweden, defeated Sergeant Jack Adams, St. Louis, on technical knockout in the fourth of scheduled six rounds.

Monte Munn, Lincoln, Neb., knocked out Hugo Clements, Camden, N. J., in first of scheduled six rounds.

Yale Okun, of New York, won decision over Martin Burke, New Orleans, six rounds.

"I EXPECT TO BE REAL CHAMP"

By Garry Schumacher.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 24—"What has been the greatest ambition of my life has been realized. I have won the heavyweight championship of the world.

"But in winning the championship I set another goal for myself. And that is to be worthy of the title; to be a champion in fact as well as in name.'

In that earnest and modest manner did Gene Tunney, the devil dog pride of Greenwich Village, New York's first heavyweight champion, accept the honors he won with the weight of his fist in the rain soaked sesqui arena last night.

"I never had any doubt as to the outcome. I was confident when the match was made that I would be the next champion of the world and my confidence increased as my training progressed. I knew I was 'right' and I was ready to make the fight of my career.

"In the ring I was sure of myself every second. Not one of Dempsey's punches hurt me. I think I proved to the great crowd that I was his master.

"Jack fought a clean fight and the referee, Tommy Reilly, handled it perfectly. It was rather unfortunate the bout was marred by rain but I think it handicapped me more than Dempsey.

men. And into the ring jumped a dozen or more marine officers, surrounding the victor and slapping him on the back effectionately. It was Tunney's big money. He had proved to everybody's satisfaction what he said he believed he was—a "man of destiny" as far as the heavyweight championship of the world was concerned.

NEWELL PLANS STRONG ELEVEN

First Formal Practice Scheduled for Monday.

In an effort to make the Laughlin football team one of the strongest semi-pro grid organizations in this section of the valley, officials of the club are scouring the district for the best material available.

A first class team is the object of the Laughlin plant and no stone will be left unturned in efforts of the organization's management.

The squad, according to present arrangements, will be made up of players from all six shops of the company, including both those at Newell and at East End, and, as well, best material available from outside sources, it was announced today.

The management places special emphasis on the latter arrangement and is now in search of gridders who will bolster the shop roster.

Although several informal workouts have already been held, the first regular workout is scheduled for Monday evening at 5:30 o'clock at Newell park and it is possible that at least three other practice sessions will be held during the week.

The Laughlin eleven is fortunate in obtaining the services of Ernest Bucher, former high school and Denison O., athlete who has also had experience in the coaching line.

PENNANT RACES

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—If Cincinnati wins only one game of its doubleheader with Philadelphia this afternoon, St. Louis can clinch the National league pennant by beating the Giants. Should the Reds win all their remaining games, including the contest with St. Louis on Sunday, St. Louis would be forced to defeat the Giants both today and tomorrow in order to do better than tie Cincinnati.

The Reds had a close call yesterday, barely managing to hold the Phillies to a fifteen-inning tie. This game will be played off in this afternoons doubleheader.

The Yankees play the St. Louis Browns today while Cleveland engages the Athletics in a doubleheader. New York needs three victories out of four to clinch the pennant, providing Cleveland makes a clean sweep.

St. Louis led the Reds by two and one-half games this morning, while the Indians trailed the Yankees by two games.

The Reds could do no better than tie the Phillies after battling fifteen innings. The score was 6 to 6, with Carlson holding his own against Rixey and Donohue. An error by Roush left two men score.

Dempsey Praises Tunney New Champ

Jack Dempsey, dethroned champ, has nothing but praise for the new title holder.

"I think that in meeting Gene Tunney, I met the best man, by far, that I have ever faced in my career," he declared today.

"Gene has been a credit to the game, through all the years he has been fighting and the real comfort I have in surrendering my title to him is that the new heavyweight champion is an honor to the game, a fine young American and one who will always uplift boxing."

But, when he had the world to gain he was careful, and when he was already champion before the decision that made him so, he was undecided, now forcing it, again taking to his heels.

Dempsey was a pathetic spectacle. He started with his face green, set in a silly grin. He tried to put on the snarl of the murderer, but his features wouldn't respond because his heart wasn't there. After he got a few cracks on his jaw, he folded up as he did in the first eleven rounds of his match with the late Bill Brennan.

Spitting gobs of blood, his left eye closed tight, his right cut and bleeding from a ragged wound, he bobbed and crouched and missed and swung and puffed and tried to look ferocious.

Like a grotesque, synthetic thing, his tailor-made nose stood forth in the middle of the face like some fantastic butterfly that had fluttered into a slaughter house.

TUNNEY SHORT AS CHAMPION

Greatest Title Falls Into Low Estate Says Writer.

By Jack Lait.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 24.—The heavyweight champion has paid that toll which the proverbs say must go to youth. Jack Dempsey, who, at his worst can always tell his children's children that he once was a champion, lost in the sesqui-centennial stadium last night to one Gene Tunney, who though he is the champion will never be a champion.

The heavyweight title, proudly owned by Sullivan, Corbett, Fitzsimmons, Jeffries, has indeed fallen into a low estate in the stewardship of the intellectual Tunney. At least three men fought in the preliminaries who could lick him the best day of his life, which is today.

The lamb slew the butcher, yes. But it was an active, vigorous lamb and a weary, sagging old butcher who showed upon a face that once was famous for its perfect delineation of the fighting man, a careworn and tortured expression.

The "experts" who said that Dempsey was in the pink of fighting condition should wash their mouths with soap. This veteran reporter, who has taken in every important boxing match of his period, and that ranges back a few years, has never seen a sorrier defender of a title since that pitiful afternoon in Reno when Jim Jeffries staggered forth to do battle with Johnson.

It took no sharpshooters to call the turn. It required no referee or meticulously chosen judges. Before Jack Dempsey, the killer of old, had dragged his listless and lifeless carcass half way across the soggy ring at the clang of the opening gong, it was a foregone cinch. The man was unfit to fight. No contender in history ever got the break that Tunney did—weighing 185 pounds, a defense boxer, a so-so hitter and a 3-to-1 outsider, catches the champion of champions in such a situation and coming out the monarch of pugilism.

The whole business was off key. Fancy a heavyweight king who drew 132,000 people and $2,000,00 never being introduced and the alleged aspirant not even rising to take a bow when his name was called.

It was raining. Tex Rickard had taken his pitcher to the well once too often. He had put on seemingly endless preliminaries, meaningless combats between unimportant nobodys, until far after nine-thirty. And by the time Dempsey and Tunney got into the ring, it was pouring so that no one cared much about anything. Then they started taping—yards and yards of gauze they wound about the hands of the supposedly two best gladiators in the whole world.

And when it finally started, it was wetter than ever. Dempsey, that notorious devastating mauler, shuffled out of his corner with the look of a

"BEAT ME AT MY OWN GAME"

"No, I Haven't Any Alibi," Says Defeated Champ.

By James L. Kilgallen.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 24.—"Tunney beat me—he beat me fairly and squarely." Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion of the world, this morning looked back over the tragic, to him, events of the night before.

"He met me at my own game, slugging, and he whipped me at it."

A pause. Obviously the dethroned champ didn't want to talk. Then:

"I haven't any alibi. I just don't know what was the matter with me. I couldn't get going. I fought a terrible fight—a terrible fight."

No one who watched the once great Dempsey battle Tunney in a lashing rainstorm in that 20-foot elevated ring beneath blazing Kleigh lights with 130,000 people watching the drama with death-like stillness in the great U-shaped sesqui-cenntennial stadium, will deny that Dempsey fought a bad fight.

For no one who witnessed it close up will ever forget the spectacle of the bloody Dempsey walking to his corner when the bell rang at the end of the tenth round.

The light of defeat was in Dempsey's eyes. He knew he was beaten and he seemed about to run out of the ring without awaiting the official decision.

Instead, however, he checked himself, and slowly walked to his corner. His bloody head bowed, and extending his hands across the ropes and looking out upon the vast, rain soaked throng, he cried like a schoolboy.

Yes, cried. Tears coursed down his cheeks and he tried to brush them away with his blood-stained gloves.

His face had been literally cut to ribbons. His left eye was completely closed and blood was oozing from it. The left side of his face had been battered out of proportion, giving him a weird, ghastly appearance.

There was a deep horizontal gash about two inches in width directly below his right eye. Blood was trickling down from his wound. His bronzed face had been pummeled so much that it resembled the pinkness of a baby's.

The famous scowl was gone. Instead, despair was etched deeply into his grim features and he seemed to be in the deepest mental pain. His thoughts, one surmised, cut him worse even than Tunney's blows.

Over in the other corner, the victorious Tunney, all smiles, and hardly showing a mark, was busy shaking hands. Photographers, anticipating the announcement declaring Tunney the victor, leaped into the ring calling upon him to pose for a picture. Dempsey was ignored by the camera-

"I EXPECT TO BE REAL CHAMP"

By Garry Schumacher.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 24—"What has been the greatest ambition of my life has been realized. I have won the heavyweight championship of the world.

"But in winning the championship I set another goal for myself. And that is to be worthy of the title; to be a champion in fact as well as in name.'

In that earnest and modest manner did Gene Tunney, the devil dog pride of Greenwich Village, New York's first heavyweight champion, accept the honors he won with the weight of his fist in the rain soaked sesqui arena last night.

"I never had any doubt as to the outcome. I was confident when the match was made that I would be the next champion of the world and my confidence increased as my training progressed. I knew I was 'right' and I was ready to make the fight of my career.

"In the ring I was sure of myself every second. Not one of Dempsey's punches hurt me. I think I proved to the great crowd that I was his master.

"Jack fought a clean fight and the referee, Tommy Reilly, handled it perfectly. It was rather unfortunate the bout was marred by rain but I think it handicapped me more than Dempsey.

men. And into the ring jumped a dozen or more marine officers, surrounding the victor and slapping him on the back effectionately. It was Tunney's big money. He had proved to everybody's satisfaction what he said he believed he was—a "man of destiny" as far as the heavyweight championship of the world was concerned.

NEWELL PLANS STRONG ELEVEN

First Formal Practice Scheduled for Monday.

In an effort to make the Laughlin football team one of the strongest semi-pro grid organizations in this section of the valley, officials of the club are scouring the district for the best material available.

A first class team is the object of the Laughlin plant and no stone will be left unturned in efforts of the organization's management.

The squad, according to present arrangements, will be made up of players from all six shops of the company, including both those at Newell and at East End, and, as well, best material available from outside sources, it was announced today.

The management places special emphasis on the latter arrangement and is now in search of gridders who will bolster the shop roster.

Although several informal workouts have already been held, the first regular workout is scheduled for Monday evening at 5:30 o'clock at Newell park and it is possible that at least three other practice sessions will be held during the week.

The Laughlin eleven is fortunate in obtaining the services of Ernest Bucher, former high school and Denison O., athlete who has also had experience in the coaching line.

PENNANT RACES

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—If Cincinnati wins only one game of its doubleheader with Philadelphia this afternoon, St. Louis can clinch the National league pennant by beating the Giants. Should the Reds win all their remaining games, including the contest with St. Louis on Sunday, St. Louis would be forced to defeat the Giants both today and tomorrow in order to do better than tie Cincinnati.

The Reds had a close call yesterday, barely managing to hold the Phillies to a fifteen-inning tie. This game will be played off in this afternoons doubleheader.

The Yankees play the St. Louis Browns today while Cleveland engages the Athletics in a doubleheader. New York needs three victories out of four to clinch the pennant, providing Cleveland makes a clean sweep.

St. Louis led the Reds by two and one-half games this morning, while the Indians trailed the Yankees by two games.

The Reds could do no better than tie the Phillies after battling fifteen innings. The score was 6 to 6, with Carlson holding his own against Rixey and Donohue. An error by Roush left two men score.

Dempsey Praises Tunney New Champ

Jack Dempsey, dethroned champ, has nothing but praise for the new title holder.

"I think that in meeting Gene Tunney, I met the best man, by far, that I have ever faced in my career," he declared today.

"Gene has been a credit to the game, through all the years he has been fighting and the real comfort I have in surrendering my title to him is that the new heavyweight champion is an honor to the game, a fine young American and one who will always uplift boxing."

City League Flag Rivals Will Finish Series Tomorrow

Will Resume Warfare On Chester Diamond

SUSTAINED interest is strongly manifest in the forthcoming deciding contest of the City Industrial Baseball League's "baby world's series" between Chester and Newell, which will be staged tomorrow afternoon at Smith field, Chester, beginning at 3 o'clock.

Besides being the final game of the series and the season it will also qualify as a benefit contest for Carl Moran, former league player and scorer, who, in an unfortunate accident at Midland, Pa., lost a leg last month.

The contest will go the full route.

The two flag rivals failed to settle the question of supremacy in last Wednesday's contest at Chester as a result of a rain storm in the fourth inning which ended the clash before the half way mark had been reached.

When hostilities were suspended, Sol McCoy's Laughlin aggregation was leading by a count of 7 to 4.

Mundy's Stars Open Series Sunday With Salem Elks On Sherwood Lot

One district baseball series here will close on Saturday and another will be opened on Sunday. City Industrial league teams, weather permitting, will finish the season tomorrow. On Sunday afternoon at Sherwood, the East Liverpool All Stars, including players picked from Industrial league clubs, will tackle the Salem Elks in the first tilt of a three-game series.

Although labeled a Salem team, the north county combine is more or less of a local institution, inasmuch as seven of the club's roster of 10 are Ceramic City players.

These performers joined the Salem club slightly before mid-season and the Salemites immediately became a potent aggregation.

Bill Mundy, manager of the All Stars, has lined up Mike Cebula and Paul Bennett, of the Chester team, and Digman, of Laughlin, as a pitching staff.

Hunselman, of Laughlin, will do the receiving. The infield defenses will be taken care of by Herbert, Laughlin; Wilde, Chester; McMath, Chester; Eddie Bayley, Turk-Nash; Mundy, Victory Motors; Pete Cebula, Chester; and the outgarden by Parsons, Laughlin; Evans, Chester; with Wilde, Mundy, Cebula, Digman and Bennett also available.

The Elks will play McConnell in center, Alf Bayley in left, Finley at short, Simcox at third, Pollock at first, Sanders in right, Scullion at second and Smith behind the bat. Deshler and Sainor constitute the pitching staff.

Sunday's game is billed to start at 3 o'clock.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON, Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

The clubhead should always be felt in the fingers and all good golfers develop this sense of touch. The quickest way to find out what this touch is can be found by taking a club in the address position and then moving it out, as in the back swing, until it is out fairly straight from you. Arrest it there in such position that the shaft extends straight out from your arms. Now feel the weight of it against your fingers. By lifting it up slightly and letting it fall against the fingers you get a rubber-like action that reveals plainly the weight that is in the clubhead. It is always well to so control the back swing that this weight is felt. The player should be conscious of it all the time.

"It is Consoling to Know Jack Fought it Out to End—Estelle

LIMA, O., Sept. 24.—"It is consoling to know that Jack finished on his feet, and fought it out to the end," was the comment of Estelle Taylor Dempsey, wife of the former heavyweight champion, when she learned of Dempsey's defeat.

Mrs. Dempsey, enroute to Philadelphia, first learned of the debacle to Dempsey at Fort Wayne, Ind.

Refusing to believe the report as contained in Indiana newspaper extras, she sought confirmation in Lima.

She told newspaper reporters that Dempsey probably would demand a return match with Tunney, and expressed confidence that he would regain his title within a few months, if this demand is granted.

"I just can't believe it— it just can't be true," was the first comment of the boxer's movie-star wife when she was told that Dempsey had been defeated.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON,
Maker of 51 Golf Champions.
"Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

The clubhead should always be felt in the fingers and all good golfers develop this sense of touch. The quickest way to find out what this touch is can be found by taking a club in the address position and then moving it out, as in the back swing, until it is out fairly straight from you. Arrest it there in such position that the shaft extends straight out from your arms. Now feel the weight of it against your fingers. By lifting it up slightly and letting it fall against the fingers you get a rubber-like action that reveals plainly the weight that is in the clubhead. It is always well to so control the back swing that this weight is felt. The player should be conscious of it all the time.

"It is Consoling to Know Jack Fought it Out to End—Estelle

LIMA, O., Sept. 24.—"It is consoling to know that Jack finished on his feet, and fought it out to the end," was the comment of Estelle Taylor Dempsey, wife of the former heavyweight champion, when she learned of Dempsey's defeat.

Mrs. Dempsey, enroute to Philadelphia, first learned of the debacle to Dempsey at Fort Wayne, Ind.

Refusing to believe the report as contained in Indiana newspaper extras, she sought confirmation in Lima.

She told newspaper reporters that Dempsey probably would demand a return match with Tunney, and expressed confidence that he would regain his title within a few months, if this demand is granted.

"I just can't believe it— it just can't be true," was the first comment of the boxer's movie-star wife when she was told that Dempsey had been defeated.

courses. The route taken was virtually the same as that of the cyclone in 1924, which caused approximately 75 deaths and leveled Lorain.

Yesterday's storm broke just as country schools were adjourning. Near Huron one school teacher, seeing the ominous clouds approaching, quickly herded her students to a point of safety a few seconds before the building was demolished.

Hundreds of trees were uprooted, roofs damaged and windows shattered when the tornado passed over Bowling Green, causing about $2,000 damage.

Frightened citizens lay on the ground in terror as the twister passed 200 feet above the city—too high to exercise the full force of its power.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Short covering induced by the continuance of the 4 per cent rediscount rate of the New York Reserve bank and the improvement in the general position of the Reserve banks, caused a moderate rally in stock prices at the beginning of trading today. Dullness was the principal feature of the speculative markets, however, and only in outstanding stocks was there any disposition to follow up gained by the moderate advances in opening prices.

The continuance of the 4 per cent rediscount rate was not a great surprise to Wall street, in view of the failure of the outside banks to take such action earlier in the week. New York and Boston banks gained about 5 per cent in the ratio of their reserves to resources, while the Reserve system as a whole gained 1.5 per cent. Cotton prices made a moderate recovery from yesterday's severe slump, while, grain prices were slightly reactionary.

Most of the rails were higher in a quiet and featureless market after the first period. Stocks of the Southern Transportation companies and the Van Sweringen Nickel Plate group made the best showing. Equipment stocks declined, Pullman losing about 3 points.

Pools in the specialties did not relax. A new movement was started in advance resumely common and preferred, which led activity in the specialties. Warner Brothers pictures advanced 4 points. Motor stocks were firm at the start.

1 Dead, 4 Hurt in Storm

Trees Are Uprooted.

Trees, telephone and trolley poles were uprooted.

Traffic over the Y. & O. railroad was held up for about two hours while a repair crew from the Leetonia car barn removed debris from the tracks.

The steady rainfall, which continued for most of the night, caused further damage. Debris washed from the hillside near Brady's cut covered both the east and west bound tracks of the main street car line to Wellsville to a depth of several feet. The traction company operated motor busses between Wellsville and East Liverpool this morning in lieu of street car service. Because of another slide, just west of Wellsville, interurban cars from Steubenville operated only as far as the children's home in Yellow Creek.

Hundreds of telephone lines in East Liverpool and vicinity and about 15 toll lines were put out of commission by the storm, officials of the Ohio Bell company said. Passenger trains on the C. & P. division were running about a half hour late this morning due to slides near Empire. All traffic over the Panhandle division between Chester and Steubenville was halted because of slides near Newell and Kenilworth.

Baby Hurled 200 Feet.

Cellars along Virginia avenue and First avenue, East End, were flooded when the run which crosses Virginia avenue overflowed during the night. A sewer in the lower end of Wellsville, being repaired from a previous storm, overflowed and inundated a half dozen or more streets. Considerable damage was also done to the hillside streets in East Liverpool and Wellsville.

In addition to the Thomas Beadle home, residences occupied by Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Layman, parents of Mrs. Beadle; Nick tapanovich, James Burnip and Charles Reynolds, near the Stop 47 territory, and the home of Charles Lewis in Summitville were wrecked.

Mrs. Beadle and her two children, Joseph and Betty Jean, two months old, were in their house when the storm broke. The tornado first started with a heavy rainfall, the cyclonic winds following about half an hour later. The twister lifted the Beadle home from its foundation and carried it into an open field about 100 feet distant. Mrs. Beadle and her son were beneath the wreckage of the house, while the infant was found about 200 feet away.

Homes Are Carried Away.

Young Stapanovich, who lives with his father, Nick Stapanovich, rushed to the cellar of their home when he saw nearby buildings being swept away. He had just reached the basement when the house was carried away and wrecked in the roadway. His left leg was caught beneath a section of the falling chimney.

Burnip and William Gross, both of Salineville, who occupied a two-room frame dwelling owned by Frank Lowe were in the house when the twister swept the building from its foundation. Burnip was cut on the head, face and one leg by falling timbers but Gross escaped unhurt. The wreckage was scattered over the roadway in front of the home.

Mrs. Layman and her 5-year-old son, John, were in their house located close to the Beadle home. Neither was hurt.

Homes occupied by George Tishman, Everett Crawford, John Godwin, Samuel Gregg, store keeper, and an unoccupied house, owned by Frank Lowe, were damaged. Chicken coops, barns and other outbuildings on the Crawford and Gregg places were wrecked.

Garages Are Destroyed.

The tornado which covered a path about 300 yards in width, struck a garage owned and occupied by Harry Wilkinson, wrecked the building and damaged a Ford automobile housed within. Fruit trees and a grape arbor on the Wilkinson place were ruined.

The home, barn and garage on the Charles Reynolds place, about a mile from Stop 47, near the Wellsville-West Point road, were leveled. Edward Reynolds, 18, and Lawrence Reynolds, 20, sons, and Russell Backus, 16, a companion, had narrow escapes from injury. Nellie Reynolds, 16, a daughter, was fleeing to safety when she was struck in the back with a flying copper kettle which had been picked up by the terrific wind.

Thomas Beadle, father of the dead Beadle boy, was at work in the Brokaw coal mine, about a mile distant, when he was advised by the son of a neighbor that the storm had wrecked his home. He hurried to the scene, but before he arrived Mrs. Beadle and her two children had been carried into the nearby Tishman home.

Doctors nad Nurses Called.

No telephones are located in the Stop 47 district, and calls for doctors and nurses were sent from the Stop 55 district. Dr. F. F. Davis, who was at the Frank O'Hanlon filling station, about a mile and a half from the storm area, when the call came for help was the first to reach the injured. Drs. W. A. Hobbs, R. J. Marshall and A. L. Turner, of this city, and V. E. McEldowney of Newell hurried to the scene in automobiles. Four nurses were rushed from the City hospital. An ambulance and another automobile were sent by E. G. Sturgis.

Dr. Davis attended Burnip and Stapanovich, while Drs. Turner and McEldowney looked after Mrs. Beadle and her 2-year-old boy. Both were brought to the hospital in the Sturgis ambulance. Drs. Turner and McEldowney being assisted at the hospital by Dr. C. H. Bailey.

The tornado missed the Hammond school, less than a half mile from the Stop 47 district, where about 50 children, many of them living in the storm area, were in session. Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Beadle, parents of Thomas Beadle, took refuge in the Brokaw coal mine, just across the railroad tracks from their home, when they saw the storm approaching. They were unhurt and their home escaped damage. Most of the men residing in and around the Stop 47 district are employed by either the Penn-Ohio Coal company or the Brokaw coal company.

Telephone Wires Torn Down.

The storm struck the Fred Millward place on the Wellsville, West Point road, shattering almost every window in the house, wrecking a chicken coop and uprooting five large walnut trees in the front yard. A gas station conducted by Millward, near his house, escaped damage. Telephone wires along the road near the Millward home were torn from the poles by falling trees which severed communication with West Point and other northern points.

Four Salineville miners, motoring from West Point where they are employed, to their homes, were forced to take refuge in the Millward home when the wind caught the top of their automobile and carried it into a field several hundred feet distant from the roadway.

Farm buildings are reported to have suffered in the Millport, Summitville, Hammondsville and Mechanicstown district, where the tornado apparently entered the county. Two poultry houses on the Wilson Hull farm, one and one half miles from Salineville, were carried onto an adjoining farm. One hundred chickens were killed. Two hay stacks were swept away by the wind, and two porches torn from the house. Several fruit trees were uprooted.

The home of Cecil Lewis, near Summitville, was also damaged. The family was absent from the house at the time. The roof was carried from the home of Thomas Carey in the same district. A barn on the farm occupied by Harvey Phillips, two miles east of Summitville, was also razed.

School Teacher is Heroine.

Miss Alice Diahl, teacher at the Silver Ridge school, Farnklin township, played the role of a heroine during the storm which swept that section.

Sensing the seriousness of the situation, she assembled the children in one of the two outbuildings near the school before the storm broke. She had no sooner cleared the building when the wind wrecked the belfry and the heavy bell went crashing through the roof into the room. The other building on the school property was wrecked.

Victims of the tornado in the vicinity of Stop 47 were being cared for in the homes of relatives and neighbors today. The Stapanovich boy was bedfast in the home of Samuel Gregg. Several of the victims are reported to be in destitute circumstances.

Telephone Repairmen on Job.

Telephone repair crews were on the job early this morning and expect to have most of the disabled lines in service before evening. East Liverpool was without telephonic communication with Lisbon and Salem from yesterday afternoon until an early hour this morning.

Section crews of the Steubenville, East Liverpool & Beaver Valley Traction company also started to work this morning to clear debris from the tracks near Brady's cut and at the lower end of Wellsville. Cars started to single track past the scene of the Brady cut slide at 9 o'clock this morning but through interurban service to Steubenville will not be re-established until evening, street car company officials said. Regular schedules were being maintained on the Y. & O. line between East Liverpool and Salem.

Funeral services for the Beadle child will be conducted in the E. G. Sturgis funeral home, West Fifth street, at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon in charge of Rev. Thomas E. Walsh, pastor of the St. Aloysius church. The body will be taken to the Catholic cemetery at Alliance, for burial.

Friends may view the body in the Sturgis' home from 7:30 to 9:30 tonight or during the forenoon on Saturday.

of the hotel came down to the second floor. So I cannot understand what saved us all.

"There is too much to write so will tell you when we get home. You cannot describe the wreckage. I sent a message up to Palm Beach this morning to you—the first chance I had."

Mr. and Mrs. Birkett have been visiting in Palm Beach for about two months.

Death Toll Above 400.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Sept. 24.—The death list in the southern Florida hurricane today still wavered slightly above 400 known dead, 2,000 injured and property damage variously estimated to be between $175,000,000 and $200,000,000.

Hundreds of the injured are in serious condition, but the death list is not expected to be greatly increased. Unreported deaths may swell the list to 600 victims.

In Moorehaven, 126 are admittedly dead Miami with its environs list its dead at 109, and this figure is certain to be increased at least slightly.

Fort Lauderdale is known to have more than a score dead, Hialeah probably 30 more, Clewiston, Dania, Fulford, Hollywood and other towns will add at least 150 more victims and numerous small towns are reporting additional dead daily.

Moorehaven Toll 300.

MOOREHAVEN, Fla., Sept. 24.—Moorehaven's death list will reach 300, although the exact number of deaths will never be known because of the multitude buried beneath floating debris that was swept through this little city of 1,400 when the dikes holding back the treacherous waters of Lake Okeechobee broke during the recent hurricane.

Review-Tribune Ad Locates Man Who Sought Dog

Review-Tribune classifieds bring results. This is the opinion of M. J. O'Keefe, who resides on the Franklin road near the Grandview cemetery at Salem.

During the county fair at Lisbon last week, O'Keefe talked to a prospective buyer of his Boston pup. He did not obtain the man's name but knew he was from East Liverpool.

Wishington to locate the man, O'Keefe inserted an ad in the Review-Tribune, asking that the stranger communicate with him. "I received an answer to my advertisement in 10 minutes after your paper was delivered," write O'Keefe in sending a check to cover the cost of the classified.

BANK RECORD OF DAUGHERTY MONEY MISSING

Brother Testifies it Was Destroyed by Trial Defendant.

NEW YORK CASE

Accounts of Late Jesse Smith Also Disappear.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney general of the United States, destroyed the record of his account in the Midland National bank at Washington Courthouse, O., according to his brother, Mal S. Daugherty, who testified today at the trial of the former cabinet member, and Col. Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian. Harry M. Daugherty also destroyed the accounts of the late Jesse Smith and of Mal S. Daugherty, the bank president testified.

Harry M. Daugherty and Miller are on trial charged with conspiracy in connection with the return of $7,000,000 worth of assets of the American Metal company to a Swiss company, which was represented by Richard Merton, German financier. Federal District Attorney Buckner introduced evidence yesterday to show that some of the $391,000 worth of Liberty bonds given the late John T. King by Merton for King's alleged aid in obtaining the settlement of the claim, had reached the Midland bank.

Mal Daugherty on Stand.

Mal S. Daugherty was called to the stand as a witness for the government this morning. The government bases much of its case on a cashier's check deposited in Daugherty's bank by King. The ledger sheets recording the deposit are missing. Harry M. Daugherty's and Jesse Smith both had accounts in the bank.

"What did you do with these missing records?" Mal Daugherty was asked.

"I gave them to my brother, Harry M. Daugherty," he answered.

"Did he tell you what he had done with them?"

"He told me he had destroyed them," the banker replied.

Buckner then disclosed that Mal Daugherty had testified in 1925 before the federal grand jury that the records were "missing."

"Did Harry tell you how he destroyed these records?" asked Buckner.

"He told me he burned them," the witness answered.

The witness then admitted, under questioning, that before Harry destroyed the account records the former attorney general and the witness went over the accounts "twenty or twenty-five times."

Under cross-examination by Max Steur, counsel for Harry M. Daugherty, the witness declared his brother had never told him to conceal anything from the government.

Joseph Gevan, accountant in the department of justice, was the next witness. He testified that Thomas W. Miller had an "alient property custodian's" account in the Midland bank.

Gevan also told of questioning Mal Daugherty concerning missing papers in his bank.

200 Ohio Prison Inmates Receive Returns of Fight

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 24.—Although hidden away from the world behind the drab walls of the Ohio State penitentiary here, sitting or lying on their bunks in darkness, at least 200 inmates of the prison heard the returns from the ringside in Philadelphia, and today the fight was the topic of the hour.

Returns came by radio, for a limited number of sets are permitted in the prison, but loud speakers were taboo after lights were turned off at 8 o'clock. Most of the owners of sets have earphones and are permitted to sit in bed listening as long as they please.

Some of the sets were of seven and eight tubes, others smaller, while about half were of the crystal type, picking up the local stations.

GATE AT TITLE BOUT EXCEEDED TWO MILLIONS

Dempsey's Share Near $600,000; Tunney Gets $200,000.

TEX WINS AGAIN

Rickard's Profit Will Probably Total $500,000.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 24. — Tex Rickard's force of assistants were working unceasingly today to check exactly how much was taken in at the gate of the Dempsey-Tunney fight last night. An official statement may be ready on the attendance and receipts late this afternoon.

It was announced, however, that the "gate exceeded $2,000,000," a record for paid attendance to a sporting event anywhere in the world. The sesqui-centennial stadium seats 125,081 and almost every seat was occupied.

Rickard testified in court that Dempsey was to receive $450,000 as his share of the purse but other authorities have estimated the ex-champion's share as high as $600,000. Dempsey had a straight guarantee of $450,000 and a cut on the receipts after the first $1,000,000 was taken in.

Tunney had a straight guarantee of $200,000.

The state had 5 per cent cut of the gross and the sesqui-centennial exposition a 10 per cent cut.

Rickard's expenses in the running of the fight were estimated at $1,500,000, counting the cost of law suits his profit probably will total $500,000.

Estelle Consoled By Fact That Jack Fought To End

Dempsey's Movie-star Wife Says Ex-champion Probably Will Demand Return Bout.

LIMA, O., Sept. 24.—"It is consoling to know that Jack finished on his feet, and fought it out to the end," was the comment of Estelle Taylor Dempsey, wife of the former heavyweight champion, when she learned of Dempsey's defeat.

Mrs. Dempsey, enroute to Philadelphia, first learned of the debacle to Dempsey at Fort Wayne, Ind.

Refusing to believe the report as contained in Indiana newspaper extras, she sought confirmation in Lima.

She told newspaper reporters that Dempsey probably would demand a return match with Tunney, and expressed confidence that he would regain his title within a few months, if this demand is granted.

"I just can't believe it—it just can't be true" was the first comment of the boxer's movie-star wife when she was told that Dempsey had been defeated.

courses. The route taken was virtually the same as that of the cyclone in 1924, which caused approximately 75 deaths and leveled Lorain.

Yesterday's storm broke just as country schools were adjourning. Near Huron one school teacher, seeing the ominous clouds approaching, quickly herded her students to a point of safety a few seconds before the building was demolished.

Hundreds of trees were uprooted, roofs damaged and windows shattered when the tornado passed over Bowling Green, causing about $2,000 damage.

Frightened citizens lay on the ground in terror as the twister passed 200 feet above the city—too high to exercise the full force of its power.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Short covering induced by the continuance of the 4 per cent rediscount rate of the New York Reserve bank and the improvement in the general position of the Reserve banks, caused a moderate rally in stock prices at the beginning of trading today. Dullness was the principal feature of the speculative markets, however, and only in outstanding stocks was there any disposition to follow up gained by the moderate advances in opening prices.

The continuance of the 4 per cent rediscount rate was not a great surprise to Wall street, in view of the failure of the outside banks to take such action earlier in the week. New York and Boston banks gained about 5 per cent in the ratio of their reserves to resources, while the Reserve system as a whole gained 1.5 per cent. Cotton prices made a moderate recovery from yesterday's severe slump, while, grain prices were slightly reactionary.

Most of the rails were higher in a quiet and featureless market after the first period. Stocks of the Southern Transportation companies and the Van Sweringen Nickel Plate group made the best showing. Equipment stocks declined, Pullman losing about 3 points.

Pools in the specialties did not relax. A new movement was started in advance resumely common and preferred, which led activity in the specialties. Warner Brothers pictures advanced 4 points. Motor stocks were firm at the start.

1 Dead, 4 Hurt in Storm

Trees Are Uprooted.

Trees, telephone and trolley poles were uprooted.

Traffic over the Y. & O. railroad was held up for about two hours while a repair crew from the Leetonia car barn removed debris from the tracks.

The steady rainfall, which continued for most of the night, caused further damage. Debris washed from the hillside near Brady's cut covered both the east and west bound tracks of the main street car line to Wellsville to a depth of several feet. The traction company operated motor busses between Wellsville and East Liverpool this morning in lieu of street car service. Because of another slide, just west of Wellsville, interurban cars from Steubenville operated only as far as the children's home in Yellow Creek.

Hundreds of telephone lines in East Liverpool and vicinity and about 15 toll lines were put out of commission by the storm, officials of the Ohio Bell company said. Passenger trains on the C. & P. division were running about a half hour late this morning due to slides near Empire. All traffic over the Panhandle division between Chester and Steubenville was halted because of slides near Newell and Kenilworth.

Baby Hurled 200 Feet.

Cellars along Virginia avenue and First avenue, East End, were flooded when the run which crosses Virginia avenue overflowed during the night. A sewer in the lower end of Wellsville, being repaired from a previous storm, overflowed and inundated a half dozen or more streets. Considerable damage was also done to the hillside streets in East Liverpool and Wellsville.

In addition to the Thomas Beadle home, residences occupied by Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Layman, parents of Mrs. Beadle; Nick tapanovich, James Burnip and Charles Reynolds, near the Stop 47 territory, and the home of Charles Lewis in Summitville were wrecked.

Mrs. Beadle and her two children, Joseph and Betty Jean, two months old, were in their house when the storm broke. The tornado first started with a heavy rainfall, the cyclonic winds following about half an hour later. The twister lifted the Beadle home from its foundation and carried it into an open field about 100 feet distant. Mrs. Beadle and her son were beneath the wreckage of the house, while the infant was found about 200 feet away.

Homes Are Carried Away.

Young Stapanovich, who lives with his father, Nick Stapanovich, rushed to the cellar of their home when he saw nearby buildings being swept away. He had just reached the basement when the house was carried away and wrecked in the roadway. His left leg was caught beneath a section of the falling chimney.

Burnip and William Gross, both of Salineville, who occupied a two-room frame dwelling owned by Frank Lowe were in the house when the twister swept the building from its foundation. Burnip was cut on the head, face and one leg by falling timbers but Gross escaped unhurt. The wreckage was scattered over the roadway in front of the home.

Mrs. Layman and her 5-year-old son, John, were in their house located close to the Beadle home. Neither was hurt.

Homes occupied by George Tishman, Everett Crawford, John Godwin, Samuel Gregg, store keeper, and an unoccupied house, owned by Frank Lowe, were damaged. Chicken coops, barns and other outbuildings on the Crawford and Gregg places were wrecked.

Garages Are Destroyed.

The tornado which covered a path about 300 yards in width, struck a garage owned and occupied by Harry Wilkinson, wrecked the building and damaged a Ford automobile housed within. Fruit trees and a grape arbor on the Wilkinson place were ruined.

The home, barn and garage on the Charles Reynolds place, about a mile from Stop 47, near the Wellsville-West Point road, were leveled. Edward Reynolds, 18, and Lawrence Reynolds, 20, sons, and Russell Backus, 16, a companion, had narrow escapes from injury. Nellie Reynolds, 16, a daughter, was fleeing to safety when she was struck in the back with a flying copper kettle which had been picked up by the terrific wind.

Thomas Beadle, father of the dead Beadle boy, was at work in the Brokaw coal mine, about a mile distant, when he was advised by the son of a neighbor that the storm had wrecked his home. He hurried to the scene, but before he arrived Mrs. Beadle and her two children had been carried into the nearby Tishman home.

Doctors nad Nurses Called.

No telephones are located in the Stop 47 district, and calls for doctors and nurses were sent from the Stop 55 district. Dr. F. F. Davis, who was at the Frank O'Hanlon filling station about a mile and a half from the storm area, when the call came for help was the first to reach the injured. Drs. W. A. Hobbs, R. J. Marshall and A. L. Turner, of this city, and V. E. McEldowney of Newell hurried to the scene in automobiles. Four nurses were rushed from the City hospital. An ambulance and another automobile were sent by E. G. Sturgis.

Dr. Davis attended Burnip and Stapanovich, while Drs. Turner and McEldowney looked after Mrs. Beadle and her 2-year-old boy. Both were brought to the hospital in the Sturgis ambulance. Drs. Turner and McEldowney being assisted at the hospital by Dr. C. H. Bailey.

The tornado missed the Hammond school, less than a half mile from the Stop 47 district, where about 50 children, many of them living in the storm area, were in session. Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Beadle, parents of Thomas Beadle, took refuge in the Brokaw coal mine, just across the railroad tracks from their home, when they saw the storm approaching. They were unhurt and their home escaped damage. Most of the men residing in and around the Stop 47 district are employed by either the Penn-Ohio Coal company or the Brokaw coal company.

Telephone Wires Torn Down.

The storm struck the Fred Millward place on the Wellsville, West Point road, shattering almost every window in the house, wrecking a chicken coop and uprooting five large walnut trees in the front yard. A gas station conducted by Millward, near his house, escaped damage. Telephone wires along the road near the Millward home were torn from the poles by falling trees which severed communication with West Point and other northern points.

Four Salineville miners, motoring from West Point where they are employed, to their homes, were forced to take refuge in the Millward home when the wind caught the top of their automobile and carried it into a field several hundred feet distant from the roadway.

Farm buildings are reported to have suffered in the Millport, Summitville, Hammondsville and Mechanicstown district, where the tornado apparently entered the county. Two poultry houses on the Wilson Hull farm, one and one half miles from Salineville, were carried onto an adjoining farm. One hundred chickens were killed. Two hay stacks were swept away by the wind, and two porches torn from the house. Several fruit trees were uprooted.

The home of Cecil Lewis, near Summitville, was also damaged. The family was absent from the house at the time. The roof was carried from the home of Thomas Carey in the same district. A barn on the farm occupied by Harvey Phillips, two miles east of Summitville, was also razed.

School Teacher is Heroine.

Miss Alice Diahl, teacher at the Silver Ridge school, Farnklin township, played the role of a heroine during the storm which swept that section.

Sensing the seriousness of the situation, she assembled the children in one of the two outbuildings near the school before the storm broke. She had no sooner cleared the building when the wind wrecked the belfry and the heavy bell went crashing through the roof into the room. The other building on the school property was wrecked.

Victims of the tornado in the vicinity of Stop 47 were being cared for in the homes of relatives and neighbors today. The Stapanovich boy was bedfast in the home of Samuel Gregg. Several of the victims are reported to be in destitute circumstances.

Telephone Repairmen on Job.

Telephone repair crews were on the job early this morning and expect to have most of the disabled lines in service before evening. East Liverpool was without telephonic communication with Lisbon and Salem from yesterday afternoon until an early hour this morning.

Section crews of the Steubenville, East Liverpool & Beaver Valley Traction company also started to work this morning to clear debris from the tracks near Brady's cut and at the lower end of Wellsville. Cars started to single track past the scene of the Brady cut slide at 9 o'clock this morning but through interurban service to Steubenville will not be re-established until evening, street car company officials said. Regular schedules were being maintained on the Y. & O. line between East Liverpool and Salem.

Funeral services for the Beadle child will be conducted in the E. G. Sturgis funeral home, West Fifth street, at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon in charge of Rev. Thomas E. Walsh, pastor of the St. Aloysius church. The body will be taken to the Catholic cemetery at Alliance, for burial.

Friends may view the body in the Sturgis' home from 7:30 to 9:30 tonight or during the forenoon on Saturday.

Death Toll Above 400.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Sept. 24.—The death list in the southern Florida hurricane today still wavered slightly above 400 known dead, 2,000 injured and property damage variously estimated to be between $175,000,000 and $200,000,000.

Hundreds of the injured are in serious condition, but the death list is not expected to be greatly increased. Unreported deaths may swell the list to 600 victims.

In Moorehaven, 126 are admittedly dead Miami with its environs list its dead at 109, and this figure is certain to be increased at least slightly.

Fort Lauderdale is known to have more than a score dead, Hialeah probably 30 more, Clewiston, Dania, Fulford, Hollywood and other towns will add at least 150 more victims and numerous small towns are reporting additional dead daily.

Moorehaven Toll 300.

MOOREHAVEN, Fla., Sept. 24.—Moorehaven's death list will reach 300, although the exact number of deaths will never be known because of the multitude buried beneath floating debris that was swept through this little city of 1,400 when the dikes holding back the treacherous waters of Lake Okeechobee broke during the recent hurricane.

Review-Tribune Ad Locates Man Who Sought Dog

Review-Tribune classifieds bring results. This is the opinion of M. J. O'Keefe, who resides on the Franklin road near the Grandview cemetery at Salem.

During the county fair at Lisbon last week, O'Keefe talked to a prospective buyer of his Boston pup. He did not obtain the man's name but knew he was from East Liverpool.

Wishington to locate the man, O'Keefe inserted an ad in the Review-Tribune, asking that the stranger communicate with him. "I received an answer to my advertisement in 10 minutes after your paper was delivered," write O'Keefe in sending a check to cover the cost of the classified.

BANK RECORD OF DAUGHERTY MONEY MISSING

Brother Testifies it Was Destroyed by Trial Defendant.

NEW YORK CASE

Accounts of Late Jesse Smith Also Disappear.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney general of the United States, destroyed the record of his account in the Midland National bank at Washington Courthouse, O., according to his brother, Mal S. Daugherty, who testified today at the trial of the former cabinet member, and Col. Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian. Harry M. Daugherty also destroyed the accounts of the late Jesse Smith and of Mal S. Daugherty, the bank president testified.

Harry M. Daugherty and Miller are on trial charged with conspiracy in connection with the return of $7,000,000 worth of assets of the American Metal company to a Swiss company, which was represented by Richard Merton, German financier. Federal District Attorney Buckner introduced evidence yesterday to show that some of the $391,000 worth of Liberty bonds given the late John T. King by Merton for King's alleged aid in obtaining the settlement of the claim, had reached the Midland bank.

Mal Daugherty on Stand.

Mal S. Daugherty was called to the stand as a witness for the government this morning. The government bases much of its case on a cashier's check deposited in Daugherty's bank by King. The ledger sheets recording the deposit are missing. Harry M. Daugherty's and Jesse Smith both had accounts in the bank.

"What did you do with these missing records?" Mal Daugherty was asked.

"I gave them to my brother, Harry M. Daugherty," he answered.

"Did he tell you what he had done with them?"

"He told me he had destroyed them," the banker replied.

Buckner then disclosed that Mal Daugherty had testified in 1925 before the federal grand jury that the records were "missing."

"Did Harry tell you how he destroyed these records?" asked Buckner.

"He told me he burned them," the witness answered.

The witness then admitted, under questioning, that before Harry destroyed the account records the former attorney general and the witness went over the accounts "twenty or twenty-five times."

Under cross-examination by Max Steur, counsel for Harry M. Daugherty, the witness declared his brother had never told him to conceal anything from the government.

Joseph Gevan, accountant in the department of justice, was the next witness. He testified that Thomas W. Miller had an "alient property custodian's" account in the Midland bank.

Gevan also told of questioning Mal Daugherty concerning missing papers in his bank.

200 Ohio Prison Inmates Receive Returns of Fight

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 24.—Although hidden away from the world behind the drab walls of the Ohio State penitentiary here, sitting or lying on their bunks in darkness, at least 200 inmates of the prison heard the returns from the ringside in Philadelphia, and today the fight was the topic of the hour.

Returns came by radio, for a limited number of sets are permitted in the prison, but loud speakers were taboo after lights were turned off at 8 o'clock. Most of the owners of sets have earphones and are permitted to sit in bed listening as long as they please.

Some of the sets were of seven and eight tubes, others smaller, while about half were of the crystal type, picking up the local stations.

GATE AT TITLE BOUT EXCEEDED TWO MILLIONS

Dempsey's Share Near $600,000; Tunney Gets $200,000.

TEX WINS AGAIN

Rickard's Profit Will Probably Total $500,000.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 24. — Tex Rickard's force of assistants were working unceasingly today to check exactly how much was taken in at the gate of the Dempsey-Tunney fight last night. An official statement may be ready on the attendance and receipts late this afternoon.

It was announced, however, that the "gate exceeded $2,000,000," a record for paid attendance to a sporting event anywhere in the world. The sesqui-centennial stadium seats 125,081 and almost every seat was occupied.

Rickard testified in court that Dempsey was to receive $450,000 as his share of the purse but other authorities have estimated the ex-champion's share as high as $600,000. Dempsey had a straight guarantee of $450,000 and a cut on the receipts after the first $1,000,000 was taken in.

Tunney had a straight guarantee of $200,000.

The state had 5 per cent cut of the gross and the sesqui-centennial exposition a 10 per cent cut.

Rickard's expenses in the running of the fight were estimated at $1,500,000, counting the cost of law suits his profit probably will total $500,000.

Plant Juice is not a fly-by-night medicine—not a passing sensation. It is a rare combination of Nature's medicinal herbs, roots and barks, scientifically compounded and proportioned to produce the results in restored health, strength and vitality. And the great test of time has proven its worth above all others.

According to the certified statements of thousands of happy people everywhere, Plant Juice completely overcomes stomach troubles, indigestion, dyspepsia, biliousness, constipation and the vast number of other common complaints arising from these conditions of ill health.

Thousands of bottles of Plant Juice are sold daily, and you know this medicine has got to be good—it's got to have the powers to make you feel like yourself again—make you eat better—sleep better—feel better and work better, or people would not go on buying it in such amazing quantities.

MRS. FRED KURTZWEIL, 629 Ridge Ave., Youngstown, O., says: "A year ago I was in almost completely exhausted condition but Dillingham's Plant Juice made me well and strong again and I've been that way ever since. I was subject to dizzy spells, had to be taking strong laxatives for constipation and became weak and wretched, but Plant Juice acted just like magic in relieving me of all my troubles."

Akron Man Hadn't Seen Well Day in Five Years

H. Chas. McEwen

Plant Juice Is Greatest Medicine On Earth, He Says, Now That It Has Restored Him to Good Health.

"For the first time in five years I know what it is to see a well day, and I'll praise Dillingham's Plant Juice as long as I live for it," says H. Chas. McEwen, 9 Merriman Rd., West Hill, Akron, O., retired locomotive engineer.

"Why, I was in such wretched condition with neuritis, neuralgia and lumbago I though my time had come.

"But since I have been taking Dillingham's Plant Juice all those neuralgia and lumbago pains have passed away, the boils have disappeared, and I've regained my lost weight. I just feel like a new man in every way, and say without hesitation Plant Juice is the greatest medicine on earth."

Plant Juice is sold in East Liverpool by MATHEW'S ORIGINAL CUT RATE, 129 W. Sixth St. and by all leading druggists everywhere.

RAIN HELPFUL TO FRUIT CROP

Rains during the past month have resulted in a decided improvement in the fruit conditions of the state as the apple crop shows an increase of nearly one million bushels over the August estimate, peaches an increase of about fifty thousand bushels, pears three thousand bushels and a small increase in grapes; according to information obtained from farmers of the state by John W. Smith, commissioner of agriculture and Barnard Gibbs, of the U. S. Bureau of agricultural economics.

The increase in conditions of the apple crop since August 1 has been 10 per cent and at present the state's crop is estimated at 9,315,000 bushels against last year's 4,185,000 bushels and a five year average of 5,110,000 bushels. A large increase in production is shown for the entire U. S. as all but three of the seventeen leading states show an increase over last year, the greatest increases coming in New York, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Washington and West Virginia. The U. S. total production is now estimated at 242,114,000 bushels against 171,706,000 bushels last year and the past five year average of 169,500,000 bushels, this year's estimate being larger than any crop since 1914.

COMMISSIONERS SELL ROAD BONDS

The last $1,000,000 of the $50,000,000 of state road bonds permitted under the road amendment to the constitution was sold to the state sinking fund commission this week.

Members of the state road commission and Governor Gore pointed out in this connection the financing as represented by bond sales was separate from the disbursing of these funds through the road commission for construction work, and that the final sale of bonds should not be taken to indicate exhaustion of road funds. Money is available, they said not only to pay for road work now under contract, but also for other work contemplated, including projects for which contracts will be let September 28 and also for awarding further contracts, that in many cases will serve to complete short gaps remaining in connection between important centers.

STATE THIRD IN GAS PRODUCTION

West Virginia remained third in the production of natural gas last year, with only Oklahoma and California leading, according to figures announced today at the bureau of mines. Along with California and Louisiana it showed a slight decrease in output, while Oklahoma, first in production, and Texas fifth, showed increases of 16 and 26 percent, respectively.

The greatest interstate movement of natural gas continued to be from West Virginia to Ohio, with interstate transportation showing an increased consumption of natural gas for industrial purposes, reaching 916 billion feet. Of this 46 percent was used for oil field work, 15 percent in the manufacture of carbon black and the rest for other industries.

Q. Will you please tell my why eggs are sometimes so hard to take out of the shell when boiled? I. H. B.

A. It has been found that when a fresh egg is taken immediately from the nest and boiled the white substance sticks to the shell. However, if the egg is allowed to cool in a refrigerator or in cold water before boiling the shell should peel off easily.

Q. How many Jersey Cities are there in the United States? J. A. M.

A. The only Jersey City in this country is the one in New Jersey. There are, however, three cities named "Jersey." These are located in Arkansas, California and Georgia.

Q. Please explain to me how some lawyers obtain the title of "Colonel." A. W.

A. "Colonel" is often a complimentary title, the origin of the use of which is not definitely known. We have found nothing to indicate, however, that lawyers are more apt to be given this title than other men.

Q. Are growing plants in a bedroom injurious to one's health? C. K. P.

A. There is a theory that growing plants absorb certain elements from the air and for this reason it is not considered advisable to have them in a sleeping room. The effect would probably not be seriously detrimental in a sick room, provided the flowers did not have a heavy odor and there were not too many plants.

Q. Please give me Rudolph Valentino's name under which he was admitted to the United States? H. C. O.

A. Rudolph Valentino's name was Rudolfo Alfonso Raffaelo Pier Filiberto Guglielmi di Valentino d'Antonguolla. He was admitted into the United States as Rudolfo Guglielmi. He selected Valentino from his list of names when he started his career as a dancer.

Q. Is it correct that the Emperor of Japan after he accedes the throne is not permitted to leave the country? M. M. A.

A. The Japanese Embassy says that although it may be difficult for the Emperor of Japan to leave the country after his accession to the throne, there is no law or regulation restricting him from going abroad. This also applies to the heir apparent.

Q. I would like to know the number of clerks and mail carriers employed in first or second class Post Office in the United States. H. G. M.

A. The Post Office Department says that there are 67,898 clerks employed in the first and second class post offices in the United States. These offices also employ 48,645 city carriers. The labor turnover has been small since the new scale of salaries has gone into effect.

Q. To settle a dispute will you tell me if a fork is always used the same way? C. E.

A. A fork is not always used in the same way. For example, when a piece of meat is conveyed to the mouth, the fork is pressed into the meat with the tines down. On the contrary, if one is eating peas the fork is used with the tines turned upward.

RAIN HELPFUL TO FRUIT CROP

Rains during the past month have resulted in a decided improvement in the fruit conditions of the state as the apple crop shows an increase of nearly one million bushels over the August estimate, peaches an increase of about fifty thousand bushels, pears three thousand bushels and a small increase in grapes; according to information obtained from farmers of the state by John W. Smith, commissioner of agriculture and Barnard Gibbs, of the U. S. Bureau of agricultural economics.

The increase in conditions of the apple crop since August 1 has been 10 per cent and at present the state's crop is estimated at 9,315,000 bushels against last year's 4,185,000 bushels and a five year average of 5,110,000 bushels. A large increase in production is shown for the entire U. S. as all but three of the seventeen leading states show an increase over last year, the greatest increases coming in New York, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Washington and West Virginia. The U. S. total production is now estimated at 242,114,000 bushels against 171,706,000 bushels last year and the past five year average of 169,500,000 bushels, this year's estimate being larger than any crop since 1914.

COMMISSIONERS SELL ROAD BONDS

The last $1,000,000 of the $50,000,000 of state road bonds permitted under the road amendment to the constitution was sold to the state sinking fund commission this week.

Members of the state road commission and Governor Gore pointed out in this connection the financing as represented by bond sales was separate from the disbursing of these funds through the road commission for construction work, and that the final sale of bonds should not be taken to indicate exhaustion of road funds. Money is available, they said not only to pay for road work now under contract, but also for other work contemplated, including projects for which contracts will be let September 28 and also for awarding further contracts, that in many cases will serve to complete short gaps remaining in connection between important centers.

STATE THIRD IN GAS PRODUCTION

West Virginia remained third in the production of natural gas last year, with only Oklahoma and California leading, according to figures announced today at the bureau of mines. Along with California and Louisiana it showed a slight decrease in output, while Oklahoma, first in production, and Texas fifth, showed increases of 16 and 26 percent, respectively.

The greatest interstate movement of natural gas continued to be from West Virginia to Ohio, with interstate transportation showing an increased consumption of natural gas for industrial purposes, reaching 916 billion feet. Of this 46 percent was used for oil field work, 15 percent in the manufacture of carbon black and the rest for other industries.

Q. Will you please tell my why eggs are sometimes so hard to take out of the shell when boiled? I. H. B.

A. It has been found that when a fresh egg is taken immediately from the nest and boiled the white substance sticks to the shell. However, if the egg is allowed to cool in a refrigerator or in cold water before boiling the shell should peel off easily.

Q. How many Jersey Cities are there in the United States? J. A. M.

A. The only Jersey City in this country is the one in New Jersey. There are, however, three cities named "Jersey." These are located in Arkansas, California and Georgia.

Q. Please explain to me how some lawyers obtain the title of "Colonel." A. W.

A. "Colonel" is often a complimentary title, the origin of the use of which is not definitely known. We have found nothing to indicate, however, that lawyers are more apt to be given this title than other men.

Q. Are growing plants in a bedroom injurious to one's health? C. K. P.

A. There is a theory that growing plants absorb certain elements from the air and for this reason it is not considered advisable to have them in a sleeping room. The effect would probably not be seriously detrimental in a sick room, provided the flowers did not have a heavy odor and there were not too many plants.

Q. Please give me Rudolph Valentino's name under which he was admitted to the United States? H. C. O.

A. Rudolph Valentino's name was Rudolfo Alfonso Raffaelo Pier Filiberto Guglielmi di Valentino d'Antonguolla. He was admitted into the United States as Rudolfo Guglielmi. He selected Valentino from his list of names when he started his career as a dancer.

Q. Is it correct that the Emperor of Japan after he accedes the throne is not permitted to leave the country? M. M. A.

A. The Japanese Embassy says that although it may be difficult for the Emperor of Japan to leave the country after his accession to the throne, there is no law or regulation restricting him from going abroad. This also applies to the heir apparent.

Q. I would like to know the number of clerks and mail carriers employed in first or second class Post Office in the United States. H. G. M.

A. The Post Office Department says that there are 67,898 clerks employed in the first and second class post offices in the United States. These offices also employ 48,645 city carriers. The labor turnover has been small since the new scale of salaries has gone into effect.

Q. To settle a dispute will you tell me if a fork is always used the same way? C. E.

A. A fork is not always used in the same way. For example, when a piece of meat is conveyed to the mouth, the fork is pressed into the meat with the tines down. On the contrary, if one is eating peas the fork is used with the tines turned upward.

WASHINGTON, Ind.—Knights Templar of Indiana and adjoining states are to have a big Field Day in this city September 29, in honor of Right Eminent Sir Adrian Hamersly, grand recorder of the Grand Encampment, U. S. A. The celebration is sponsored by Washington Commandery, No. 33, of which the grand recorder is a member.

A beautiful silver loving cup will be presented to the winner of the drill competition.

The program will also be featured by a monster parade, band concerts and specches by several high Masonic officials.

Granddaughter of Count Leo Tolstoi Loses Court Ruling

PRAGUE.—The domestic affairs of Vera Tolstoi Bakovsky are causing as much public interest as those of her more famous grandfather, Count Leo Tolsoi.

The court here has had to settle the question of the disposition of her child as the result of her claims and those of her divorced husband to custody of their offspring. The father kidnaped the chinld from Deuville and brought it to Prague, where he put it under the care of a German woman.

The mother brought suit to have the child returned to her because she did not want it to grow up under German influence. The court decided in favor of the mother but when she went to take her child, it cried and refused to go without the father.

The judge then changed his mind and decreed that the child should be placed in a school and might be visited by both parents.

CALIFORNIA HAS "SAHARA" SCENERY TO SAVE MOVIE CHIEFS FROM AFRICA

GUADALUPE, Cal.—A bit of the Sahara desert has been discovered in California. At Guadalupe, motion picture "location" scouts have discovered a stretch of desert country, which, it was declared, bears a closer resemblance to the topography of the great African desert than any other area on the North American continent.

Milton Sills is now using the place scenery for the filming of "shots" "Men of Dawn." The sandy hills are overrun with Arabs, Chasseurs Afrique, French Legionnaires, dancing girls and cameramen.

A continent from the DeMille Studio, working on "The King of Kings," will be the next company on "location" at Guadalupe.

RED-HEADED BEAUTY CONTEST WINNER DETESTS MEN WITH RED HAIR

NEW ORLEANS.—"It would be mighty queer if a girl had not been kissed by the time she was 21," says Miss Elsie Oakes, winner of a red-headed beauty contest recently held here.

Miss Oakes who is 21, with blue eyes and wears her hair bobbed and skirts short, admits however, that her pet detestation is men with red hair. In reply to a questionaire submitted her, she says she prefers men with "black hair, gray eyes, a ready smile and a sense of humor."

She neither smokes nor drinks liquor, coffee or tea, but likes dancing and other forms of exercise. She replied to other questions as follows:

"Should a girl roll her stockings?"

"It makes a person much cooler."

"Should a woman wear a brassiere?"

"Not unless she has too. I wear a brassiere only when my dress is light."

"Do you walk much?"

"Only when I have to.

"Would you prefer long skirts if they were fashion?"

"My goodness, no! I like to have freedom of action for my limbs and short skirts are so much cooler in hot weather. I do not consider short skirts immodest."

"Do you prefer marriage to a career on the stage?"

"Yes, of course, if the proper man comes along with the right words it would be hard to say no."

Miss Oakes' measurements are height 5 feet; weight 110 pounds; waist 24 inches; calf 13 inches, ankle 8 inches; hips 32 inches; bust 32 inches.

The day has, also, arrived when the woman who says she has "nothing to wear" goes right ahead and wears it. —Canton, O., News.

8,000 Miles of Pennsylvania Roads Cost Quarter Billion

Advocates of Good Highways Outline Campaign for Additional Fifty-million Dollar Issue.

HARRISBURG, Pa. — Pennsylvania today was preparing to spend the last ten million dollars of her second fifty-million-dollar road bond issue. At the same time advocates of good roads were outlining a campaign whereby an additional fifty-million dollar issue which will required another amendment to the state constitution may be launched. If this bond issue is put over, the money cannot become available before 1928.

During the past four years the State Department of Highways has spent nearly a quarter of a billion dollars on highway construction and maintenance. In this four-year period 3,000 miles of hard-surfaced road have been constructed and 1,200 miles of stone-based road have been re-surfaced.

The ten million dollars, which under the terms of the last bond issue, will become available next month, will be required for projects already under contract. These projects under contract practically will complete the major trans-state arteries of traffic as well as a number of important connecting links.

According To Plan.

In the last decade road building in the Keystone state has been carried out entirely in accord with a carefully mapped plan. A decade ago it was decided to stop the practice of building segregated stretches of improved road to reach country estates of prominent politicians, and instead follow the important cross-state routes.

More than 12,000 miles of road of which 7,581 miles are hard surfaced comprise the present highway system of Pennsylvania. These hard surfaced roads are kept free of snow in the winter and are under constant repair in the summer.

When this year's building program is completed next summer, the state will have more than 8,000 miles of improved highways. Regardless of how carefully its surface may be maintained with drag and oil, no road is considered or marked "improved" in Pennsylvania until it has been hard surfaced.

Nearly 4,000 miles of dirt road were placed under the control of the highway department by a recent act of the egislature. It has been estimated that wo hundred million dollars will be ecessary to hard surface these tretches of connecting highways.

Roads Widened.

Necessity of widening sections of the main routes has added to the expense of maintaining the primary system and has reduced the mileage of improvement in the more outlying sections. The majority of the highways originally were built 18 feet wide. It has been necessary to widen the routes approaching the larger cities to 40 feet. Surveys have been completed for a similiar treatment to other congested sections.

During the height of the working season 25,000 men are engaged in the construction and maintenance of the state highways. Approximately 10,000 of these men are permanent employes.

Besides the two bond issues of fifty million dollars each Pennsylvania has secured money for road work from the usual license fees of various sorts and from the gasoline tax of two cents on the gallon. Laws passed at the special session of the legislature last January have tightened the collection of the gasoline tax, ending years of petty grafting by many small retailers and increasing the amount available for road construction and repair.

Sarthe, an agricultural county in Western France, plans to build 540 miles of new highways which, according to announcement, "suffice for bicycles, motorcycles and automobiles of five, six and twelve horsepower, that is for 98 per cent of the users of the road."

8,000 Miles of Pennsylvania Roads Cost Quarter Billion

Advocates of Good Highways Outline Campaign for Additional Fifty-million Dollar Issue.

HARRISBURG, Pa. — Pennsylvania today was preparing to spend the last ten million dollars of her second fifty-million-dollar road bond issue. At the same time advocates of good roads were outlining a campaign whereby an additional fifty-million dollar issue which will required another amendment to the state constitution may be launched. If this bond issue is put over, the money cannot become available before 1928.

During the past four years the State Department of Highways has spent nearly a quarter of a billion dollars on highway construction and maintenance. In this four-year period 3,000 miles of hard-surfaced road have been constructed and 1,200 miles of stone-based road have been re-surfaced.

The ten million dollars, which under the terms of the last bond issue, will become available next month, will be required for projects already under contract. These projects under contract practically will complete the major trans-state arteries of traffic as well as a number of important connecting links.

According To Plan.

In the last decade road building in the Keystone state has been carried out entirely in accord with a carefully mapped plan. A decade ago it was decided to stop the practice of building segregated stretches of improved road to reach country estates of prominent politicians, and instead follow the important cross-state routes.

More than 12,000 miles of road of which 7,581 miles are hard surfaced comprise the present highway system of Pennsylvania. These hard surfaced roads are kept free of snow in the winter and are under constant repair in the summer.

When this year's building program is completed next summer, the state will have more than 8,000 miles of improved highways. Regardless of how carefully its surface may be maintained with drag and oil, no road is considered or marked "improved" in Pennsylvania until it has been hard surfaced.

Nearly 4,000 miles of dirt road were placed under the control of the highway department by a recent act of the egislature. It has been estimated that wo hundred million dollars will be ecessary to hard surface these tretches of connecting highways.

MOTORS ARE NO AID TO COLLEGE; KANSAS U. STUDENTS MUST WALK

TOPEKA, Kan.—Chancellor E. H. Lindley of the University of Kansas, is receiving many letters of commendation on his request to parents and prospective students to leave their automobiles at home.

The Chancellor set out that a motor car is no part of an education. In this action Chancellor Lindley says he is following in the footsteps of the heads of the great universities in America.

The press of Kansas is practically unanimous in the opinion that better results along educational lines can be attained if young men and women who contemplate attending the University leave their automobiles at home. Probably William Allen White has stressed the matter in the strongest language.

"Too many people go to college chiefly because it is socially a good place to go," Mr. White says. "Too many university students in America are from homes without books or the intellectual background; rich homes, of course, but none the less homes of the intellecturally poverty-stricken.

"The youngsters from these homes come pretty nearly setting the social pace for our great universities. In Kansas they crowd into fraternities; they are the rooters of the athletic sports, but they have a mighty poor standing in the registrar's office. The head of every university of any importance in the United States has to struggle with this outfit; a cheap vulgar, noisy, arrogant nobbish crowd."

"BABY GARAGES" ARE LATEST FAD; SHOPPERS PARK THEIR CHILDREN

NEW YORK—"PARK YOUR BABY HERE — LOWEST RATES — BEST SERVICE."

Mothers must shop. Children need attention. Nurse girls are expensive. Solution—"Baby Garages."

In New York, the health department provides stations in congested district where children are looked after for the small sum of twenty cents a day.

Chicago is, however, making the first real step in the "Baby Garage" field. A building large enough to accomodate 2,000 youngsters will soon be thrown open for business.

In some of the large cities of the country, department stores are trying to solve the problem, if it may be called such, by providing nurseries where women may safely "check" their youngsters before attacking the bargain counters.

But this method of handling the situation has ben found unsatisfactory. Your female shopper is a peculiar creature. She requires untrammeled freedom: To deposit her child or children in the nursery of one store restricts from going around to others and making necessary comparisons. Then again, the big bargain of the day may be located in a store providing no nursery facilities.

The field for the new industry seems fertile enough. With the added stimulus of some enterprising business men, the "Baby Garage" idea may become a fact in all the large cities of the country.

Switzerland, famed as the land of visiting tourists, also has its travelers for trunks sold there in the last year had a total weight of more than 100 tons.

Hands were blistered, raw, inflamed

Acute form of eczema yields at last to soothing treatment

Chicago, Illinois, April 14:—"A few months ago I had what I presume was an acute form of eczema. Red blotches and cracks, which refused to heal, appeared on the fingers of my left hand, then spread to my right hand. Both became raw, inflamed and blistery. I began to apply Resinol Ointment and after using three jars my hands are again in perfect shape. Your ointment is wonderful not only for its soothing effect to burning, itching skin, but for its quick healing qualities. From today on I am a volunteer booster of Resinol." (Signed) F. R. KANSAS VOTING MAY BE MIXED IN HARD FIGHT

Looms as Possible Battleground of National Struggle.

JARDINE ON JOB

Cabinet Member Takes Part in Dispute Over Farm Relief.

TOPEKA, Kan.—Kansas' cherished "safe and sane" election in November may be torn with strife and bitter antagonism, and may become the battleground of the national fight over farm relief. Such is the opinion in party circles throughout the state as the result of the contest which has been waged hotly between Ralph Snyder, president of the Kansas Farm bureau, and W. M. Jardine, secretary of agriculture.

Secretary Jardine, fighting the McNary-Haugen form of relief legislation, has made his home state the front line trenches in his support of the co-operative marketing plan. Charecterizing the McNary-Haugen bill as radical and economically unsound and pernicious, Secretary Jardine for the first time dissected the measure, pointing out the administration contention that the tariff is a dangerous method of approach, and that what amounts to gifts to the farmers is not a sound principle.

Speaking Tours.

Snyder has engaged in a campaign of speaking tours throughout the state to counteract the speeches made by Jardine. The secretary has been so little in favor by his party, due to his attitude on the McNary-Haugen measure that the recent meeting of the state convention failed to mention an endorsement of him for a cabinet position, although he is Kansas' only "native son" candidate.

Unofficial advices from leaders of the administration forces have stated that the visit of Jardine, although cataloged by himself as "purely informal" has the endorsement of the administration, and that it is the plan to make Kansas the center of the farm relief fight.

Although the Kansas delegation backed the so-called "subsidy measures," state leaders state that there is a strong possibility of sentiment in Kansas swinging in favor of the co-operative plan, thus counteracting the activity of the Iowa corn belt group, and the farmers committees, backing the McNary-Haugen measure.

Little Support.

The defeat of all farm relief in the past session of congress aroused little interest in Kansas, and both Republicans and Democrats had made almost no attempt to strenuously support either plan. At the meeting of the Democratic state committee, however, a protective tariff was endorsed as a method of maintaining prices for farm products on a parity with the prices paid by farmers for the goods they purchase, thereby upsetting an old Democratic tradition in favor of free trade and tariff-for-revenue-only.

The fate of the administration attempts in the state will probably depend on the result of the meeting in Southeast Kansas October 15, Secretary Jardine has expressed his intention of being present at that meeting to present the administration view, and Snyder is already busy in that district, in opposition.

To indicate the variability of the silver value, however, it may be noted that from a normal par of 1 shilling and 4 pence the rupee rose during the war to 2 shillings nad 4 pence, little short of a hundred per cent increase. All the millions in silver which the United States shipped to India during the war could not hold down the current value of the rupee but doubtless prevented it from going much higher.

The new plan for a central bank to issue notes based on gold does not contemplate the actual circulation of gold coin in trade. The special commission which made the latest report on the Indian monetary situation noted a remarkable phenomenon which also has been noted in the United States. Great Britain, during the war, drew all gold in circulation into her treasury and issued paper currency against it. The American treasury did precisely the same thing. People in the eastern part of the United States did not notice this particularly but those on the Pacific coast, where gold was popular for general pocket use, at first were keenly incensed.

After the war was over and the restrictions were released it was discovered that the publics of both the United States and Great Britain had outgrown the habit of using gold coin and, for the most part, preferred paper currency as being more convenient to handle. So long as there is public confidence that the actual gold is obtainable if it is desired, the paper money serves the purposes of trade just as well.

No Gold Coins to be Minted.

Therefore, it is proposed that the new Indian bank mint no gold coins at all but merely hold its reserves in the form of gold bars and bullion. But in foreign trade the actual gold must be employed for the currency of one country is not good in that of a distant one. Therefore, provision is made that anyone can purchase bulk gold, uncoined, in such quantities as may be desired, paying for it in the paper currency.

One very interesting speculation concerning this situation is in connection with the effect on the world gold supply and world prices India's conversion to gold standard will have. She will have to purchase a vast quantity of the metal to set up as a reserve for the new bank of issue. Overnight, practically, a customer for a vast quantity of the precious metal will come into the world market to buy gold. Another complication which has been forseen is that China, the only other large nation on a silver basis, will be compelled to follow India's example, so the demand for gold will be at least doubled.

This is the point of special interest to American silver producers as such a sudden and tremendous demand for gold will inevitably depress the price of silver to an unprecedented low point. What the effect will be on world prices of other commodities is a subject which economists now are studying.

GLITTER

By Katharine Brush

BOOK TWO—XX.

Jock began to wish that he had allowed himself to see more of Brad lately. He had remained away from the bungalow to avoid Eunice, of course, but he might have made an effort to meet Brad somewhere else occasionally. After that night, for instance. He should have gone straight to him and had a talk after that night at the Black-and-Tan, instead of pretending he didn't know a thing about it. There might have been some logical explanation. Perhaps he could have helped Brad in some way. He reproached himself bitterly now. "Fine friend I turned out to be! Passing by on the other side—"

Bones Allen moaned in his sleep, and Jock almost leaped at the sound. That noise! Noise that a man might make if he were hurt, wounded . . . or if he were pinned under an automobile somewhere on a deserted road, lochen into a coupe like an animal in a cage. . . . Brad. . . .

"Here!" he told himself sharply. "I've got to cut this out, or I'll only upset Eunice more. Brad's all right. Sure he's all right. He probably got drunk or something, and forgot to come home." But this failed to convince him; Brad had never, to his knowledge, had a drink in his life.

Now. Ready, now. Down the stairs and across the hall. Ken Kennedy still standing there, staring. "Probably thinks I've gone nuts, but I can't stop to explain now—damn this latch, anyway—"

The outside air was very cold, sharply cold, and the wind had teeth to it. Jack bent his head and hurried along, slipping with every step. He thought he had never seen a more horrible night. Black and bleak and lonely. No living thing. No light but the street lamps, pale pools of bluish white on the dead white snow. No sound but the dirge of the wind and the rattle of ice-coated branches . . . like skeleton fingers applauding. A graveyard night, unspeakably gruesome.

Suddenly he was terrified. Terrified of the night, and of the solitude, and of the errand. He began to run, and the quick steamy clouds of his breath were laden with fragments of little prayers. "Oh God, don't—don't let it be what I think it is—not Brad—not Brad—oh, this infernal night—God—" He fell, sprawling headlong, picked himself up only to fall again. He had a feeling of futility, a fear that he would never reach the place for which he was headed—that the elements would hold him back forever, and mock him, and make sport of him. "Oh, help me get there."

A train in the distance gave an eerie scream, and perversely, it steadied him. There were people, then, in this world. People asleep in two-tiered rows, behind high walls of swaying green curtains. Safe, and warm, and comfortable. He drew a vicarious warmth and comfort from thought of them. He lifted his head and laughed into the whipping wind. "Why, it's all right!" he said. "Brad's all right! I'm all right!" He laughed at himself, and swore. "Damn baby!"

The bungalow's windows threw gold across the sidewalk, visible for half a block, and cheerful, as though there might be a party on. One almost expected to hear voices and the lilt of laughter coming from within. One didn't though. Only silence. . . . He strode up the stairs and across the porch. The door fell open as his knuckles grazed it. . . .

"Oh, Jock!" cried Eunice. "Oh, Jock!"

He led her into the living room and put her down in a chair, disengaging the arms that clutched about his neck. "No word?" he said.

"No, no, nothing—"

Eunice's voice was hysterical. But it would have rung a little truer if her gown had not been so becoming and if her face had not been bright with cosmetics of obviously recent application. Jock had an intuitive flash: "She fixed herself up after she called me!" This filled him with swift cold wrath. Her husband inexplicably missing, possibly in danger, or—or worse, and she could have a thought for her appearance! But that was like Eunice. Selfish. Calloused. A really inhuman woman.

"Hang on to yourself, Eunice," he ordered curtly. "You'll have to help me think what to do."

"You can't do anythin', Jock."

"If I can't do anything what did you call me for?"

"Because I was so frightened! I wanted you—somebody—to stay heah with me until he comes—"

Jock stared at her. Then was this all a ruse, cunningly devised to bring him hot-foot to the bungalow? Was Brad's absence not ominous after all, but expected? "Eunice," he said, "tell me the truth. Where is Brad?"

"I don't know wheah he is, Jock," answered Eunice, and her tone was so blank tthat it was impossible to doubt her. "As I told you, he left heah about six-thirty in my cah. I asked him wheah he was goin' but he wouldn't tell me—just said, 'I'll be back at nine shahp, if not befoah.' I didn't think so much about it then because Brad's been actin' awfully peculiah lately anyhow, but when it got to be one o'clock and he still hadn't come I was afraid and called you."

Jock thought. "That's the truth. And I'll bet I know where he is! But why's he staying? Why did he say he'd be back at nine if he didn't intend to be? Why doesn't he telephone? Four hours — dregs of the world in those places—"

Eunice was continuing. "There isn't anythin' you can do but wait heah with me, Jock. If I knew wheah he is we could take yoah cah and go theah, but I don't even know that much." The hysterical note returned, whether premeditatedly or otherwise Jock could only conjecture. "Oh, Jock, you don't know what I've been goin' through lately—you haven't been around heah to see—but Brad's not the same, I tell you! He acts so funny. He leaves me alone all the time, and when he is heah he hardly speaks to me. Just sits and gazes at nothin'. If he did'at give me so many presents I'd think he must be mad at me or somethin'—why, wheah you goin', Jock?"

Jack had started for the door. "I'm going to borrow a car," he said. "My roadster froze up solid this afternoon, but I'll borrow something and have a look around. I—maybe I can find Brad—"

Eunice followed him in a little rush. "Oh, take me—take me, Jock. Don't leave me heah all alo—"

She stopped, listening. They both listened. Remotely, but coming nearer, they could hear an automobile. Purr of its engine, and repeated clankety-clank of a broken tire chain against one of its mud guards. They still listened. "If it goes by—" Jock thought tensely. "If it goes by—" Afterward he recalled that they might have looked out of the window, but at the time this did not occur to either of them.

"He's turnin' in," breathed Eunice. "It must be Brad."

Then relief so poignant that it was pain ran all through Jock, and his forehead was wet with beads of sudden perspiration. He dropped into a chair, and for the first time he spoke the Thing that had moaned to him in the wind and chattered at him from the tree branches. "I thought he was dead," he said. "Christ! I thought he was dead."

Eunice stood still, and he could feel her eyes. He glanced up. She was looking at him oddly, inquisitively, as though there was something there she could not understand. "Oh, but you adoah him, don't you," she murmured.

And then Brad came in.

He wore an old brown overcoat, frayed at the cuffs, and his hat was the battered felt that Jock remembered as far back as freshman year. His hands were bare and crimson with cold, and they hung at his sides limply. His whole body seemed limp. And his face . . . You shuddered away from the sight of it. Face of a man haunted, with eyes that saw things where there were no things. . . .

Why Overland's amazing Price Cuts are possible

—on the two most successful cars of their size and price class

Retail sales during July and August were the largest in Willys-Overland history. Over 39,000 were sold in these two months.

The original Whippet production schedule laid out in July called for 500 cars a day. Within 60 days it has been increased to 650. And now, at these amazing new low prices we anticipate a volume of 1000 Whippets a day—and from every present indication it will be quickly attained.

Sales of the Overland Six have also been gaining in tremendous volume. Over 60,000 were made last year. Each month sees another record broken. And at these startling, low prices we believe Overland Six production will reach over 100,000 this year.

Big volume makes low prices possible. Low prices bring big volume. This in brief is the economic reason behind this amazing price reduction.

If orders are placed at once prompt deliveries can be made. The time to buy is NOW!

It is called "KOTEX." Ends the insecurity of the old-time sanitary pad. Five times as absorbent! And deodorizes—ends ALL fear of offending.

GLITTER

By Katharine Brush

BOOK TWO—XX.

Jock began to wish that he had allowed himself to see more of Brad lately. He had remained away from the bungalow to avoid Eunice, of course, but he might have made an effort to meet Brad somewhere else occasionally. After that night, for instance. He should have gone straight to him and had a talk after that night at the Black-and-Tan, instead of pretending he didn't know a thing about it. There might have been some logical explanation. Perhaps he could have helped Brad in some way. He reproached himself bitterly now. "Fine friend I turned out to be! Passing by on the other side—"

Bones Allen moaned in his sleep, and Jock almost leaped at the sound. That noise! Noise that a man might make if he were hurt, wounded . . . or if he were pinned under an automobile somewhere on a deserted road, locked into a coupe like an animal in a cage. . . . Brad. . . .

"Here!" he told himself sharply. "I've got to cut this out, or I'll only upset Eunice more. Brad's all right. Sure he's all right. He probably got drunk or something, and forgot to come home." But this failed to convince him; Brad had never, to his knowledge, had a drink in his life.

Now. Ready, now. Down the stairs and across the hall. Ken Kennedy still standing there, staring. "Probably thinks I've gone nuts but I can't stop to explain now—damn this latch, anyway—"

The outside air was very cold, sharply cold, and the wind had teeth to it. Jock bent his head and hurried along, slipping with every step. He thought he had never seen a more horrible night. Black and bleak and lonely. No living thing. No light but the street lamps, pale pools of bluish white on the dead white snow. No sound but the dirge of the wind and the rattle of ice-coated branches . . . like skeleton fingers applauding. A graveyard night, unspeakably gruesome.

Suddenly he was terrified. Terrified of the night, and of the solitude, and of the errand. He began to run, and the quick steamy clouds of his breath were laden with fragments of little prayers. "Oh God, don't—don't let it be what I think it is—not Brad—not Brad—oh, this infernal night—God—" He fell, sprawling headlong, picked himself up only to fall again. He had a feeling of futility, a fear that he would never reach the place for which he was headed—that the elements would hold him back forever, and mock him, and make sport of him. "Oh, help me get there."

A train in the distance gave an eerie scream, and perversely, it steadied him. There were people, then, in this world. People asleep in two-tiered rows, behind high walls of swaying green curtains. Safe, and warm, and comfortable. He drew a vicarious warmth and comfort from thought of them. He lifted his head and laughed into the whipping wind. "Why, it's all right!" he said. "Brad's all right! I'm all right!" He laughed at himself, and swore. "Damn baby!"

The bungalow's windows threw gold across the sidewalk, visible for half a block, and cheerful, as though there might be a party on. One almost expected to hear voices and the lilt of laughter coming from within. One didn't though. Only silence. . . . He strode up the stairs and across the porch. The door fell open as his knuckles grazed it. . . .

"Oh, Jock!" cried Eunice. "Oh, Jock!"

He led her into the living room and put her down in a chair, disengaging the arms that clutched about his neck. "No word?" he said.

"No, no, nothing—"

Eunice's voice was hysterical. But it would have rung a little truer if her gown had not been so becoming and if her face had not been bright with cosmetics of obviously recent application. Jock had an intuitive flash: "She fixed herself up after she called me!" This filled him with swift cold wrath. Her husband inexplicably missing, possibly in danger, or—or worse, and she could have a thought for her appearance! But that was like Eunice. Selfish. Calloused. A really inhuman woman.

"Hang on to yourself, Eunice," he ordered curtly. "You'll have to help me think what to do."

"You can't do anythin', Jock."

"If I can't do anything what did you call me for?"

"Because I was so frightened! I wanted you—somebody—to stay heah with me until he comes—"

Jock stared at her. Then was this all a ruse, cunningly devised to bring him hot-foot to the bungalow? Was Brad's absence not ominous after all, but expected? "Eunice," he said, "tell me the truth. Where is Brad?"

"I don't know wheah he is, Jock," answered Eunice, and her tone was so blank tthat it was impossible to doubt her. "As I told you, he left heah about six-thirty in my cah. I asked him wheah he was goin' but he wouldn't tell me—just said, 'I'll be back at nine shahp, if not befoah.' I didn't think so much about it then because Brad's been actin' awfully peculiah lately anyhow, but when it got to be one o'clock and he still hadn't come I was afraid and called you."

Jock thought. "That's the truth. And I'll bet I know where he is! But why's he staying? Why did he say he'd be back at nine if he didn't intend to be? Why doesn't he telephone? Four hours — dregs of the world in those places—"

Eunice was continuing. "There isn't anythin' you can do but wait heah with me, Jock. If I knew wheah he is we could take yoah cah and go theah, but I don't even know that much." The hysterical note returned, whether premeditatedly or otherwise Jock could only conjecture. "Oh, Jock, you don't know what I've been goin' through lately—you haven't been around heah to see—but Brad's not the same, I tell you! He acts so funny. He leaves me alone all the time, and when he is heah he hardly speaks to me. Just sits and gazes at nothin'. If he did'nt give me so many presents I'd think he must be mad at me or somethin'—why, wheah you goin', Jock?"

Jack had started for the door. "I'm going to borrow a car," he said. "My roadster froze up solid this afternoon, but I'll borrow something and have a look around. I—maybe I can find Brad—"

Eunice followed him in a little rush. "Oh, take me—take me, Jock. Don't leave me heah all alo—"

She stopped, listening. They both listened. Remotely, but coming nearer, they could hear an automobile. Purr of its engine, and repeated clankety-clank of a broken tire chain against one of its mud guards. They still listened. "If it goes by—" Jock thought tensely "If it goes by—" Afterward he recalled that they might have looked out of the window, but at the time this did not occur to either of them.

"He's turnin' in," breathed Eunice. "It must be Brad."

Then relief so poignant that it was pain ran all through Jock, and his forehead was wet with beads of sudden perspiration. He dropped into a chair, and for the first time he spoke the Thing that had moaned to him in the wind and chattered at him from the tree branches. "I thought he was dead," he said. "Christ! I thought he was dead.."

Eunice stood still, and he could feel her eyes. He glanced up. She was looking at him oddly, inquisitively, as though there was something there she could not understand. "Oh, but you adoah him, don't you," she murmured.

And then Brad came in.

He wore an old brown overcoat, frayed at the cuffs, and his hat was the battered felt that Jock remembered as far back as freshman year. His hands were bare and crimson with cold, and they hung at his sides limply. His whole body seemed limp. And his face . . . You shuddered away from the sight of it. Face of a man haunted, with eyes that saw things where there were no things. . . .

King Bags 112 Grouse In One Day With Two Old Time Shot Guns

LEEDS.—King George made his record bag of 112 grouse in one day with two pairs of out-of-date double-barrelled hammer guns made for him forty years ago.

As a young man he laid the foundations of his great reputation as a shot with these guns—which the modern millionaire would refuse to use—and still clings to them for sentimental reasons.

At the end of each season they are sent to a gunsmith when they are "stripped" cleaned, overhauled, given a bath in oil, and put in storage until the next shooting season.

The brilliance of King George's feat can best be realized from the fact that shooting with hammer guns gives him half the time in which the average modern sportsman can shoot at driven birds with a hammerless ejector.

DAMAGE CASES TO BE ARGUED

Change of Venue Will be Sought in Salem Actions.

Motions in 19 damage actions pending in common pleas court against the city of Salem will be argued before Judge W. H. Spence next Monday wherein a change of venue will be sought at the hands of the court.

In these cases, the different plaintiffs in the main are represented by the law firm of Hart & Kohler at Alliance and in others this firm is also associated with C. M. Shetler for the plaintiffs.

The city of Salem is represented by City Solicitor Cecil K. Scott, Metzgar & McCarty, Boone & Campbell and K. L. Cobourn.

The motion to obtain a change of venue will suggest to the court that it will be impossible to secure an unprejudiced jury in this county to try these cases. Should the motion be sustained a jury from another county will be drawn to determine these issues.

DAMAGE CASES TO BE ARGUED

Change of Venue Will be Sought in Salem Actions.

Motions in 19 damage actions pending in common pleas court against the city of Salem will be argued before Judge W. H. Spence next Monday wherein a change of venue will be sought at the hands of the court.

In these cases, the different plaintiffs in the main are represented by the law firm of Hart & Kohler at Alliance and in others this firm is also associated with C. M. Shetler for the plaintiffs.

The city of Salem is represented by City Solicitor Cecil K. Scott, Metzgar & McCarty, Boone & Campbell and K. L. Cobourn.

The motion to obtain a change of venue will suggest to the court that it will be impossible to secure an unprejudiced jury in this county to try these cases. Should the motion be sustained a jury from another county will be drawn to determine these issues.

Which Is The More Dangerous?

The Polar trips this year were in every case outfitted with a most complete medicine chest. Do you believe they need one more than a modern family in a modern town infested with the modern germs and the modern ills of civilization? Isn't fall and winter the most dangerous time of the year?

Gene Tunney or Jack Dempsey

At the time this is being written we do not know who will be the winner of the big fight. Different fellows have given us the real dope, but it so happens that it is not all the same, but we have it from good authority that they both are regular visitors at Soda Fountains and they generally order Chocolate Malted Milk. No question but they are both good men physically. So if either of them comes to this city watch for them at our soda fountains.

When you use Sterling The Thousand Mile Oil

Averaging 14 miles to the gallon, you use a little over sixty gallons of gas to travel 1,000 miles.

While you travel on Sterling Oil you save 3c a gallon on gas, for Sterling Oil will carry you in safety over a thousand miles of road instead of the customary 500, before it is necessary to change your oil.

Honolulu Plantation Has Record Crop Of Sugar Production

HONOLULU.---More than 6,000 persons, 2,000 of whom were employes of Ewa plantation, this island, celebrated the end of the successful harvesting of a record crop of 52,841 tons of sugar. This is the second "harvest home" at Ewa plantation and one of the few such celebrations ever held in the inlands.

Last year Ewa had a crop of 50,800, which was itself a record. On "harvest home" day, every worker on the plantation is given a holiday and paid a full day's wages besides. Japanese, Filipinos, Chinese, Porto Ricans, Koreans and Portuguese make up the laboring class of the plantation.

Bus transportation in Denmark is stopping development of railways there.

"BIG PARADE" IS GREAT FILM

King Vidor's Picture Scores Hit at Ceramic.

"The Big Parade" made good and lived up to all the praise its friends and admirers had lavished upon it last night at the Ceramic theatre, when it reopened a three-day engagement. And the public is quick to respond to such exceptional entertainment. The King Vidor feature has four more performances, this afternoon and tonight, and Saturday afternoon and night.

Persons who have not seen this Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production are advised not to miss it. In particular this word is addressed to the folk who do not attend the usual picture exhibitions, for "The Big Parade" is something so out of the usual that it falls quite into a class by itself. It treats of the war to be sure, but in such a way that the memory is only one of keen entertainment.

There is much comedy in "The Big Parade" and John Gilbert as the hero quite outdoes himself—and in reality he is not heroic at all. Renee Adoree also stars in the production.

Queen To Visit Denver.

DENVER.—Denver will be included in the itinerary of the forthcoming American visit of Queen Marie of Roumania.

The royal mistress is expected to spend several days in this city, and elaborate plans are being made for her entertainment here.

A bicycle with wheeled braces on both sides of the rear wheel to keep the machine from tipping, has been introduced in Paris for the use of small children.

An Indian fakir recently demonstrated to doctors that he could vary his pulse at will, one wrist registering quickening heart beats while the other indicated that the heart was slowing down.

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK BREAKS RECORDS; 230,340 VISITORS TO DATE

YOSMITE—Yosemite National park is breaking all existing travel records. To date this season approximately 50,000 more visitors have entered the park than for the same period in 1525. Park authorities are confident this increase will be maintained until the close of the present travel season on September 30.

A statement released by Acting Superintendent E. P. Leavitt gives the number of visitors entering the park by all means of travel to date this season as 230,340 as compared with 182,332 for the same period in 1925. Automobiles numbering 61,762 have brought 194,533 visitors into Yosemite this season as against the much smaller totals of 42,035 automobiles and 134,146 persons for a similar period in 1925.

Honolulu Plantation Has Record Crop Of Sugar Production

HONOLULU.---More than 6,000 persons, 2,000 of whom were employes of Ewa plantation, this island, celebrated the end of the successful harvesting of a record crop of 52,841 tons of sugar. This is the second "harvest home" at Ewa plantation and one of the few such celebrations ever held in the inlands.

Last year Ewa had a crop of 50,800, which was itself a record. On "harvest home" day, every worker on the plantation is given a holiday and paid a full day's wages besides. Japanese, Filipinos, Chinese, Porto Ricans, Koreans and Portuguese make up the laboring class of the plantation.

Bus transportation in Denmark is stopping development of railways there.

Leads the World in Motor Car Value

The Simplest and Most Efficient 4 Wheel Brakes

Standard Equipment—No Extra Cost

Another vital Nash mechanical superiority is the special Nash 4-wheel brake system—the safest, simplest and most efficient type known to the industry.

They are of unique simplicity in design, having fewer points requiring lubrication than any other mechanical brake system.

Their instant, powerful, but velvety ease-ful pressure is scientifically distributed, 60% to the rear and 40% to the front.

The sixteen new Nash models now on display range in price from $865 to $2090 f. o. b. factory.

New Nash Features

MANY STRUCTURES NORTH OF CITY ARE CAUGHT IN PATHWAY OF GALE

Summitville, Hammondsville and Millport and Other Zones Also Suffer, While Railroad, Street Car and Telephone Service is Crippled by Landslides and Uprooted Trees and Poles.

One dead, at least four injured, property damage estimated at $100,000 and crippled street car, train and telephone service was the toll exacted by the tornado and rain storm which swept through the southern section of Columbiana county yesterday afternoon and last night.

Joseph F. Beadle, 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Beadle of the Stop 47 district, along the Youngstown and Ohio River railroad, seven miles north of here, died in the City hospital at 6:15 o'clock last evening from the effects of a crushed skull received when he was hurled beneath a section of a chimney after their three-room frame cottage had been leveled by the twister.

The injured include Mrs. Gladys Beadle, 28, mother of the child, who is in the hospital, suffering from two fractured ribs and bruises and lacerations to the body; James Burnip, 58, coal miner of Stop 47, who received scalp and face lacerations and an injury to his right leg; Peter Stapanovich, 16, high school student, of the same neighborhood, who sustained [illegible] ligaments in his left ankle, and [illegible] Reynolds, [illegible], daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reynolds, living about a mile west of the Stop 47, whose back was injured when she was struck by a copper kettle, caught by the 75-mile-an-hour wind after their home had been blown over.

At least six houses, five of them in the Stop 47 district, and the other in the village of Summitville, were completely wrecked and a half dozen others were damaged by the storm which first struck in the western part of the county and then whirled eastward. Dozens of barns, garages, chicken coops and smaller buildings were overturned, unroofed and otherwise damaged. Orchards and gardens also suffered.

Roosevelt's Warning.
Happy Young Couple.
Fighting the Devil.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.)

Copyright, 1926, by the Star Co.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT in his speech on Tuesday formulated a useful warning against intemperate measures to combat acknowledged evils.

A few rich men spent large sums at the primaries. It is suggested that the system of primary election be abolished. That would put complete power of nomination once more in the hands of crooked bosses. As well suggest return to monarchy or autocracy because government by the people does not always work smoothly.

TO cure the evil of intemperance, says Mr. Roosevelt, "we jammed through by caucus, by propaganda, by every method known politically," a prohibition law that has produced bootlegging, crime, drinking of whisky by high school boys and girls far more harmful than the condition we sought to remedy.

It is the old fable of the tame bear determined to kill a fly on the head of its sleeping master. The bear selected a large rock and did kill the fly. He also crushed his master's skull.

THE Belgian crown prince will marry Princess Astrid, niece of King Gustavus of Sweden. It is a royal love match and "the princess can cook." The Belgian crown prince, 24 years old, is "democratic and likes a glass of the popular Belgian beer, taken at a cafe table."

Most idyllic, but how long will royalty and royal jobs last? If the czar could come out of the hole in which his body was thrust he would see hundreds of thousands visiting the Lenin shrine, where the body of the Russian "saint," embalmed and natural as in life, lies with face exposed.

ONLY yesterday agents of that czar put Lenin's brother to death. The hour glass of history was turned upside down and Lenin put the czar and his whole family to death.

There are many businesses safer than the royalty business.

MRS. AIMEE SEMPLE McPHERSON, a lady preacher of Los Angeles, went off on a little trip and came back to announce her kidnaping and captivity in the desert. The district attorney says she was not kidnaped, "just went," so she will be tried, for deceiving justice—as though a high strung lady must tell the world about all of her little trips.

IS the lady evangelist downhearted? No. She and her friends organize a "fight the devil fund" of $100,000 to prove that her story is truthful.

THAT catching title, "Fight the devil fund," must interest old satan, if he really does exist, with his spiked tail, horns and cow hoofs. In these bootlegging days, it would take a big fund to fight the devil on a really big scale.

White and Miss Nan Stevenson Issue Statement.

With the declaration of peace, agreement was made to play the annual Turkey day gridiron game at Patterson field at 2:30 p. m. Thursday, Nov. 25.

Agree On Admission Prices.

The 1927 battle will be staged in Wellsville.

Prices of admission, division of receipts and submission of questions of eligibility to the commissioner of athletics of Ohio High schools were agreed upon, while the East Liverpool board disclaimed all responsibility for statements derogatory to Wellsville which were made following the break of four years ago.

The peace declaration was announced in a signed statement issued by D. F. White and Miss Nan Stevenson, presidents of the respective boards of education.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Sept. 24.—Pennsylvania railroad company employes today are repairing damage caused by the cloudburst yesterday in the Wells Creek, W. Va., district.

Bowdler's Attorneys Attack West Virginia Law In Brief

East Liverpool Man, Facing Prison Sentence, Answers Prosecution Fight Against Writ of Error Proceedings.

Constitutionality of the act passed by the West Virginia legislation in 1925 which regulates time limitations for the filing of petitions for writs of error, was attacked in the Ohio county courts at Wheeling yesterday by attorneys for A. E. Bowdler, former East Liverpool lawyer and Gordon Ulyatt, officials of the defunct Real Estate Guaranty Mortgage company, who are facing a five-year penitentiary sentence for violation of the state securities act.

The briefs were in reply to a motion filed by the state, asking that writ of error procedings be dismissed. Defense attorneys claim that the four-month time limitation fixed by the state is not sufficient for them to have transcripts made. The defense has until September 28 to file additional briefs while the state has until October 9 to answer.

WORLD COURT PATH IS ROUGH

Geneva Action May Block Entrance of America.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—America's actual entrance into the world court has been projected into the dim and misty future, if it has not been forestalled entirely, by the action of the powers at Geneva in evading the fifth of the senate's reservations.

This represents the concensus of opinion in Washington, pro-court and anti-court alike. The irreconcilables are elated over the refusal of the powers to accept the fifth reservation, which states that the world court may not render an advisory opinion in any case in which the United States "has or claims to have" an interest, without the consent of this government being specifically given. The pro-court forces are correspondingly glum. And yet withal rather helpless to remedy it.

Turk Case Ignored.

No indictments were voted against Joseph Fusco, Wellsville, in connection with Kenney murder, and Carl Turk, East Liverpool, who was arrested after an automobile accident in which Frank Spence of Lisbon was killed.

The report to the court disclosed that 110 witnesses were examined; 45 cases were presented, 24 transcripts ignored and one case continued.

Just before the jurors reported, they visited the county jail. The report of this visitation read: "We commend Sheriff George Wright and his wife for the clean and sanitary condition of the jail."

Following the report, several prisoners held in the county jail pending the action of the jury were released by Sheriff George Wright upon the suggestion of Prosecuting Attorney Robert M. Brookes.

Judge W. H. Spence announced that indicted persons would be arraigned at 9 o'clock next Tuesday morning.

TWISTER ALSO STRIKES SOUTHEASTERN ERIE COUNTY, DESTROYING HOMES

Storm Breaks Just as County Schools Near Huron Were Adjourning—At Least Dozen Injured.

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 24. — The southeastern section of Erie county today is a panorama of devastation—the result of a tornado which caused damage estimated at several hundred thousand dollars and injured at least a dozen persons.

The most seriously injured are:

Thomas Speegle, Huron, crushed by falling chimney.

Mrs. Samuel Bartley and two children, Huron, badly cut by flying debris.

Mrs. Alfred Huntley, Bloomingdale, crushed beneath falling building.

The tornado struck the southeast corner of Erie county, sweeping northeastward, thence out into Lake Erie.

In its course the wind dipped first about two miles north of Bellevue. Then it sped on, creating havoc at Perkins, Bloomingville, Storrs Corners, Oklahoma, Huron, North Ridge and Clyde.

More than 50 dwellings were razed by the tornado and hundreds more unroofed or otherwise damaged.

Estimates of the damage and reports of casualties are being delayed as communication within the stricken zone was cut off.

HURRICANE-STRICKEN FLORIDA HAVOC BEYOND DESCRIPTION, SAYS BIRKETT

Relatives Receive Letters From Honeymooners Who Were Unhurt When 100-mile-an-hour Gale Struck Miami.

Wreckage left in the path of the West Indian hurricane which swept the east coast of Florida last Friday night and Saturday "cannot be described," according to Willard Birkett, son of Dr. and Mrs. C. H. Birkett, of West Sixth street, who, with his bride, nee Louise Betz, of Thompson avenue, were spending their honeymoon at Miami Beach when the storm occurred.

Dr. and Mrs. Birkett yesterday received a letter from their son, stating that he and his wife had escaped without a scratch. Fears for the safety of Mr. and Mrs. Birkett were felt by relatives early last Monday when word was received here that the Wofford Hotel, where the Birketts were guests, had been destroyed.

The letter, delivered here yesterday, was written from the Hotel Frances, located at 19-21 East Third street, Miami, where Mr. and Mrs. Birkett had obtained rooms after leaving the wrecked Wofford Hotel on Sunday.

A letter was also received by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Betz, Thompson avenue, parents of Mrs. Birkett.

Birkett's letter to his parents, in part, was as follows:

"We got over here Sunday afternoon from the beach in a police car with special permits. We have handbags but don't know when we will get our trunks. Our things are not damaged very much while most everyone lost all their belongings or it was damaged beyond use. Just as soon as we can get our trunks and are able to get on the train, I am sure we are leaving. It will probably be in about two weeks.

Hotel is Wrecked.

"The Wofford hotel is practically a wreck and on Friday night and all day Saturday was really the first time I believe I was very scared for I thought we were done for, either killed inside the hotel with falling walls or washed out and drowned. The ocean was 15 feet deep around the hotel and when you looked out the windows you saw the waves going clear across the island to the bay.

"One man was killed Friday night in the lobby by a large block of concrete coming down through the building and crushing him. Several more standing near were missed. One wing

12-MILE TUNNEL

One-fourth of Population Rides Cars Daily.

CLEVELAND, O.—A $40,000,000 subway system for a penny from every man, woman and child who rides a street car.

That is the plan of Raymond T. Cragin, organizer of the Cleveland Subway company, and formerly representative in Cleveland of the Pennsylvania railroad.

Figures prominent in the nations' financial affairs are behind the "Penny Subway Line," it was learned. Through the backing of the Rockefellers, Sr., and Jr., who have extensive holdings in Cleveland, a New York bank has agreed to lend the necessary money, estimated at $40,000,000, to Cragin and his associates with which to build the subway. The Van Swearingen's Cleveland's prominent railroad promoters have also signified their intention of backing the project.

Plans Soon Ready.

Cragin's plans, which he will present to the Cleveland city council when the necessary papers for a franchise are prepared call for the construction of a 12 mile subway at somewhat less than $4,000,000 a mile.

The subway is to be built with money borrowed from the New York bank and in order to pay off the debt street car and bus fares are to be increased one cent per ride, the increase to be turned into the city coffers, under Cragin's proposal.

Estimates reveal that one and one-fourth of the population of a city is moved via street cars each day, Cragin said.

Cleveland's population is hovering about the 1,000,000 mark and at that average the penny a ride for each person would add $12,500 a day to the city's treasury; or $4,562,000 a year. In twelve years the city would be able to take over the system at the cost of construction plus accrued interest, according to Cragin.

City officials can then lease the subway system to any railway company desirable and the city treasury will be the recipient of a large yearly rental, the promoter declares.

This will be the first time that a subway project to be paid by the people's pennies will be tried in any city the promoter said. The present carfare in Cleveland is 6 cents, with a penny extra for transfers.

Madge Evans HATS

New Madge Evans Hats For Fall

There's no doubt about it—if the young Miss from 4 to 14 selects a Madge Evans hat for Fall, it will be a constant source of pleasure. Inside each hat you will find the Madge Evans label—a promise of prettiness.

This Fall, most of the Madge Evans' hats owe their distinctive effects to felt and velvet—but how much more can be accomplished with it than a few years ago.

Remember when stern milliners thought little girls were not to be seen as well as not to be heard? I do. They did not believe in soft, bright hats—or contrasting colors, either. True—it was a hat, but that did not help to make little girls sweeter or add to their prettiness.

These Madge Evans hats have found many ways to loveliness. Becoming effects have been worked out in bright colors, contrasting colors or dark shades with bright trimmings.

All colors to match the new Fall dress or coat. Youthful, becoming styles.

Priced from $3.95 to $8.50. Sizes for girls up to 14.

Famous Arctic Explorer, Accompanied by Eskimo Interpreter, Returns From Sojourn in Labrador.

NEW YORK.—Commander Donald B. MacMillen, famous Arctic explorer, accompanied by Abie Broomfield, Eskimo interpreter, has just returned from a three months' sojourn in Labrador, where he collected a car load of specimans of birds, animals and fish life which he forwarded to the Field Meseum in Chicago.

Commander MacMillan exploded several standard theories concerning radio during these past few months. The common idea that the aurora borealis was a barrier to perfect reception and transmission, MacMillan put aside by saying: "On nights of the most brilliant aurora, Paul McGee, our radio operator, did his best work. This alone would disprove the theory that the mere presence of the Northern Lights does not mean poor reception or transmission. Only when the aurora hung close to the earth, did reception become eratic."

MacMillan, while still speaking of the Northern Lights, told that natives of the far North have often seen hills or other objects through the aurora. This, he claims, disproves the theory that the Northern Lights are never nearer than sixty miles from the Earth's surface.

The Commander announced his intention of leaving next June, with the auxiliary schooner Bowdwin, and another boat, to establish a station for scientific research in Kowk, Labrador. This station, sponsored by the Field Museum, will be used for five years as a base from which the museum's scientists can work in their respective lines. For the duration of the five years, at all times there will be attached to the post, five scientists, each specializing in a separate field of research. In that way, they hope to be able to completely study the flora and fauna of Labrador.

As a field for research, MacMillan said, "I don't believe there is any other country in the world, so little known as Labrador. There are several species of fish in its waters, that man has known of for 175 years that have never been named, classified or scientifically examined. Also, during the six months day, there are 770 different varieties of flowers, many of which have never been recognized before."

MacMillan told of finding remains of old Norse settlements all along the Labrador coast. He believes that through these remnants of that sturdy race, he will be able to prove that the Vikings arrived in this New World long before the time of Columbus. They located these ruins, he said, by making use of the Eskimo legends and folk lore. MacMillan expects to excavate these spots when he returns with his station.

Abie Broomfield, 47, MacMillan's Eskimo dog driver and interpreter, until this trip to United States, has never been south of the Bering Sea before. He showed great interest in the subways and automobiles, but asked particularly to be taken to the aquarium, where he heard they had a Labrador seal.

Abie, who is a native of Jack Lanes Bay, Labrador, has been with Commander MacMillan for five years. He has taken several trips in the arctic with the explorer, and it is expected that he will be the official "interpreter and local color man" for the new station. He will remain in United States till next June, and return to the north with the Bowdwin. d

VIENNA. — Most of the Churches and Monasteries of Austria are being supported nowadays by the sale of their treasures. Particularly in the country districts the people are unable to support their parishes as before the war and large sums are needed to repair the buildings, which in most cases have not been touched for a decade.

The Bishopric of Mattsee is now offering its greatest treasure, the original volume of the "Annales Ferdinandei" for sale. The book contains an account of the private and political life of the Hapsburg Ferdinand II from 1615 to 1637 and is the most authentic history of the events leading up to the Thirty Years War.

EAST LIVERPOOL—AMERICA'S POTTERY CENTER

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 1926.

New Heavyweight Champion

The scholarly Gene Tunney, who has equipped himself to battle outside as well as in the boxing ring, is the new heavyweight champion of the world.

Beaten at his own game—slugging—Jack Dempsey, holder of the title since that memorable day at Toledo in 1919, when he defeated Jess Willard, was dethroned in a 10-round bout in the Sesqui-Centennial stadium in Philadelphia last night.

As 130,000 spectaors, the largest attendance at any sporting event in the history of America, looked on, the clever New York lad outboxed the champion and had him on the verge of a knock-out in the first round and near the danger mark in two other rounds. And when the tenth ended there was no doubt of the decision in the minds of the judges, referee and thousands of sport followers.

It was a clean-cut victory for a rank outsider in the betting—Tunney was on the short end of 2 1-2 to 3 to 1 wagers when he entered the ring. And the vanquished fighter was a pitiable sight as a result of the pummeling he received at the hands of the ex-marine.

And the ex-champion, whose showing proved a disappointment, had no alibi to offer for his defeat. "I don't know what was the matter with me," said Dempsey. "I couldn't get going. I fought a terrible fight."

The victorious Tunney, who won eight of the ten rounds and kept on even terms with the champion in the others, was all smiles and hardly showed a mark of the encounter.

It was the old,old story. Inactivity during the last two or three years, during which he had spent most of his time in motion pictures, was a handicap to the former title holder. He was not the Dempsey that entered the Toledo ring seven years ago, and he went down before a "man of destiny" who should prove a fighting champion.

The Wasted Fuel

The distressing thing about the petroleum situation is not that we use up so much of the petroleum, but that we get so little of what there is in the ground.

In the average oil field, drillers say, they only obtain about one-fourth of the oil that Nature placed in the underground pools. The oil is contained in certain strata of sand, with impervious rock above and below. The driller pierces the rock cover and the oil flows up. At first it is blown up under great pressure. Little by little it slows down. Thence comes pumping, and finally that will not avail. Yet when the pumps stop, there are still three gallons left in the sand to one obtained.

More may be got out by new methods, whereby artificial pressure is exerted on the oil-bearing sand to renew the flow. But two-thirds will still be wasted.

Incidentally there is a vast waste of gas. The gas blown into the air in many fields equals in value the oil obtained. And that gas is not only in itself the finest fuel ever used by man, but contains vast quantities of gasoline which could be extracted from it and added to the distilled supply. Henry L. Doherty says in one new field in Texas as much as 1,200,000,000 feet of gas, equal to 48,000 tons of coal, is lost every day.

Worse yet, the loss of the gas diminishes the oil supply. For it is the gas pressure in the sand that forces the oil up to the surface, and the more gas is allowed to escape in the early phase of any field, the less gas pressure is left and the sooner the oil flow stops. Here is a chance for double conservation which has not yet been fully realized.

Silk Price Control

The Japanese government, it is said, plans to subsidize the silk producers to enable them to withhold their product from the market when necessary, and so keep the price from falling too low.

It is some such assistance as Brazil has given her coffee growers, and it suggests the governmental support given the British Indian rubber producers in controlling market and prices. Japan is the greatest producer of raw silk, and the price has fallen more than 25 per cent in the last three years.

It is not likely, however, that Japan will go very far in this direction. For there is a trade weapon in this and other countries which is lacking so far in the case of rubber and coffee. Rayon, the artificial silk, can be used for almost any purpose the natural silk can be used for, and its quality is steadily improving. The United States can produce or buy all the rayon it wants, and has ample weaving facilities to supply its own market.

So great, in fact, is the development of this new industry that it may eventually put the silk worm out of business and drive Chinese and Japanese silk growers into some other industry.

The successful city man's biography usually tells that he was born on a farm. Maybe the successful farmers of the future are being born now in the city.

It's dreadful, says Lady Astor, for a mother, "when she has made her child's life a perfect thing, to send it out into an imperfect world." But somehow coddled children usually prefer imperfection.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Thoughts while strolling: Wish they'd locate those gas mains and quit digging. The shrieks and moans from the dentists' building on 40th street. Only two people I ever saw look like poets—Edna Millay and Richard Le Gallienne.

New York ladies are the best shod in the world. Big Bill Edwards. Bet his mother set a good table. The yellow elevated trains are sotty again. The blind pencil seller in front of the Henry Miller Theatre. Manicure parlors run by Flos and Dots.

Messenger boys escorting venerable ladies. Rollin Kirby, a cartoonist and poet. Dingy hotels named for famous men. The black-befrocked attendants in funeral parlors. The editor of a gossipy weekly who wears a monocle. Little Billy, the midget actor.

Those strapping uniformed movie doormen. Nudity certainly means little along the Rialto. "Hire 'em and leaf 'em!" Whatever became of the skirt dance? Salvation lassies imploring Broadwayites to think of their mothers. The first raccoon coat.

A ticket agency solicits orders for Xmas trees. Those tiny butterfly shops aglitter with baubles. More of those glossy haired and hatless Orientals. Like a bagful of foxes. A tipsy young girl in a patrol wagon—chewing gum.

Actors with police dogs. A suit case falls out of a taxi. And seems to be leaking. The perfect fool—Ed Wynn. Not Browning. Old sports with limps. Flappers with skips. Why do most optical store clerks wear glasses?

Cafe announces three orchestras. Most of them play one tune and sing the rest. The hunting room of the Astor—where movie magnates lunch.

The man who made a fortune printing theatre programs.

At one of those swank cane stores I learned the "male malacca" was worth $10 more than the "female." Malacca is imported chiefly from the Straits Settlements. It is valuable because of its tough skin and strength. Some s prettily clouded, some mottled and light and dark brown. The most valuable canes are those of one piece having bark the entire length. They range from $40 to $60.

Evidently ukelele twanging is not a passing fad. Dealers report more sold during the past few months than ever before. They are now on sale in chain drug stores. There are a dozen studios in the Broadway environs guaranteeing perfection in from six to a dozen lessons.

Next in popularity just now is the harmonica. It is effective in bringing out plaintive wails of those "blue" ditties. The mandolin seems passe.

The smallest musical instrument store in the world is for sale. It is in that intersection block on 47th street where Seventh avenue crosses Broadway. It is about the size of the interior of a taxicab with a little more height yet it contains almost every instrument from the piccolo to the bull fiddle. The proprietor evidently has a keen longing for the great open spaces. There is not room for more than two customers at the same time. He has been able to make a good living.

And on upper Broadway the largest dog shop in the world is scheduled to open around the holidays. It will occupy an entire floor of a block long building. Every comfort for the dog is to be installed—grassy plots to play an artificial lake, exercising contraptions and a show ring for display as large as the ordinary circus ring.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

India Considers the Gold Standard.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—In view of the agitation concerning government relief for the American silver mining industry, which has been going on during and since the war, the prospect of India turning to a gold standard is of special interest to the United States. India and China are the two great countries of the world which set up silver as the monetary standard backing their currency issues.

It will be remembered that, during the war, the United States, at the instance of Great Britain, exported millions of dollars worth of silver to India to meet the increased demand consequent on war activity.

Silver is a commodity which varies in price even as coal, grain or similar articles do. Before the war the United States was buying the silver required to make one silver dollar for about fifty cents. Rising in price with other commodities, silver went up to a peak price of $1.26 and this country was faced with the necessity of paying for the silver in a dollar more than the legal tender value of the coin.

Senator Pittman of Nevada, with the aid of Treasury experts, drew a bill designed to stablize the price of silver. It provided that in no case should the United States Mint be required to pay more than one dollar for the ounce of silver required for the coin.

There has been much protest among the silver miners of the West who have declared that the cost of mining silver has risen with the cost of producing other commodities and that they are entitled to a higher price. Nevertheless, the price of silver has dropped down again to a point not far from its pre-war value.

These vicissitudes and fluctuations show how treacherous silver is as a standard of currency value for any country largely engaged in world trade. Any amount of speculation in foreign exchange is invited and more than ordinary astuteness is required in the importer or exporter if he is to keep his business from suddenly being ruined by a shift in the silver quotation.

All these considerations have induced the British government and the Indian authorities to carefully consider a gold standard and it seems likely that such a reform will take place. It appears that certain contracts between the Imperial Bank of India and the Bank of England must be permitted to expire before the change can be made but, as these expirations do take place in a relatively short time, the British and Indian experts already are at work on their plans for the conversion.

Special commissions have made exhaustive investigations into the complicated currency and credit system of India and a number of suggestions have been made but it appears that the one most likely to be adopted provides for the erection of a central bank, which would be a bank authorized to issue notes. The system proposed is not unlike the Federal Reserve System operative in the United States, save that one central bank is proposed rather than a central system composed of twelve units such as we have in this country.

Has Three Kinds of Money.

At present India has three kinds of money. Two of them are based on the silver standard. The rupee is a silver coin havin a normal value of 1 shilling, 4 pence. This is the principal medium. Then there is a paper currency in the form of rupee notes, based on the actual coins. These two forms of currency are mutually convertible: that is, one is worth just as much as the other.

The thir form of currency is the British gold sovereign. This coin was established by statute as a legal tender on the theory that India should have at least one gold medium of exchange. The statute provides that the government shall at any time redeem gold sovereigns at the rate of 10 rupees per sovereign.

Because of the long usage of silver and consequent familiarity with it and, further, for intricate exchange reasons, the gold sovereign has never actually passed into general circulation and has been a failure as an addition to the currency facilities of Indian trade. Practicallly all of the commercial business of India is done with silver, either in the form of coin-

BACK TO GOD'S COUNTRY.

Soon after the Civil war ended a former trooper of Morgan's cavalry moved from his home in the Bluegrass region to California. He was a gentleman of genial habits and a natural orator. It was almost inevitable, therefore, that sooner or later he should enter politics. He announced as a candidate for the legislature on the Democratic ticket. He made a spirited campaign, but when the primary returns were in, of three candidates the ex-Confederate had finished third.

He called a meeting of his friends and made a speech. It was short but complete.

"Gentlemen," he said, "I'm going to quit this cussed country. I'm going back to Kentucky—the only fit place for a Southern white gentleman to live—where the niggers make your crop for you and the sheriff sells it."

GERMANS EAGER TO GET CROWN AT AMSTERDAM

Hope to Win Laurels in 1928 Olympic Games.

MUST BEAT U. S.

Papers See America "Pricking Up Ears" at Teutons.

BERLIN.—"Will the Germans be able to tear the crown off the heads of the American Olympic team at the 1928 Amsterdam Games, will they mean serious competition for the Americans at all and break the American world hegemony in sports?"

This is the question on the lips of thousands of German sportsmen and it is being ventilated by numerous sporting editors in view of the undoubtedly great success German sportsmen had in the National British Championships and the three-entry games at Basel where the Germans beat the elite of the Swiss and French athletes to a frazzle.

Almost every day the papers carry some story about "Uncle Sam pricking his ears" or, "Americans fearing for their athlete hegemony," which shows that they are all looking to the United States for praise or criticism. Most editors warn against premature rejoicing pointing out that the "Americans will double their efforts to make it hard for the Germans."

Two Years Away.

Also stress is laid on the fact that "two years are a long time," that the Amsterdam Games are out of measurable time in the sporting sense. "Plenty of water will go down the rivers before that time," some critics say, "and it is to be shown yet whether the Germans will keep up their good record and be well prepared for the battle."

This, indeed, is one of the weakest points in German sporting life; endurance and keeping fit for a prolonged time. It is one of the drawbacks in German amateur sport that the German "cracks" are not being sufficiently suported by their clubs and by private people. The result is that they are compelled to make a living in the very sense of the word, for the German amateurship regulations are very stringent in that respect. Consequently most of the German stars lack a proper systematic training, with the exception of a few student athletes who are financially independent as they are living on "father's pocket." The "sporting fever" has not yet seized the Germans to an extent that "bosses" and superiors will shut their eyes on their sporting employees' extra holiday on the occasion of big sporting events in Germany or abroad.

Systematic Training.

Anyhow, under the leadership of the Reich coach, the German American Waitzer the German team already started systematic training for the Amsterdam games and the results, so far, have been beyound expectation.

Many critics doubt the German ability to compete successfully with the Americans because Germany has not yet fully developed the type of the "all around" athlete, in which the Americans are excelling and who scored many, many points for their team in all Olympic games. True to his individualistic nature, the German rather developed half a dozen "specialists" who, doubtlessly may be counted among the best athletes of Europe, if not the world.

Among thkese are Dr. Pelzer, of Stettin, the man who won the English mile championship in a world record time and several short distance sprinters including the young students Koernig (Breslau) and Corts (Stuttgart). Also, Hubert Houben, who failed to achieve any notable success while in the states, "is coming back" and ran a life and death race in the German relay team at the three-country games at Basel, Switzerland.

That the Germans are trying hard is shown by the fact that a German jumper of 1,368 meter heighth scored 1,87 meter in high jump that is he jumped about twenty centimeters more than his own heighth, which is certainly not the rule with high jumpers.

Georgia Judge Would Give Auto Thieves Chain Gang Sentences

ATLANTA.—Longer terms on Georgia chain gangs were urged by superior judge John T. Humphries in denouncing the practice of giving suspended sentences to youths convicted of stealing automobiles. Judge Humphries made the recommendation in charging the county grand jury.

Pointing out that 1,308 cars were stolen in Atlanta in the space of one year, Judge Humphries declared automobile thievery will never be curbed unless stiffer sentences are imposed.

Judge Humphries also hit the practice of discriminating in favor of youths who came from good families.

BRITAIN FEARS NEW AGITATION IN RED CIRCLES

Release of Five Communist Leaders Brings Anxiety.

OTHERS IN JAIL

Committees Reported Formed to Foster Trouble.

LONDON.—Communist agitation on a wide and increasing scale is feared by the government this month when five of Great Britain's leading Communists are released from the prison where there have been confined since last November for sedition.

An official warning has been issued to the country by the Home Office that a new Communist propaganda campaign is in the making, and that is the plan of the agitators to provoke a further series of strikes and other labor disturbances to prevent the return of industrial peace.

Among the Communists soon to be at liberty again is Albert S. Inkpin, secretary of the Communist party of Great Britain, who has been in numerous clashes with the police and other civil authorities.

Others in Jail.

The others are Harry Pollitt, secretary of the Minority Movement and a member of the Red International; William C. Rust, secretary of the Young Communist League; Walter Hannington, secretary of the Communist Unemployed Worker's Committee Movement; and William Gallacher, a member of the Comunist Executive.

Pending their release, the party's propaganda in Great Britain is said to be under the direction of George Hardy, a former general secretary of the Industrial Workers of the World in the United States. Hardy is the secretary of the National Minority Movement, which has been described by Sir William Joynson-Hicks, the Home Secretary as a branch of the British Communist party.

Hardy recently organized a national conference of the Minority Movement for the purpose of discussing the alleged inability of the present Trade Union leaders to look after the needs of the working classes. The conferences decided to make an effort toward altering present policies of the Trade Union Congress, and has set out to take the lead "in emphasizing the need for unity, nationally and internationally."

Lord Rothermere's View.

The view of Lord Rothermere's Daily Mail on Hardy's activities is that he is engineering a "renewed and more intensive attempt to destroy British industry."

"Several hundred factory committees," the Daily Mail said, "have been formed to foster trouble, and the preliminary agitation is to be carried on largely by means of an increased number of inflammatory workshop papers. The chief object of the mischief-makers is to provoke a repetition of the disturbance thay caused in the mercantile marine a year ago, when a vast tonnage of British shipping was held up, and they are to concentrate also on forcing strikes in the engineering, iron and steel, and textile industries."

It is also declared that the Moscow Commuist International has shown some irritation with the failure of the British Communists to promote a real revolution, and have therefore decided upon a new offensive through the agency of the National Minority Movement.

Organization Overhauled.

"With this object," says an authoritative statement, "the organization of the body throughout the country has been overhauled and a large number of professional agitators have been brought into service.

"Provision has been made for the five Communist leaders who were sentenced to a year's imprisonment for seditious conspiracy to take charge of the campaign when they are released from Wandsworth prison."

The government is fully aware of the program for the new propaganda assault, the imprisoned Communists and their associates will be shadowed by Scotland yard detectives from the moment they leave their cells, and it is altogether likely that they will again be brought up against the law if their new utterances or writings are found to be of a sort regarded dangerous to civil peace.

U. S. SOLDIERS WILL BE MADE BEST EDUCATED

"Join Army and go to School," Exclaims Vet.

ORDERS ISSUED

Next War May See Science Triumph Over Strength.

WASHINGTON.—Uncle Sam's military experts have a new goal—to make the American soldier the best educated in the world.

From the highest officer to the lowliest private school days have taken on a real meaning under the new scheme. The West Pointer who used to represent the last word in military preparation now grabs his sheepskin and starts for another Army School.

"Join The Army and Go To School" exclaims the veteran, hard-boiled doughboy in derisive tones. But the highest officers in the Army take the matter more seriously.

The World War brought into play scientific forces on a scale never dreamed of by military experts, and many predict the next war will see the complete triumph of science over brute strength.

The Army War College, housed in an imposing building overlooking the Potomac river, with a "campus" as trim as any to be found throughout the country, has opened its fall term with the same sort of exercises to be found in any other institution of learning.

Grizzled general officers are among the seventy-six to reach the college for a final determination of their eligibility to the general staff. They listen to lectures and they are called on to "recite."

Scores of other Army schools thruout the country and in the Philippines call the lesser officers, the non-coms and the privates. The War Department is now detailing to many state universities a limited number of officers whose tuition is paid in order that they may develop their knowledge of some particular subject and become an expert in time of war.

Every private is being urged to take advantage of wide opportunities presented for increasing his general learning, and all sorts of trade instruction is offered. Some schools are required, but many are voluntarily.

An Army captain who commanded a cavalry troop tells of a bright, young chap who had been employed by a telephone company as a laborer and after he entered the Army refused to listen to suggestions for volunteer schooling. After patient argument he was induced to take up the study of electricity. Now, says the captain, he is boss of the telephone company outfi in which he used to be a laborer.

The largest Army schools are to be found at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, and Camp Benning, Georgia, devoted chiefly to military subjects. But general instruction is scheduled there as well as in schools conducted at many army posts.

STORM WREAKS HAVOC HERE

Cellars, Streets Flooded as Rain Sweeps City.

Scenes of devastation of a nature even more pronounced than on the occasion of previous storms marked the western section of the city today as a result of another terrific rainstorm early this morning.

Streets were inundated, cellars were filled with water and mud and streams of water poured through yards of residences along various streets and byways for the Fourteenth street to Eighteenth street district.

As the rain abated early this morning, Commerce street from Eighteenth to as far as Fourteenth, gave the appearance of a creek, water running curb high and in places, over the sidewalks and into yards.

Several residents of the district characterized the results of the storm as the worst in a long period of years and even worse than the other storms of recent weeks.

Two feet of water was reported in front yards along sections of Maple avenue.

The McQueen's Run Hollow sewer, broken near Maple avenue in the first of the series of rain storms, disgorged torrents of water, accompanied by rock and gravel, as the sewer, filled to capacity, could carry no more.

Streams of water coursed through yards in Eighteenth street. This morning property owners were out in force with hoes, rakes, picks and shovels in an effort to clear their yards and sidewalks.

Clark avenue, from Eighteenth street to the McLain company brick yard, was covered with rock, gravel and earth. A portion of the street, at the Twenty-second street-Clark avenue intersection was washed away as water pounded through the sewer underneath the street.

The city service department again was on the job this morning its efforts of the past several weeks having been practically wasted as a result of this morning's rain.

Plan Corn Roast.

Fred Hughes and Cal McElroy will be hosts to Knights and Ladies of the Golden Eagle at a corn roast and weiner sizzle to be held Saturday evening at the McElroy home in Wells avenue.

CLUB DELEGATES TO GIVE REPORTS

Reports of delegates who represented the Wellsville Kiwanis club at the Kiwanis state convention in Columbus the first three days of the week will be heard by club members at their regular noon luncheon meeting next Tuesday in the Second Presbyterian church, Eighteenth street.

E. T. Ewing and George Davis were the delegates from the Wellsville club. In addition to the delegates, approximately 17 other members and their wives attended the convention.

As a result of its representation, the Wellsville club won sixth place in the attendance rating, and received a prize, a leather traveling bag, as the result. Approximately 10 attendance prizes were awarded under auspices of the Columbus club.

GRID SQUADS SET FOR CLASH

Former High Stars Will Battle Klinck's Eleven.

With both elevens in condition, the lid will be pried off the local scholastic football season tomorrow afternoon at Hammond park when Coach Earl Klinck's school lads clash with the Alumni.

The contest is scheduled to get under way at 3:30 o'clock.

School authorities have had a force of workmen in action on the Hammond park gridiron and it is expected to be in good condition for the opening battle.

Grid stars of recent years will make up the Ex-High roster for the first engagement in a number of years in which Alumni and Highs have clashed.

Captained by Raymond Rolley, the starting lineup probably will be as follows:

Ends, Rolley and Dick Keay; tackles, Harold Miller and Dwight Arbaugh; guards, Jim Shea and Jim Fitzgerald; fullback, Brookes; halves, John Campbell and Don Miller; quarter, Kenneth Miller or Harry Kampmann; center, Kenneth Wilson.

Other members of the squad will include Everett Andrews, Paul Kessell and Dick Duty.

John Gilbert in the "Big Parade" at the Ceramic theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday, with matinee Friday and Saturday.

MEET OLD FOES ON TURKEY DAY

Announcement of a resumption of diplomatic relations with East Liverpool high school, as a result of a conference between the respective boards of education here last night, was received with joy by high school students at their weekly chapel session this morning.

The announcement was made by Superintendent S. E. Daw, who stated that the chief feature of the school's athletic menu on next Thanksgiving day will be the game with East Liverpool, the first since 1922.

A short musical program was rendered in connection with the exercises.

Establish Quiet Zone.

Relatives of Dr. E. F. Swift, seriously ill at his home in Main street, between Seventh and Eighth streets, have requested that automobile and other vehicles be operated as quietly as possible past the residence. Little change was noted today in Dr. Swift's condition.

SCHOOL FIGURES ABOUT NORMAL

Wellsville public school enrollment is practically normal, according to an announcement today by Superintendent S. E. Daw, figures showing attendances in the system of slightly more than 1,800 students.

The high school enrollment is normal, with approximately 400 students in the various classes. Classes are crowded in the Central and West End buildings, while there is a slightly smaller attendance at East End.

Returns from McConnellsville.

Mrs. Pearl Perry, who has been a patient at the McConnellsville sanitorium for the past two years, has been removed to her home in Hillcrest. Her condition is reported to be improved.

Recovering from Operation.

Miss Lois Burbick, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burbick, of the Lisbon road, is said to be recovering following an operation for appendicitis Wednesday in the East Liverpool City hospital.

JACK DEMPSEY SHORN OF TITLE IN UNDRAMATIC SETTING

Wanted To Die With Good Sock On Button But He Didn't Get It

Second Rate Fighter, Says Walsh, is New Heavyweight Champion of World; Jess Willard's Plight Recalled as "Man Killer" is Tamed by Gene, the Fighting Marine.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 24.—"When I lose my title, I'll be flat on my back and thoroughly socked on the chin."

That has been Jack Dempsey's story for years, but last night he was not flat on his back, nor was he too thoroughly socked on the chin, but he lost the heavyweight championship of the world, and he lost it in a manner that was not dramatic, nor even impressive. He simply had a fight with another man, and the other man won.

The other man won. It wasn't close, it wasn't even a good fight. The man that everybody has been talking about for years went down to defeat without flying the colorers a good, game fighting American. He had his chance. He hit the challenger on the jowl often, but he didn't have the punch and a second rate fighter went out to win the heavyweight title, the greatest gift competitive sport has to offer.

Gene Tunney is not a fighter. Personally, I could think of three men who could beat him today and for all I know, his winning of the heavyweight title may mean a round robin series of fights in which it would be entirely possible for a contender like Johnny Risko to win the title. That's how bad Gene Tunney is.

Tunney has his chance to make a showing in beating Dempsey, but he would not take advantage of it. He fought a retreating fight, scoring only because the former champion couldn't hit him, and the challenger, soon to be crowned, was able to land with counter punches.

But it was a tragic thing to see Dempsey lose as he did lose. Whatever idea he may have had in mind became a futile, empty gesture. When he went back to his corner, from the first round, in which he took a thorough shellacking, Gene Normile attempted to tell the champion what to do. It was one of the few laughs of the occasion. Jack simply pushed Gene's wagging jaw away with his gloved hand, and that was that.

The champion, soon to be shorn of his title, was Jess Willard all over punch on the jaw and thought he was the only guy who knew what it was again, a man who was due to take a all about.

When Willard was socked on the chin at Toledo he went down and he tried to laugh. Dempsey was socked on the chin last night. He did not go down, but he tried to laugh. He couldn't. That's why it was tragic. A man who had popped off all his life about dying with his boots on died a competitive death, and in the dying failed to give the customers so much as a thrill.

school boy caught playing hookey—as indeed, he had, for more than two years.

Tunney was as nervous as a bride, sparring, backing, boxing until it dawned on him that he was roped in with a phantom, a shadow without substance.

Even then he never assumed the aggressive, except in the last two rounds, when he had the championship in his hand and should have taken no chances.

An astoundingly stupid fighter is this Tunney. He won every round from what had been a truly miraculous champion, and yet he came forth convicted of almost every misdemeanor known to smart ring generalship. He could have knocked Dempsey out in the first round if he had forced his way; he should have dispatched him in any of the following rounds. But, when he had the world to gain he was careful, and when he was already champion before the decision that made him so, he was undecided, now forcing it, again taking to his heels.

Dempsey was a pathetic spectacle. He started with his face green, set in a silly grin. He tried to put on the snarl of the murderer, but his features wouldn't respond because his heart wasn't there. After he got a few cracks on his jaw, he folded up as he did in the first eleven rounds of his match with the late Bill Brennan.

Spitting gobs of blood, his left eye closed tight, his right cut and bleeding from a ragged wound, he bobbed and crouched and missed and swung and puffed and tried to look ferocious.

Like a grotesque, synthetic thing, his tailor-made nose stood forth in the middle of the face like some fantastic butterfly that had fluttered into a slaughter house.

TUNNEY SHORT AS CHAMPION

Greatest Title Falls Into Low Estate Says Writer.

By Jack Lait.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 24.—The heavyweight champion has paid that toll which the proverbs say must go to youth. Jack Dempsey, who, at his worst can always tell his children's children that he once was a champion, lost in the sesqui-centennial stadium last night to one Gene Tunney, who though he is the champion will never be a champion.

The heavyweight title, proudly owned by Sullivan, Corbett, Fitzsimmons, Jeffries, has indeed fallen into a low estate in the stewardship of the intellectual Tunney. At least three men fought in the preliminaries who could lick him the best day of his life, which is today.

The lamb slew the butcher, yes. But it was an active, vigorous lamb and a weary, sagging old butcher who showed upon a face that once was famous for its perfect delineation of the fighting man, a careworn and tortured expression.

The "experts" who said that Dempsey was in the pink of fighting condition should wash their mouths with soap. This veteran reporter, who has taken in every important boxing match of his period, and that ranges back a few years, has never seen a sorrier defender of a title since that pitiful afternoon in Reno when Jim Jeffries staggered forth to do battle with Johnson.

It took no sharpshooters to call the turn. It required no referee or meticulously chosen judges. Before Jack Dempsey, the killer of old, had dragged his listless and lifeless carcass half way across the soggy ring at the clang of the opening gong, it was a foregone cinch. The man was unfit to fight. No contender in history ever got the break that Tunney did—weighing 185 pounds, a defense boxer, a so-so hitter and a 3-to-1 outsider, catches the champion of champions in such a situation and coming out the monarch of pugilism.

The whole business was off key. Fancy a heavyweight king who drew 132,000 people and $2,000,00 never being introduced and the alleged aspirant not even rising to take a bow when his name was called.

It was raining. Tex Rickard had taken his pitcher to the well once too often. He had put on seemingly endless preliminaries, meaningless combats between unimportant nobodys, until far after nine-thirty. And by the time Dempsey and Tunney got into the ring, it was pouring so that no one cared much about anything. Then they started taping—yards and yards of gauze they wound about the hands of the supposedly two best gladiators in the whole world.

And when it finally started, it was wetter than ever. Dempsey, that notorious devastating mauler, shuffled out of his corner with the look of a

"BEAT ME AT MY OWN GAME"

"No, I Haven't Any Alibi," Says Defeated Champ.

By James L. Kilgallen.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 24.—"Tunney beat me—he beat me fairly and squarely." Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion of the world, this morning looked back over the tragic, to him, events of the night before.

"He met me at my own game, slugging, and he whipped me at it."

A pause. Obviously the dethroned champ didn't want to talk. Then:

"I haven't any alibi. I just don't know what was the matter with me. I couldn't get going. I fought a terrible fight—a terrible fight."

No one who watched the once great Dempsey battle Tunney in a lashing rainstorm in that 20-foot elevated ring beneath blazing Kleigh lights with 130,000 people watching the drama with death-like stillness in the great U-shaped sesqui-cenntennial stadium, will deny that Dempsey fought a bad fight.

For no one who witnessed it close up will ever forget the spectacle of the bloody Dempsey walking to his corner when the bell rang at the end of the tenth round.

The light of defeat was in Dempsey's eyes. He knew he was beaten and he seemed about to run out of the ring without awaiting the official decision.

Instead, however, he checked himself, and slowly walked to his corner. His bloody head bowed, and extending his hands across the ropes and looking out upon the vast, rain soaked throng, he cried like a schoolboy.

Yes, cried. Tears coursed down his cheeks and he tried to brush them away with his blood-stained gloves.

His face had been literally cut to ribbons. His left eye was completely closed and blood was oozing from it. The left side of his face had been battered out of proportion, giving him a weird, ghastly appearance.

There was a deep horizontal gash about two inches in width directly below his right eye. Blood was trickling down from his wound. His bronzed face had been pummeled so much that it resembled the pinkness of a baby's.

The famous scowl was gone. Instead, despair was etched deeply into his grim features and he seemed to be in the deepest mental pain. His thoughts, one surmised, cut him worse even than Tunney's blows.

Over in the other corner, the victorious Tunney, all smiles, and hardly showing a mark, was busy shaking hands. Photographers, anticipating the announcement declaring Tunney the victor, leaped into the ring calling upon him to pose for a picture. Dempsey was ignored by the cameramen. And into the ring jumped a dozen or more marine officers, surrounding the victor and slapping him on the back effectionately. It was Tunney's big money. He had proved to everybody's satisfaction what he said he believed he was—a "man of destiny" as far as the heavyweight championship of the world was concerned.

Fight Results

AT PHILADELPHIA—Gene Tunney won decision and world's heavyweight championship from Jack Dempsey, ten rounds.

Tommy Loughran, of Philadelphia, won decision over Jimmy Delaney, St. Paul, six rounds.

Harry Persons, of Sweden, defeated Sergeant Jack Adams, St. Louis, on technical knockout in the fourth of scheduled six rounds.

George Godfrey, of Peiperville, Pa., won decision over Bob Lawson, Alabama, six rounds.

Monte Munn, Lincoln, Neb., knocked out Hugo Clements, Camden, N. J., in first of scheduled six rounds.

Jack De Mave, of Hoken, N. J., knocked out Joe Stossell, of New York, in third of scheduled six rounds.

Yale Okun, of New York, won decision over Martin Burke, New Orleans, six rounds.

By Garry Schumacher.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 24—"What has been the greatest ambition of my life has been realized. I have won the heavyweight championship of the world.

"But in winning the championship I set another goal for myself. And that is to be worthy of the title; to be a champion in fact as well as in name.'

In that earnest and modest manner did Gene Tunney, the devil dog pride of Greenwich Village, New York's first heavyweight champion, accept the honors he won with the weight of his fist in the rain soaked sesqui arena last night.

"I never had any doubt as to the outcome. I was confident when the match was made that I would be the next champion of the world and my confidence increased as my training progressed. I knew I was 'right' and I was ready to make the fight of my career.

"In the ring I was sure of myself every second. Not one of Dempsey's punches hurt me. I think I proved to the great crowd that I was his master.

"Jack fought a clean fight and the referee, Tommy Reilly, handled it perfectly. It was rather unfortunate the bout was marred by rain but I think it handicapped me more than Dempsey.

NEWELL PLANS STRONG ELEVEN

First Formal Practice Scheduled for Monday.

In an effort to make the Laughlin football team one of the strongest semi-pro grid organizations in this section of the valley, officials of the club are scouring the district for the best material available.

A first class team is the object of the Laughlin plant and no stone will be left unturned in efforts of the organization's management.

The squad, according to present arrangements, will be made up of players from all six shops of the company, including both those at Newell and at East End, and, as well, best material available from outside sources, it was announced today.

The management places special emphasis on the latter arrangement and is now in search of gridders who will bolster the shop roster.

Although several informal workouts have already been held, the first regular workout is scheduled for Monday evening at 5:30 o'clock at Newell park and it is possible that at least three other practice sessions will be held during the week.

The Laughlin eleven is fortunate in obtaining the services of Ernest Bucher, former high school and Denison U., athlete who has also had experience in the coaching line.

PENNANT RACES

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—If Cincinnati wins only one game of its doubleheader with Philadelphia this afternoon, St. Louis can clinch the National league pennant by beating the Giants. Should the Reds win all their remaining games, including the contest with St. Louis on Sunday, St. Louis would be forced to defeat the Giants both today and tomorrow in order to do better than tie Cincinnati.

The Reds had a close call yesterday, barely managing to hold the Phillies to a fifteen-inning tie. This game will be played off in this afternoons doubleheader.

The Yankees play the St. Louis Browns today while Cleveland engages the Athletics in a doubleheader. New York needs three victories out of four to clinch the pennant, providing Cleveland makes a clean sweep.

St. Louis led the Reds by two and one-half games this morning, while the Indians trailed the Yankees by two games.

Dempsey Praises Tunney New Champ

Jack Dempsey, dethroned champ, has nothing but praise for the new title holder.

"I think that in meeting Gene Tunney, I met the best man, by far, that I have ever faced in my career," he declared today.

"Gene has been a credit to the game, through all the years he has been fighting and the real comfort I have in surrendering my title to him is that the new heavyweight champion is an honor to the game, a fine young American and one who will always uplift boxing."

City League Flag Rivals Will Finish Series Tomorrow

Will Resume Warfare On Chester Diamond

SUSTAINED interest is strongly manifest in the forthcoming deciding contest of the City Industrial Baseball League's "baby world's series" between Chester and Newell, which will be staged tomorrow afternoon at Smith field, Chester, beginning at 3 o'clock.

Besides being the final game of the series and the season it will also qualify as a benefit contest for Carl Moran, former league player and scorer, who, in an unfortunate accident at Midland, Pa., lost a leg last month.

The contest will go the full route.

The two flag rivals failed to settle the question of supremacy in last Wednesday's contest at Chester as a result of a rain storm in the fourth inning which ended the clash before the half way mark had been reached.

When hostilities were suspended, Sol McCoy's Laughlin aggregation was leading by a count of 7 to 4.

Mundy's Stars Open Series Sunday With Salem Elks On Sherwood Lot

One district baseball series here will close on Saturday and another will be opened on Sunday. City Industrial league teams, weather permitting, will finish the season tomorrow. On Sunday afternoon at Sherwood, the East Liverpool All Stars, including players picked from Industrial league clubs, will tackle the Salem Elks in the first tilt of a three-game series.

Although labeled a Salem team, the north county combine is more or less of a local institution, inasmuch as seven of the club's roster of 10 are Ceramic City players.

These performers joined the Salem club slightly before mid-season and the Salemites immediately became a potent aggregation.

Bill Mundy, manager of the All Stars, has lined up Mike Cebula and Paul Bennett, of the Chester team, and Digman, of Laughlin, as a pitching staff.

Hunselman, of Laughlin, will do the receiving. The infield defenses will be taken care of by Herbert, Laughlin; Wilde, Chester; McMath, Chester; Eddie Bayley, Turk Nash; Mundy, Victory Motors; Pete Cebula, Chester; and the outgarden by Parsons, Laughlin; Evans, Chester; with Wilde, Mundy, Cebula, Digman and Bennett also available.

Sunday's game is billed to start at 3 o'clock.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON,
Maker of 51 Golf Champions.
"Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

The clubhead should always be felt in the fingers and all good golfers develop this sense of touch. The quickest way to find out what this touch is can be found by taking a club in the address position and then moving it out, as in the back swing, until it is out fairly straight from you. Arrest it there in such position that the shaft extends straight out from your arms. Now feel the weight of it against your fingers. By lifting it up slightly and letting it fall against the fingers you get a rubber-like action that reveals plainly the weight that is in the clubhead. It is always well to so control the back swing that this weight is felt. The player should be conscious of it all the time.

"It is Consoling to Know Jack Fought it Out to End—Estelle

LIMA, O., Sept. 24.—"It is consoling to know that Jack finished on his feet, and fought it out to the end," was the comment of Estelle Taylor Dempsey, wife of the former heavyweight champion, when she learned of Dempsey's defeat.

Mrs. Dempsey, enroute to Philadelphia, first learned of the debacle to Dempsey at Fort Wayne, Ind.

Refusing to believe the report as contained in Indiana newspaper extras, she sought confirmation in Lima.

She told newspaper reporters that Dempsey probably would demand a return match with Tunney, and expressed confidence that he would regain his title within a few months, if this demand is granted.

"I just can't believe it— it just can't be true," was the first comment of the boxer's movie-star wife when she was told that Dempsey had been defeated.

Estelle Consoled By Fact That Jack Fought To End

Dempsey's Movie-star Wife Says Ex-champion Probably Will Demand Return Bout.

LIMA, O., Sept. 24.—"It is consoling to know that Jack finished on his feet, and fought it out to the end," was the comment of Estelle Taylor Dempsey, wife of the former heavyweight champion, when she learned of Dempsey's defeat.

Mrs. Dempsey, enroute to Philadelphia, first learned of the debacle to Dempsey at Fort Wayne, Ind.

Refusing to believe the report as contained in Indiana newspaper extras, she sought confirmation in Lima.

She told newspaper reporters that Dempsey probably would demand a return match with Tunney, and expressed confidence that he would regain his title within a few months, if this demand is granted.

"I just can't believe it—it just can't be true" was the first comment of the boxer's movie-star wife when she was told that Dempsey had been defeated.

FIVE SAVED AS YACHT IS HIT

West Indian Gale Wrecks Crossette Vessel.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Louis Crossette, Washington millionaire, his three guests and the captain of his yacht Advance, were picked up by the Panama Railroad company freighter Guayaquil after the Crossette yacht had been wrecked by the West Indian gale, according to radio reports received here this morning.

The wrecked ship was sighted off Castle island early Tuesday morning. The five persons could be seen clinging to the wreckage.

With Crossette were June Fortage, an English girl, Erwin Bellows and William Smith, both of Washington, and Captain Lambdin, in command of the yacht.

The Guayaquil is expected to arrive here Monday.

courses. The route taken was virtually the same as that of the cyclone in 1924, which caused approximately 75 deaths and leveled Lorain.

Yesterday's storm broke just as country schools were adjourning. Near Huron one school teacher, seeing the ominous clouds approaching, quickly herded her students to a point of safety a few seconds before the building was demolished.

Hundreds of trees were uprooted, roofs damaged and windows shattered when the tornado passed over Bowling Green, causing about $2,000 damage.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Short covering induced by the continuance of the 4 per cent rediscount rate of the New York Reserve bank and the improvement in the general position of the Reserve banks, caused a moderate rally in stock prices at the beginning of trading today. Dullness was the principal feature of the speculative markets, however, and only in outstanding stocks was there any disposition to follow up gained by the moderate advances in opening prices.

The continuance of the 4 per cent rediscount rate was not a great surprise to Wall street, in view of the failure of the outside banks to take such action earlier in the week. New York and Boston banks gained about 5 per cent in the ratio of their reserves to resources, while the Reserve system as a whole gained 1.5 per cent. Cotton prices made a moderate recovery from yesterday's severe slump, while, grain prices were slightly reactionary.

Most of the rails were higher in a quiet and featureless market after the first period. Stocks of the Southern Transportation companies and the Van Sweringen Nickel Plate group made the best showing. Equipment stocks declined, Pullman losing about 3 points.

Pools in the specialties did not relax. A new movement was started in advance resumely common and preferred, which led activity in the specialties. Warner Brothers pictures advanced 4 points. Motor stocks were firm at the start.

1 Dead, 4 Hurt in Storm

Trees Are Uprooted.

Trees, telephone and trolley poles were uprooted.

Traffic over the Y. & O. railroad was held up for about two hours while a repair crew from the Leetonia car barn removed debris from the tracks.

The steady rainfall, which continued for most of the night, caused further damage. Debris washed from the hillside near Brady's cut covered both the east and west bound tracks of the main street car line to Wellsville to a depth of several feet. The traction company operated motor busses between Wellsville and East Liverpool this morning in lieu of street car service. Because of another slide, just west of Wellsville, interurban cars from Steubenville operated only as far as the children's home in Yellow Creek.

Hundreds of telephone lines in East Liverpool and vicinity and about 15 toll lines were put out of commission by the storm, officials of the Ohio Bell company said. Passenger trains on the C. & P. division were running about a half hour late this morning due to slides near Empire. All traffic over the Panhandle division between Chester and Steubenville was halted because of slides near Newell and Kenilworth.

Baby Hurled 200 Feet.

Cellars along Virginia avenue and First avenue, East End, were flooded when the run which crosses Virginia avenue overflowed during the night. A sewer in the lower end of Wellsville, being repaired from a previous storm, overflowed and inundated a half dozen or more streets. Considerable damage was also done to the hillside streets in East Liverpool and Wellsville.

In addition to the Thomas Beadle home, residences occupied by Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Layman, parents of Mrs. Beadle; Nick tapanovich, James Burnip and Charles Reynolds, near the Stop 47 territory, and the home of Charles Lewis in Summitville were wrecked.

Mrs. Beadle and her two children, Joseph and Betty Jean, two months old, were in their house when the storm broke. The tornado first started with a heavy rainfall, the cyclonic winds following about half an hour later. The twister lifted the Beadle home from its foundation and carried it into an open field about 100 feet distant. Mrs. Beadle and her son were beneath the wreckage of the house, while the infant was found about 200 feet away.

Homes Are Carried Away.

Young Stapanovich, who lives with his father, Nick Stapanovich, rushed to the cellar of their home when he saw nearby buildings being swept away. He had just reached the basement when the house was carried away and wrecked in the roadway. His left leg was caught beneath a section of the falling chimney.

Burnip and William Gross, both of Salineville, who occupied a two-room frame dwelling owned by Frank Lowe were in the house when the twister swept the building from its foundation. Burnip was cut on the head, face and one leg by falling timbers but Gross escaped unhurt. The wreckage was scattered over the roadway in front of the home.

Mrs. Layman and her 5-year-old son, John, were in their house located close to the Beadle home. Neither was hurt.

Homes occupied by George Tishman, Everett Crawford, John Godwin, Samuel Gregg, store keeper, and an unoccupied house, owned by Frank Lowe, were damaged. Chicken coops, barns and other outbuildings on the Crawford and Gregg places were wrecked.

Garages Are Destroyed.

The tornado which covered a path about 300 yards in width, struck a garage owned and occupied by Harry Wilkinson, wrecked the building and damaged a Ford automobile housed within. Fruit trees and a grape arbor on the Wilkinson place were ruined.

The home, barn and garage on the Charles Reynolds place, about a mile from Stop 47, near the Wellsville-West Point road, were leveled. Edward Reynolds, 18, and Lawrence Reynolds, 20, sons, and Russell Backus, 16, a companion, had narrow escapes from injury. Nellie Reynolds, 16, a daughter, was fleeing to safety when she was struck in the back with a flying copper kettle which had been picked up by the terrific wind.

Thomas Beadle, father of the dead Beadle boy, was at work in the Brokaw coal mine, about a mile distant, when he was advised by the son of a neighbor that the storm had wrecked his home. He hurried to the scene, but before he arrived Mrs. Beadle and her two children had been carried into the nearby Tishman home.

Doctors nad Nurses Called.

No telephones are located in the Stop 47 district, and calls for doctors and nurses were sent from the Stop 55 district. Dr. F. F. Davis, who was at the Frank O'Hanlon filling station, about a mile and a half from the storm area, when the call came for help was the first to reach the injured. Drs. W. A. Hobbs, R. J. Marshall and A. L. Turner, of this city, and V. E. McEldowney of Newell hurried to the scene in automobiles. Four nurses were rushed from the City hospital. An ambulance and another automobile were sent by E. G. Sturgis.

Dr. Davis attended Burnip and Stapanovich, while Drs. Turner and McEldowney looked after Mrs. Beadle and her 2-year-old boy. Both were brought to the hospital in the Sturgis ambulance. Drs. Turner and McEldowney being assisted at the hospital by Dr. C. H. Bailey.

The tornado missed the Hammond school, less than a half mile from the Stop 47 district, where about 50 children, many of them living in the storm area, were in session. Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Beadle, parents of Thomas Beadle, took refuge in the Brokaw coal mine, just across the railroad tracks from their home, when they saw the storm approaching. They were unhurt and their home escaped damage. Most of the men residing in and around the Stop 47 district are employed by either the Penn-Ohio Coal company or the Brokaw coal company.

Telephone Wires Torn Down.

The storm struck the Fred Millward place on the Wellsville, West Point road, shattering almost every window in the house, wrecking a chicken coop and uprooting five large walnut trees in the front yard. A gas station conducted by Millward, near his house, escaped damage. Telephone wires along the road near the Millward home were torn from the poles by falling trees which severed communication with West Point and other northern points.

Four Salineville miners, motoring from West Point where they are employed, to their homes, were forced to take refuge in the Millward home when the wind caught the top of their automobile and carried it into a field several hundred feet distant from the roadway.

Farm buildings are reported to have suffered in the Millport, Summitville, Hammondsville and Mechanicstown district, where the tornado apparently entered the county. Two poultry houses on the Wilson Hull farm, one and one half miles from Salineville, were carried onto an adjoining farm. One hundred chickens were killed. Two hay stacks were swept away by the wind, and two porches torn from the house. Several fruit trees were uprooted.

The home of Cecil Lewis, near Summitville, was also damaged. The family was absent from the house at the time. The roof was carried from the home of Thomas Carey in the same district. A barn on the farm occupied by Harvey Phillips, two miles east of Summitville, was also razed.

School Teacher is Heroine.

Miss Alice Diahl, teacher at the Silver Ridge school, Farnklin township, played the role of a heroine during the storm which swept that section.

Sensing the seriousness of the situation, she assembled the children in one of the two outbuildings near the school before the storm broke. She had no sooner cleared the building when the wind wrecked the belfry and the heavy bell went crashing through the roof into the room. The other building on the school property was wrecked.

Victims of the tornado in the vicinity of Stop 47 were being cared for in the homes of relatives and neighbors today. The Stapanovich boy was bedfast in the home of Samuel Gregg. Several of the victims are reported to be in destitute circumstances.

Telephone Repairmen on Job.

Telephone repair crews were on the job early this morning and expect to have most of the disabled lines in service before evening. East Liverpool was without telephonic communication with Lisbon and Salem from yesterday afternoon until an early hour this morning.

Section crews of the Steubenville, East Liverpool & Beaver Valley Traction company also started to work this morning to clear debris from the tracks near Brady's cut and at the lower end of Wellsville. Cars started to single track past the scene of the Brady cut slide at 9 o'clock this morning but through interurban service to Steubenville will not be re-established until evening, street car company officials said. Regular schedules were being maintained on the Y. & O. line between East Liverpool and Salem.

Funeral services for the Beadle child will be conducted in the E. G. Sturgis funeral home, West Fifth street, at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon in charge of Rev. Thomas E. Walsh, pastor of the St. Aloysius church. The body will be taken to the Catholic cemetery at Alliance, for burial.

Friends may view the body in the Sturgis' home from 7:30 to 9:30 tonight or during the forenoon on Saturday.

Death Toll Above 400.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Sept. 24.—The death list in the southern Florida hurricane today still wavered slightly above 400 known dead, 2,000 injured and property damage variously estimated to be between $175,000,000 and $200,000,000.

Hundreds of the injured are in serious condition, but the death list is not expected to be greatly increased. Unreported deaths may swell the list to 600 victims.

In Moorehaven, 126 are admittedly dead Miami with its environs list its dead at 109, and this figure is certain to be increased at least slightly.

Fort Lauderdale is known to have more than a score dead, Hialeah probably 30 more, Clewiston, Dania, Fulford, Hollywood and other towns will add at least 150 more victims and numerous small towns are reporting additional dead daily.

Moorehaven Toll 300.

MOOREHAVEN, Fla., Sept. 24.—Moorehaven's death list will reach 300, although the exact number of deaths will never be known because of the multitude buried beneath floating debris that was swept through this little city of 1,400 when the dikes holding back the treacherous waters of Lake Okeechobee broke during the recent hurricane.

MURDERS WIFE, THEN KILLS SELF

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 24.—Following a family quarrel, Alfred Srieslaben, 33, a painter, today shot and killed his wife and then ended his life.

Review-Tribune Ad Locates Man Who Sought Dog

Review-Tribune classifieds bring results. This is the opinion of M. J. O'Keefe, who resides on the Franklin road near the Grandview cemetery at Salem.

During the county fair at Lisbon last week, O'Keefe talked to a prospective buyer of his Boston pup. He did not obtain the man's name but knew he was from East Liverpool.

Wishington to locate the man, O'Keefe inserted an ad in the Review-Tribune, asking that the stranger communicate with him. "I received an answer to my advertisement in 10 minutes after your paper was delivered," write O'Keefe in sending a check to cover the cost of the classified.

BANK RECORD OF DAUGHERTY MONEY MISSING

Brother Testifies it Was Destroyed by Trial Defendant.

NEW YORK CASE

Accounts of Late Jesse Smith Also Disappear.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney general of the United States, destroyed the record of his account in the Midland National bank at Washington Courthouse, O., according to his brother, Mal S. Daugherty, who testified today at the trial of the former cabinet member, and Col. Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian. Harry M. Daugherty also destroyed the accounts of the late Jesse Smith and of Mal S. Daugherty, the bank president testified.

Harry M. Daugherty and Miller are on trial charged with conspiracy in connection with the return of $7,000,000 worth of assets of the American Metal company to a Swiss company, which was represented by Richard Merton, German financier. Federal District Attorney Buckner introduced evidence yesterday to show that some of the $391,000 worth of Liberty bonds given the late John T. King by Merton for King's alleged aid in obtaining the settlement of the claim, had reached the Midland bank.

Mal Daugherty on Stand.

Mal S. Daugherty was called to the stand as a witness for the government this morning. The government bases much of its case on a cashier's check deposited in Daugherty's bank by King. The ledger sheets recording the deposit are missing. Harry M. Daugherty's and Jesse Smith both had accounts in the bank.

"What did you do with these missing records?" Mal Daugherty was asked.

"I gave them to my brother, Harry M. Daugherty," he answered.

"Did he tell you what he had done with them?"

"He told me he had destroyed them," the banker replied.

Buckner then disclosed that Mal Daugherty had testified in 1925 before the federal grand jury that the records were "missing."

"Did Harry tell you how he destroyed these records?" asked Buckner.

"He told me he burned them," the witness answered.

The witness then admitted, under questioning, that before Harry destroyed the account records the former attorney general and the witness went over the accounts "twenty or twenty-five times."

Under cross-examination by Max Steur, counsel for Harry M. Daugherty, the witness declared his brother had never told him to conceal anything from the government.

Joseph Gevan, accountant in the department of justice, was the next witness. He testified that Thomas W. Miller had an "alient property custodian's" account in the Midland bank.

Gevan also told of questioning Mal Daugherty concerning missing papers in his bank.

200 Ohio Prison Inmates Receive Returns of Fight

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 24.—Although hidden away from the world behind the drab walls of the Ohio State penitentiary here, sitting or lying on their bunks in darkness, at least 200 inmates of the prison heard the returns from the ringside in Philadelphia, and today the fight was the topic of the hour.

Returns came by radio, for a limited number of sets are permitted in the prison, but loud speakers were taboo after lights were turned off at 8 o'clock. Most of the owners of sets have earphones and are permitted to sit in bed listening as long as they please.

Some of the sets were of seven and eight tubes, others smaller, while about half were of the crystal type, picking up the local stations.

GATE AT TITLE BOUT EXCEEDED TWO MILLIONS

Dempsey's Share Near $600,000; Tunney Gets $200,000.

TEX WINS AGAIN

Rickard's Profit Will Probably Total $500,000.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 24. — Tex Rickard's force of assistants were working unceasingly today to check exactly how much was taken in at the gate of the Dempsey-Tunney fight last night. An official statement may be ready on the attendance and receipts late this afternoon.

It was announced, however, that the "gate exceeded $2,000,000," a record for paid attendance to a sporting event anywhere in the world. The sesqui-centennial stadium seats 125,081 and almost every seat was occupied.

Rickard testified in court that Dempsey was to receive $450,000 as his share of the purse but other authorities have estimated the ex-champion's share as high as $600,000. Dempsey had a straight guarantee of $450,000 and a cut on the receipts after the first $1,000,000 was taken in.

Tunney had a straight guarantee of $200,000.

The state had 5 per cent cut of the gross and the sesqui-centennial exposition a 10 per cent cut.

Rickard's expenses in the running of the fight were estimated at $1,500,000, counting the cost of law suits his profit probably will total $500,000.

Plant Juice Is Greatest Medicine On Earth, He Says, Now That It Has Restored Him to Good Health.

"For the first time in five years I know what it is to see a well day, and I'll praise Dillingham's Plant Juice as long as I live for it," says H. Chas. McEwen, 9 Merriman Rd., West Hill, Akron, O., retired locomotive engineer.

"Why, I was in such wretched condition with neuritis, neuralgia and lumbago I though my time had come.

"But since I have been taking Dillingham's Plant Juice all those neuralgia and lumbago pains have passed away, the boils have disappeared, and I've regained my lost weight. I just feel like a new man in every way, and say without hesitation Plant Juice is the greatest medicine on earth."

Plant Juice is sold in East Liverpool by MATHEW'S ORIGINAL CUT RATE, 129 W. Sixth St. and by all leading druggists everywhere.

RAIN HELPFUL TO FRUIT CROP

Rains during the past month have resulted in a decided improvement in the fruit conditions of the state as the apple crop shows an increase of nearly one million bushels over the August estimate, peaches an increase of about fifty thousand bushels, pears three thousand bushels and a small increase in grapes; according to information obtained from farmers of the state by John W. Smith, commissioner of agriculture and Barnard Gibbs, of the U. S. Bureau of agricultural economics.

The increase in conditions of the apple crop since August 1 has been 10 per cent and at present the state's crop is estimated at 9,315,000 bushels against last year's 4,185,000 bushels and a five year average of 5,110,000 bushels. A large increase in production is shown for the entire U. S. as all but three of the seventeen leading states show an increase over last year, the greatest increases coming in New York, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Washington and West Virginia. The U. S. total production is now estimated at 242,114,000 bushels against 171,706,000 bushels last year and the past five year average of 169,500,000 bushels, this year's estimate being larger than any crop since 1914.

COMMISSIONERS SELL ROAD BONDS

The last $1,000,000 of the $50,000,000 of state road bonds permitted under the road amendment to the constitution was sold to the state sinking fund commission this week.

Members of the state road commission and Governor Gore pointed out in this connection the financing as represented by bond sales was separate from the disbursing of these funds through the road commission for construction work, and that the final sale of bonds should not be taken to indicate exhaustion of road funds. Money is available, they said not only to pay for road work now under contract, but also for other work contemplated, including projects for which contracts will be let September 28 and also for awarding further contracts, that in many cases will serve to complete short gaps remaining in connection between important centers.

STATE THIRD IN GAS PRODUCTION

West Virginia remained third in the production of natural gas last year, with only Oklahoma and California leading, according to figures announced today at the bureau of mines. Along with California and Louisiana it showed a slight decrease in output, while Oklahoma, first in production, and Texas fifth, showed increases of 16 and 26 percent, respectively.

The greatest interstate movement of natural gas continued to be from West Virginia to Ohio, with interstate transportation showing an increased consumption of natural gas for industrial purposes, reaching 916 billion feet. Of this 46 percent was used for oil field work, 15 percent in the manufacture of carbon black and the rest for other industries.

Q. Will you please tell my why eggs are sometimes so hard to take out of the shell when boiled? I. H. B.

A. It has been found that when a fresh egg is taken immediately from the nest and boiled the white substance sticks to the shell. However, if the egg is allowed to cool in a refrigerator or in cold water before boiling the shell should peel off easily.

Q. How many Jersey Cities are there in the United States? J. A. M.

A. The only Jersey City in this country is the one in New Jersey. There are, however, three cities named "Jersey." These are located in Arkansas, California and Georgia.

Q. Please explain to me how some lawyers obtain the title of "Colonel." A. W.

A. "Colonel" is often a complimentary title, the origin of the use of which is not definitely known. We have found nothing to indicate, however, that lawyers are more apt to be given this title than other men.

Q. Are growing plants in a bedroom injurious to one's health? C. K. P.

A. There is a theory that growing plants absorb certain elements from the air and for this reason it is not considered advisable to have them in a sleeping room. The effect would probably not be seriously detrimental in a sick room, provided the flowers did not have a heavy odor and there were not too many plants.

Q. Please give me Rudolph Valentino's name under which he was admitted to the United States? H. C. O.

A. Rudolph Valentino's name was Rudolfo Alfonso Raffaelo Pier Filiberto Guglielmi di Valentino d'Antonguolla. He was admitted into the United States as Rudolfo Guglielmi. He selected Valentino from his list of names when he started his career as a dancer.

Q. Is it correct that the Emperor of Japan after he accedes the throne is not permitted to leave the country? M. M. A.

A. The Japanese Embassy says that although it may be difficult for the Emperor of Japan to leave the country after his accession to the throne, there is no law or regulation restricting him from going abroad. This also applies to the heir apparent.

Q. I would like to know the number of clerks and mail carriers employed in first or second class Post Office in the United States. H. G. M.

A. The Post Office Department says that there are 67,898 clerks employed in the first and second class post offices in the United States. These offices also employ 48,645 city carriers. The labor turnover has been small since the new scale of salaries has gone into effect.

Q. To settle a dispute will you tell me if a fork is always used the same way? C. E.

A. A fork is not always used in the same way. For example, when a piece of meat is conveyed to the mouth, the fork is pressed into the meat with the tines down. On the contrary, if one is eating peas the fork is used with the tines turned upward.

INDIANA KNIGHTS TEMPLAR HOSTS TO SIR ADRIAN HAMERSLY

WASHINGTON, Ind.—Knights Templar of Indiana and adjoining states are to have a big Field Day in this city September 29, in honor of Right Eminent Sir Adrian Hamersly, grand recorder of the Grand Encampment, U. S. A. The celebration is sponsored by Washington Commandery, No. 33, of which the grand recorder is a member.

A beautiful silver loving cup will be presented to the winner of the drill competition.

Special invitations have been sent to all grand commandery officers of Indiana, Ohio, Illinois, and Michigan, as well as to officers of the grand encampment of the United States.

The program will also be featured by a monster parade, band concerts and specches by several high Masonic officials.

Granddaughter of Count Leo Tolstoi Loses Court Ruling

PRAGUE.—The domestic affairs of Vera Tolstoi Bakovsky are causing as much public interest as those of her more famous grandfather, Count Leo Tolsoi.

The court here has had to settle the question of the disposition of her child as the result of her claims and those of her divorced husband to custody of their offspring. The father kidnaped the chinld from Deuville and brought it to Prague, where he put it under the care of a German woman.

The mother brought suit to have the child returned to her because she did not want it to grow up under German influence. The court decided in favor of the mother but when she went to take her child, it cried and refused to go without the father.

The judge then changed his mind and decreed that the child should be placed in a school and might be visited by both parents.

CALIFORNIA HAS "SAHARA" SCENERY TO SAVE MOVIE CHIEFS FROM AFRICA

GUADALUPE, Cal.—A bit of the Sahara desert has been discovered in California. At Guadalupe, motion picture "location" scouts have discovered a stretch of desert country, which, it was declared, bears a closer resemblance to the topography of the great African desert than any other area on the North American continent.

Milton Sills is now using the bleak scenery for the filming of "shots" in "Men of Dawn." The sandy hillocks are overrun with Arabs, Chasseurs d'Afrique, French Legionnaires, slave girls and cameramen.

A continent from the DeMille Studio, working on "The King of Kings," will be the next company on "location" at Guadalupe.

RED-HEADED BEAUTY CONTEST WINNER DETESTS MEN WITH RED HAIR

NEW ORLEANS.—"It would be mighty queer if a girl had not been kissed by the time she was 21," says Miss Elsie Oakes, winner of a red-headed beauty contest recently held here.

Miss Oakes who is 21, with blue eyes and wears her hair bobbed and skirts short, admits however, that her pet detestation is men with red hair. In reply to a questionaire submitted her, she says she prefers men with "black hair, gray eyes, a ready smile and a sense of humor."

She neither smokes nor drinks liquor, coffee or tea, but likes dancing and other forms of exercise. She replied to other questions as follows:

"Should a girl roll her stockings?"

"It makes a person much cooler."

"Should a woman wear a brassiere?"

"Not unless she has too. I wear a brassiere only when my dress is tight."

"Do you walk much?"

"Only when I have to.

"Would you prefer long skirts if they were fashion?"

"My goodness, no! I like to have freedom of action for my limbs and short skirts are so much cooler in hot weather. I do not consider short skirts immodest."

"Do you prefer marriage to a career on the stage?"

"Yes, of course, if the proper man comes along with the right words it would be hard to say no."

Miss Oakes' measurements are height 5 feet; weight 110 pounds; waist 24 inches; calf 13 inches, ankle 8 inches; hips 32 inches; bust 32 inches.

The day has, also, arrived when the woman who says she has "nothing to wear" goes right ahead and wears it. —Canton, O., News.

8,000 Miles of Pennsylvania Roads Cost Quarter Billion

Advocates of Good Highways Outline Campaign for Additional Fifty-million Dollar Issue.

HARRISBURG, Pa. — Pennsylvania today was preparing to spend the last ten million dollars of her second fifty-million-dollar road bond issue. At the same time advocates of good roads were outlining a campaign whereby an additional fifty-million dollar issue which will required another amendment to the state constitution may be launched. If this bond issue is put over, the money cannot become available before 1928.

During the past four years the State Department of Highways has spent nearly a quarter of a billion dollars on highway construction and maintenance. In this four-year period 3,000 miles of hard-surfaced road have been constructed and 1,200 miles of stone-based road have been re-surfaced.

The ten million dollars, which under the terms of the last bond issue, will become available next month, will be required for projects already under contract. These projects under contract practically will complete the major trans-state arteries of traffic as well as a number of important connecting links.

According To Plan.

In the last decade road building in the Keystone state has been carried out entirely in accord with a carefully mapped plan. A decade ago it was decided to stop the practice of building segregated stretches of improved road to reach country estates of prominent politicians, and instead follow the important cross-state routes.

More than 12,000 miles of road of which 7,581 miles are hard surfaced comprise the present highway system of Pennsylvania. These hard surfaced roads are kept free of snow in the winter and are under constant repair in the summer.

When this year's building program is completed next summer, the state will have more than 8,000 miles of improved highways. Regardless of how carefully its surface may be maintained with drag and oil, no road is considered or marked "improved" in Pennsylvania until it has been hard surfaced.

Nearly 4,000 miles of dirt road were placed under the control of the highway department by a recent act of the egislature. It has been estimated that wo hundred million dollars will be ecessary to hard surface these tretches of connecting highways.

Roads Widened.

Necessity of widening sections of the main routes has added to the expense of maintaining the primary system and has reduced the mileage of improvement in the more outlying sections. The majority of the highways originally were built 18 feet wide. It has been necessary to widen the routes approaching the larger cities to 40 feet. Surveys have been completed for a similiar treatment to other congested sections.

During the height of the working season 25,000 men are engaged in the construction and maintenance of the state highways. Approximately 10,000 of these men are permanent employes.

Besides the two bond issues of fifty million dollars each Pennsylvania has secured money for road work from the usual license fees of various sorts and from the gasoline tax of two cents on the gallon. Laws passed at the special session of the legislature last January have tightened the collection of the gasoline tax, ending years of petty grafting by many small retailers and increasing the amount available for road construction and repair.

Sarthe, an agricultural county in Western France, plans to build 540 miles of new highways which, according to announcement, " suffice for bicycles, motorcycles and automobiles of five, six and twelve horsepower, that is for 98 per cent of the users of the road,"

MOTORS ARE NO AID TO COLLEGE; KANSAS U. STUDENTS MUST WALK

TOPEKA, Kan.—Chancellor E. H. Lindley of the University of Kansas, is receiving many letters of commendation on his request to parents and prospective students to leave their automobiles at home.

The Chancellor set out that a motor car is no part of an education. In this action Chancellor Lindley says he is following in the footsteps of the heads of the great universities in America.

The press of Kansas is practically unanimous in the opinion that better results along educational lines can be attained if young men and women who contemplate attending the University leave their automobiles at home. Probably William Allen White has stressed the matter in the strongest language.

"Too many people go to college chiefly because it is socially a good place to go," Mr. White says. "Too many university students in America are from homes without books or the intellectual background; rich homes, of course, but none the less homes of the intellecturally poverty-stricken.

"The youngsters from these homes come pretty nearly setting the social pace for our great universities. In Kansas they crowd into fraternities; they are the rooters of the athletic sports, but they have a mighty poor standing in the registrar's office. The head of every university of any importance in the United States has to struggle with this outfit; a cheap vulgar, noisy, arrogant nobbish crowd."

"BABY GARAGES" ARE LATEST FAD; SHOPPERS PARK THEIR CHILDREN

NEW YORK—"PARK YOUR BABY HERE — LOWEST RATES — BEST SERVICE."

Mothers must shop. Children need attention. Nurse girls are expensive. Solution—"Baby Garages."

In New York, the health department provides stations in congested district where children are looked after for the small sum of twenty cents a day.

Chicago is, however, making the first real step in the "Baby Garage" field. A building large enough to accomodate 2,000 youngsters will soon be thrown open for business.

In some of the large cities of the country, department stores are trying to solve the problem, if it may be called such, by providing nurseries where women may safely "check" their youngsters before attacking the bargain counters.

But this method of handling the situation has ben found unsatisfactory. Your female shopper is a peculiar creature. She requires untrammeled freedom. To deposit her child or children in the nursery of one store restricts from going around to others and making necessary comparisons. Then again, the big bargain of the day may be located in a store providing no nursery facilities.

The field for the new industry seems fertile enough. With the added stimulus of some enterprising business men, the "Baby Garage" idea may become a fact in all the large cities of the country.

Hands were blistered, raw, inflamed

Acute form of eczema yields at last to soothing treatment

Chicago, Illinois, April 14:—"A few months ago I had what I presume was an acute form of eczema. Red blotches and cracks, which refused to heal, appeared on the fingers of my left hand, then spread to my right hand. Both became raw, inflamed and blistery. I began to apply Resinol Ointment and after using three jars my hands are again in perfect shape. Your ointment is wonderful not only for its soothing effect to burning, itching skin, but for its quick healing qualities. From today on I am a volunteer booster of Resinol." (Signed) F. R. KANSAS VOTING MAY BE MIXED IN HARD FIGHT

Looms as Possible Battleground of National Struggle.

Cabinet Member Takes Part in Dispute Over Farm Relief.

TOPEKA, Kan.—Kansas' cherished "safe and sane" election in November may be torn with strife and bitter antagonism, and may become the battleground of the national fight over farm relief. Such is the opinion in party circles throughout the state as the result of the contest which has been waged hotly between Ralph Snyder, president of the Kansas Farm bureau, and W. M. Jardine, secretary of agriculture.

Secretary Jardine, fighting the McNary-Haugen form of relief legislation, has made his home state the front line trenches in his support of the co-operative marketing plan. Charecterizing the McNary-Haugen bill as radical and economically unsound and pernicious, Secretary Jardine for the first time dissected the measure, pointing out the administration contention that the tariff is a dangerous method of approach, and that what amounts to gifts to the farmers is not a sound principle.

Speaking Tours.

Snyder has engaged in a campaign of speaking tours throughout the state to counnteract the speeches made by Jardine. The secretary has been so little in favor by his party, due to his attitude on the McNary-Haugen measure that the recent meeting of the state convention failed to mention an endorsement of him for a cabinet position, although he is Kansas' only "native son" candidate.

Unofficial advices from leaders of the administration forces have stated that the visit of Jardine, although cataloged by himself as "purely informal" has the endorsement of the administration, and that it is the plan to make Kansas the center of the farm relief fight.

Although the Kansas delegation backed the so-called "subsidy measures," state leaders state that there is a strong possibility of sentiment in Kansas swinging in favor of the co-operative plan, thus counteracting the activity of the Iowa corn belt group, and the farmers committees, backing the McNary-Haugen measure.

Little Support.

The defeat of all farm relief in the past session of congress aroused little interest in Kansas, and both Republicans and Democrats had made almost no attempt to strenuously support either plan. At the meeting of the Democratic state committee, however, a protective tariff was endorsed as a method of maintaining prices for farm products on a parity with the prices paid by farmers for the goods they purchase, thereby upsetting an old Democratic tradition in favor of free trade and tariff-for-revenue-only.

The fate of the administration attempts in the state will probably depend on the result of the meeting in Southeast Kansas October 15, Secretary Jardine has expressed his intention of being present at that meeting to present the administration view, and Snyder is already busy in that district, in opposition.

To indicate the variability of the silver value, however, it may be noted that from a normal par of 1 shilling and 4 pence the rupee rose during the war to 2 shillings nad 4 pence, little short of a hundred per cent increase. All the millions in silver which the United States shipped to India during the war could not hold down the current value of the rupee but doubtless prevented it from going much higher.

The new plan for a central bank to issue notes based on gold does not contemplate the actual circulation of gold coin in trade. The special commission which made the latest report on the Indian monetary situation noted a remarkable phenomenon which also has been noted in the United States. Great Britain, during the war, drew all gold in circulation into her treasury and issued paper currency against it. The American treasury did precisely the same thing. People in the eastern part of the United States did not notice this particularly but those on the Pacific coast, where gold was popular for general pocket use, at first were keenly incensed.

After the war was over and the restrictions were released it was discovered that the publics of both the United States and Great Britain had outgrown the habit of using gold coin and, for the most part, preferred paper currency as being more convenient to handle. So long as there is public confidence that the actual gold is obtainable if it is desired, the paper money serves the purposes of trade just as well.

No Gold Coins to be Minted.

Therefore, it is proposed that the new Indian bank mint no gold coins at all but merely hold its reserves in the form of gold bars and bullion. But in foreign trade the actual gold must be employed for the currency of one country is not good in that of a distant one. Therefore, provision is made that anyone can purchase bulk gold, uncoined, in such quantities as may be desired, paying for it in the paper currency.

One very interesting speculation concerning this situation is in connection with the effect on the world gold supply and world prices India's conversion to gold standard will have. She will have to purchase a vast quantity of the metal to set up as a reserve for the new bank of issue. Overnight, practically, a customer for a vast quantity of the precious metal will come into the world market to buy gold. Another complication which has been forseen is that China, the only other large nation on a silver basis, will be compelled to follow India's example, so the demand for gold will be at least doubled.

This is the point of special interest to American silver producers as such a sudden and tremendous demand for gold will inevitably depress the price of silver to an unprecedented low point. What the effect will be on world prices of other commodities is a subject which economists now are studying.

And how easily! All you need to do is to fill your tank with Refiners Ethyl Gasoline and let its magic properties go to work.

The first tankful will stop all "knocking"—that "ping-ping-ping" that hurts your ears and hurts your motor. In addition—Refiners Ethyl Gasoline will transform the carbon in your cylinders into an agency of service, giving you more power, faster pick-up and less need to shift gears.

Refiners Ethyl Gasoline has no substitute. No other fuel is comparable. Fill your tank today.

GLITTER

By Katharine Brush

BOOK TWO—XX.

Jock began to wish that he had allowed himself to see more of Brad lately. He had remained away from the bungalow to avoid Eunice, of course, but he might have made an effort to meet Brad somewhere else occasionally. After that night, for instance. He should have gone straight to him and had a talk after that night at the Black and Tan, instead of pretending he didn't know a thing about it. There might have been some logical explanation. Perhaps he could have helped Brad in some way. He reproached himself bitterly now. "Fine friend I turned out to be! Passing by on the other side—"

Bones Allen moaned in his sleep, and Jock almost leaped at the sound. That noise! Noise that a man might make if he were hurt, wounded . . . or if he were pinned under an automobile somewhere on a deserted road, locked into a coupe like an animal in a cage. . . . Brad. . . .

"Here!" he told himself sharply. "I've got to cut this out, or I'll only upset Eunice more. Brad's all right. Sure he's all right. He probably got drunk or something, and forgot to come home." But this failed to convince him; Brad had never, to his knowledge, had a drink in his life.

Now. Ready, now. Down the stairs and across the hall. Ken Kennedy still standing there, staring. "Probably thinks I've gone nuts but I can't stop to explain now—damn this latch, anyway—"

The outside air was very cold, sharply cold, and the wind had teeth to it. Jock bent his head and hurried along, slipping with every step. He thought he had never seen a more horrible night. Black and bleak and lonely. No living thing. No light but the street lamps, pale pools of bluish white on the dead white snow. No sound but the dirge of the wind and the rattle of ice-coated branches . . . like skeleton fingers applauding. A graveyard night, unspeakably gruesome.

Suddenly he was terrified. Terrified of the night, and of the solitude, and of the errand. He began to run, and the quick steamy clouds of his breath were laden with fragments of little prayers. "Oh God, don't—don't let it be what I think it is—not Brad—not Brad—oh, this infernal night—God—" He fell, sprawling headlong, picked himself up only to fall again. He had a feeling of futility, a fear that he would never reach the place for which he was headed—that the elements would hold him back forever, and mock him, and make sport of him. "Oh, help me get there."

A train in the distance gave an eerie scream, and perversely, it steadied him. There were people, then, in this world. People asleep in two-tiered rows, behind high walls of swaying green curtains. Safe, and warm, and comfortable. He drew a vicarious warmth and comfort from thought of them. He lifted his head and laughed into the whipping wind. "Why, it's all right!" he said. "Brad's all right! I'm all right!" He laughed at himself, and swore. "Damn baby!"

The bungalow's windows threw gold across the sidewalk, visible for half a block. And cheerful, as though there might be a party on. One almost expected to hear voices and the lilt of laughter coming from within. One didn't though. Only silence. . . . He strode up the stairs and across the porch. The door fell open as his knuckles grazed it. . . .

"Oh, Jock!" cried Eunice. "Oh, Jock!"

He led her into the living room and put her down in a chair, disengaging the arms that clutched about his neck. "No word?" he said.

"No, no, nothing—"

Eunice's voice was hysterical. But it would have rung a little truer if her gown had not been so becoming and if her face had not been bright with cosmetics of obviously recent application. Jock had an intuitive flash: "She fixed herself up after she called me!" This filled him with swift cold wrath. Her husband inexplicably missing, possibly in danger, or—or worse, and she could have a thought for her appearance! But that was like Eunice. Selfish. Calloused. A really inhuman woman.

"Hang on to yourself, Eunice," he ordered curtly. "You'll have to help me think what to do."

"You can't do anythin', Jock."

"If I can't do anything what did you call me for?"

"Because I was so frightened! I wanted you—somebody—to stay heah with me until he comes—"

Jock stared at her. Then was this all a ruse, cunningly devised to bring him hotfoot to the bungalow? Was Brad's absence not ominous after all, but expected? "Eunice," he said, "tell me the truth. Where is Brad?"

"I don't know wheah he is, Jock," answered Eunice, and her tone was so blank tthat it was impossible to doubt her. "As I told you, he left heah about six-thirty in my cah. I asked him wheah he was goin' but he wouldn't tell me—just said, 'I'll be back at nine shahp, if not befoah.' I didn't think so much about it then because Brad's been actin' awfully peculiah lately anyhow, but when it got to be one o'clock and he still hadn't come I was afraid and called you."

Jock thought. "That's the truth. And I'll bet I know where he is! But why's he staying? Why did he say he'd be back at nine if he didn't intend to be? Why doesn't he telephone? Four hours — dregs of the world in those places—"

Eunice was continuing. "There isn't anythin' you can do but wait heah with me, Jock. If I knew wheah he is we could take yoah cah and go theah, but I don't even know that much." The hysterical note returned, whether premeditatedly or otherwise Jock could only conjecture. "Oh, Jock, you don't know what I've been goin' through lately—you haven't been around heah to see—but Brad's not the same, I tell you! He acts so funny. He leaves me alone all the time, and when he is heah he hardly speaks to me. Just sits and gazes at nothin'. If he did'nt give me so many presents I'd think he must be mad at me or somethin'—why, wheah you goin', Jock?"

Jack had started for the door. "I'm going to borrow a car," he said. "My roadster froze up solid this afternoon, but I'll borrow something and have a look around. I—maybe I can find Brad—"

Eunice followed him in a little rush. "Oh, take me—take me, Jock. Don't leave me heah all alo—"

She stopped, listening. They both listened. Remotely, but coming nearer, they could hear an automobile. Purr of its engine, and repeated clankety-clank of a broken tire chain against one of its mud guards. They still listened. "If it goes by—" Jock thought tensely. "If it goes by—" Afterward he recalled that they might have looked out of the window, but at the time this did not occur to either of them.

"He's turnin' in," breathed Eunice. "It must be Brad."

Then relief so poignant that it was pain ran all through Jock, and his forehead was wet with beads of sudden perspiration. He dropped into a chair, and for the first time he spoke the Thing that had moaned to him in the wind and chattered at him from the tree branches. "I thought he was dead," he said. "Christ! I thought he was dead."

Eunice stood still, and he could feel her eyes. He glanced up. She was looking at him oddly, inquisitively, as though there was something there she could not understand. "Oh, but you adoah him, don't you," she murmured.

And then Brad came in.

He wore an old brown overcoat, frayed at the cuffs, and his hat was the battered felt that Jock remembered as far back as freshman year. His hands were bare and crimson with cold, and they hung at his sides limply. His whole body seemed limp. And his face . . . You shuddered away from the sight of it. Face of a man haunted, with eyes that saw things where there were no things. . . .

Great comfort in this new hygienic pad that discards easily as tissue—no laundry

ON many important counts, women are deserting the old-time "sanitary pad."

There is a new way. A way that multiplies protection. A way, too, that solves the old problem and embarrassment of disposal.

It is called "KOTEX." Ends the insecurity of the old-time sanitary pad. Five times as absorbent! And deodorizes—ends ALL fear of offending.

As easily disposed of as a piece of tissue. No laundry. No embarrassment.

You get it at any drug or department store simply by saying "KOTEX." You ask for it without hesitancy.

Costs only a few cents. Eight in 10 better-class women employ it. Proves old ways an unnecessary risk.

Why Overland's amazing Price Cuts are possible

—on the two most successful cars of their size and price class

Retail sales during July and August were the largest in Willys-Overland history. Over 39,000 were sold in these two months.

The original Whippet production schedule laid out in July called for 500 cars a day. Within 60 days it has been increased to 650. And now, at these amazing new low prices we anticipate a volume of 1000 Whippets a day—and from every present indication it will be quickly attained.

Sales of the Overland Six have also been gaining in tremendous volume. Over 60,000 were made last year. Each month sees another record broken. And at these startling, low prices we believe Overland Six production will reach over 100,000 this year.

Big volume makes low prices possible. Low prices bring big volume. This in brief is the economic reason behind this amazing price reduction.

If orders are placed at once prompt deliveries can be made. The time to buy is NOW!

King Bags 112 Grouse In One Day With Two Old Time Shot Guns

LEEDS.—King George made his record bag of 112 grouse in one day with two pairs of out-of-date double-barrelled hammer guns made for him forty years ago.

As a young man he laid the foundations of his great reputation as a shot with these guns—which the modern millionaire would refuse to use—and still clings to them for sentimental reasons.

At the end of each season they are sent to a gunsmith when they are "stripped" cleaned, overhauled, given a bath in oil, and put in storage until the next shooting season.

The brilliance of King George's feat can best be realized from the fact that shooting with hammer guns gives him half the time in which the average modern sportsman can shoot at driven birds with a hammerless ejector.

DAMAGE CASES TO BE ARGUED

Change of Venue Will be Sought in Salem Actions.

Motions in 19 damage actions pending in common pleas court against the city of Salem will be argued before Judge W. H. Spence next Monday wherein a change of venue will be sought at the hands of the court.

In these cases, the different plaintiffs in the main are represented by the law firm of Hart & Kohler at Alliance and in others this firm is also associated with C. M. Shetler for the plaintiffs.

The city of Salem is represented by City Solicitor Cecil K. Scott, Metzgar & McCarty, Boone & Campbell and K. L. Cobourn.

The motion to obtain a change of venue will suggest to the court that it will be impossible to secure an unprejudiced jury in this county to try these cases. Should the motion be sustained a jury from another county will be drawn to determine these issues.

ERLA N. ALBRIGHT BECOMES BRIDE

Louis A. Binsley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred W. Binsley, and engaged as an automobile mechanic and a resident of Lisbon and Miss Erla N. Albright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Albright, also of Lisbon, obtained a marriage license, and were married Wednesday by the Rev. P. W. Macaulay of the Lisbon Presbyterian church.

Mrs. Binsley has been employed as a stenographer in the office of County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk for some years. The bride is the second stenographer in this ofice to be married during the last few years.

Alimony Order Issued.

In the divorce action pending in common pleas court and filed by Josephine R. Floding by her next friend John J. Mullen, against her husband, Homer Floding, Judge W. H. Spence has ordered the defendant to pay his wife $35 within 10 days, and thereasfter $25 per month, dating back from Sept. 17th until further order of court.

LIST 95 CASES FOR NEXT WEEK

The assignment list for the second week of the new term of common pleas court which was issued today by Clerk of Courts Frank Ballantine, shows 95 cases listed. All of these are motions and demurrers. It may follow, however, that the court will hear a number of pending divorce actions next week, although none have been assigned for trial before Judge W. H. Spence.

It is very likely that those indicted by the September grand jury which is expected to close its investigations today, will be called for arraignment next Monday or Tuesday. The first of these criminal cases may be assigned for early trial, and during the week of October 4th.

MORE THAN $400 FOR STORM AREA

More than $400 has been forwarded to the National Red Cross headquarters at Washington by the Columbiana county chapter, headquarters of which are at Lisbon. An appeal for funds for Florida sufferers has been made by Mayor Robert B. Clark of Lisbon, and this money is being turned over to Howard Armstrong, of the Firestone bank.

It is believed that the immediate Lisbon district will contribute more than $1,000 to the relief fund before the week ends.

MRS. LEFA BLUE SEEKS DIVORCE

Declaring in her petition for divorce just filed in common pleas court that he refused to summon a physician while she was seriously ill, and that she had to summon neighbors for aid, Lefa Blue asks freedom from her marriage contract with her husband, Jean Blue.

It is also related in the petition that Blue has threatened his wife, and the charge of gross neglect of duty is also made against the defendant. The petition was filed by Attorney James F. McGarry.

Marriage License.

Total receipts for the last fiscal year in the office of County Recorder Paul Smith amounted to $11,104.95 as against $10,083.38 for the previous fiscal year. This is an increase of $1,021.57.

During the fiscal year which closed Sept. 1, last, 7,000 chattle mortgages were filed for record in this office, or 1,800 more than the record for the previous year. In all, the recorder's office handled the largest volume of business last year in history.

Which Is The More Dangerous?

The Polar trips this year were in every case outfitted with a most complete medicine chest. Do you believe they need one more than a modern family in a modern town infested with the modern germs and the modern ills of civilization? Isn't fall and winter the most dangerous time of the year?

Gene Tunney or Jack Dempsey

At the time this is being written we do not know who will be the winner of the big fight. Different fellows have given us the real dope, but it so happens that it is not all the same, but we have it from good authority that they both are regular visitors at Soda Fountains and they generally order Chocolate Malted Milk. No question but they are both good men physically. So if either of them comes to this city watch for them at our soda fountains.

Honolulu Plantation Has Record Crop Of Sugar Production

HONOLULU.—More than 6,000 persons, 2,000 of whom were employes of Ewa plantation, this island, celebrated the end of the successful harvesting of a record crop of 52,841 tons of sugar. This is the second "harvest home" at Ewa plantation and one of the few such celebrations ever held in the islands.

Last year Ewa had a crop of 50,800, which was itself a record. On "harvest home" day, every worker on the plantation is given a holiday and paid a full day's wages besides. Japanese, Filipinos, Chinese, Porto Ricans, Koreans and Portuguese make up the laboring class of the plantation.

Bus transportation in Denmark is stopping development of railways there.

King Vidor's Picture Scores Hit at Ceramic.

"The Big Parade" made good and lived up to all the praise its friends and admirers had lavished upon it last night at the Ceramic theatre, when it reopened a three-day engagement. And the public is quick to respond to such exceptional entertainment. The King Vidor feature has four more performances, this afternoon and tonight, and Saturday afternoon and night.

Persons who have not seen this Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production are advised not to miss it. In particular this word is addressed to the folk who do not attend the usual picture exhibitions, for "The Big Parade" is something so out of the usual that it falls quite into a class by itself. It treats of the war to be sure, but in such a way that the memory is only one of keen entertainment.

There is much comedy in "The Big Parade" and John Gilbert as the hero quite outdoes himself—and in reality he is not heroic at all. Renee Adoree also stars in the production.

Queen To Visit Denver.

DENVER.—Denver will be included in the itinerary of the forthcoming American visit of Queen Marie of Roumania.

The royal mistress is expected to spend several days in this city, and elaborate plans are being made for her entertainment here.

A bicycle with wheeled braces on both sides of the rear wheel to keep the machine from tipping, has been introduced in Paris for the use of small children.

An Indian fakir recently demonstrated to doctors that he could vary his pulse at will, one wrist registering quickening heart beats while the other indicated that the heart was slowing down.

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK BREAKS RECORDS; 230,340 VISITORS TO DATE

YOSMITE—Yosemite National park is breaking all existing travel records. To date this season approximately 50,000 more visitors have entered the park than for the same period in 1925. Park authorities are confident this increase will be maintained until the close of the present travel season on September 30.

A statement released by Acting Superintendent E. P. Leavitt gives the number of visitors entering the park by all means of travel to date this season as 230,340 as compared with 182,332 for the same period in 1925. Automobiles numbering 61,762 have brought 194,533 visitors into Yosemite this season as against the much smaller totals of 42,035 automobiles and 134,146 persons for a similar period in 1925.

While a passenger car was standing on a siding at Kelso, Scotland, recently, a pair of swallows flew in the open window and built a nest in which four eggs were then laid.

Following the lassoing of a six-year-old boy by another lad aboard a train, the traveler's father was compelled by a London court to pay the victim's doctor bill and $25 in addition.

NASH

Leads the World in Motor Car Value

Nash entirely encases the front brake shoes which are of die cast aluminum. And thus keeps out all water and dirt from the mechanism. Note extremely large brake drum shown at left.

New Nash Features

7-bearing crankshaft motor—world's smoothest type—powers all new Nash models.

New-type crankcase "breather" which prevents crankcase dilution.

New double beam headlights with steering wheel control.

Rich new body finish colors.

All enclosed bodies are of the expensive wood frame body construction employed by finest American and European motor cars.

And a long list of added new improvements.

The Simplest and Most Efficient 4 Wheel Brakes

Standard Equipment—No Extra Cost

Another vital Nash mechanical superiority is the special Nash 4-wheel brake system—the safest, simplest and most efficient type known to the industry.

Fully equalized to right and left, front and rear, these brakes banish entirely the dangerous swerving characteristic of partially equalized brakes.

They are of unique simplicity in design, having fewer points requiring lubrication than any other mechanical brake system.

Their instant, powerful, but velvety ease-ful pressure is scientifically distributed, 60% to the rear and 40% to the front.

The sixteen new Nash models now on display range in price from $865 to $2090 f. o. b. factory.
